"But One Step Between Me and Death" Text at the Funeral.

THE IMPRESSIVE WORDS

Spoken By Rev. Albert E. Faust Over the Body of the Youthful Criminal.

MOTHER'S GRIEF PATHETIC

"There is but one step between me and death," was the text chosen by Rev. Albert E. Faust, of the Free Methodist church, when he stood over the dead body of Charles E. Betowsky, alias Kruger, in the office of Rinehart's underaking rooms on Second street this morning. It was a trying position for the minister, as well as the members of the family of the man who had given his life for one which he had taken.

"He confessed to me that he committed the crime for which he has paid the penalty," said the minister, "but there is redemption for his crime, and he sent a message to his mother to meet him in heaven. Charles was also concerned about the welfare of his sisters and brothers. He said his crime was due to liquor and admonished them to beware. He had been baptized, and I understand that when he mounted the scaffold he said: "I am going to heaven."

In a manner that is certainly worthy of commendation, Rev. Mr. Faust went through the trying ordeal, giving utterance to the words which are to be retained by the members of the family who were congregated to pay the last tribute to the dead. The minister realized that it was not his place to express his opinion of the end of the young man and devoted his time to giving the only proper advise at this time to the parents, that of looking to God for strength in their bereavement.

It was not until after 10 o'clock this morning that Mr. and Mrs. Betowsky, with the seven children who are now at home, arrived at the Rinehart undertaking establishment, and theservices began over the remains of the young man who had been hanged for murder at Greensburg, Pa., yesterday.

When the body was brought to this city last evening there was a large crowd at the station but later in the evening hundreds were admitted to the undertaking rooms and the remains were viewed. As a result the curiosity of the people for the most part had been appeased and at the services this morning there was no demonstration.

Rev. Mr. Faust said: "We come here today to mourn for the loss of one whom we loved. The words of the text are the most solemn contained in the Bible, 'There is but a step between me and death.' They are true of every one. Death is the

OFFICERS SEEKING FOR BAD GANG

FIVE EXPERT CROOKS HERE

Learning that there have been five desperate men in the city for two days contemplating making a rich haul by blowing a safe and also being apprised of their descriptions, Officer McDermott this afternoon secured the aid of Officer Dawson and a railroad detective and started out in search of the gang.

The officers were aware of where the gang has been hanging out and went to the spot, but failed to find them there and extended their search in other sections of the city. Officer McDermott was told that the gang had operated in many other cities and that they are expert crooks. Their chief manner in committing a robbery is to locate a safe in which valuables are contained and after carefully laying plans, they do the work. In no case have they ever been detected and have been carrying on the thefts for a long time.

It is not known what institution they had decided to loot in this city, but they have been loitering around a certain bank and it is probable that they had determined to rob it.

The men are under 30 years of age, fairly well educated and experienced in crime.

BUGGY SMASHED BY PONY ENGINE

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MEN

Avery and Albert Gillespie, of Hookstown, had a most thrilling experience and a very narrow escape from instant death about noon today as the result of a collision of their buggy with a freight car being pushed by the pony engine. The accident occurred on East Sixth street and was witnessed scores of potters, who were held spellbound at the sight, believing that both men had been killed instantly.

The victims of the accident had driven to the city in a one-horse buggy and were driving down East Sixth street at a rapid rate. They knew that they were about to cross the switch which is used to transport ware from the D. E. McNicol pottery to the main line, but hearing no warning of the engineer or fireman of the train did not stop to investigate the safety of the crossing. Persons who witnessed the accident say that the engine was pushing the box car up the track with considerable momentum and that no warning whatever was given. The buggy was about half way across the track when the car struck it, breaking it into halves.

The occupants were thrown headlong under the car and together with a portion of the buggy were shoved for a distance of at least 20 feet before the engineer stopped the train. The horrified throng of spectators were unable to lend assistance for a moment, but they finally recovered from the shock and running to the men, who were lying prostrate on the track, were relieved at seeing them alive. Both were extricated from the debris which had completely covered them and it was discovered that Avery was the only one hurt. He received terrible injuries to his side and back and will likely be laid up for a long time.

The buggy was completely demolished and the horse cut about the hind legs.

PRESERVATION OF THE OHIO FORESTS

LEGISLATION IS NECESSARY

And Advocates of Forestry Will Be Rejoiced If the Pending Bills Are Enacted Into Laws—Important Provisions Contained in Them.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, February 12.—Look to the trees! At last the word is heard among the law makers, and encouragement for all those who understand the importance of tree culture is to be found in the expressions voiced by the legislators.

That this pressing matter is to be taken up for Ohio and thoroughly handled will be a matter of much gratification for all those organizations and individuals who have been turning their attention to forestry.

The first step toward the careful preservation of the timber land of Ohio will be taken when a measure will be introduced to again establish a state board or bureau of forestry.

Representative Crist, of Columbiana, will father the bill to spare the trees. Besides his bill to restore the bureau of forestry, he will also introduce several bills along forestry lines. These measures will seek to have certain timber land protected from the onslaught of the saw and ax, while they will also endeavor to eliminate certain species of bad timber, the kind that is found in certain sections of Ohio.

Ohio once had a state bureau of forestry, but it was abandoned because at that time the people of the state did not sufficiently feel the necessity of preserving the trees. While the new bureau will be fashioned along the lines of the old one, new laws for its government will be devised and every thing possible will be done to make the operation of the bureau effective. Competent men, those who have made forestry a life-long study in all its branches will be installed.

The possible idea that the board is to be simply created for political purposes, which is the bugbear of the present legisuature, can be tabooed at the outset, considering the earnestness with which the men who are working for the measure are entering into the spirit of the thing.

The importance of stimulating forestry among private individuals and corporations is more thoroughly appreciated than formerly. The business world is coming to a full realization of the commercial disadvantages of continued forest decimation, and every effort to preserve the trees makes for the public advantage.

The forestry bill Mr. Crist is preparing provides for the preservation of forests, encouragement of shade tree planting along streets and roads and the protection from destruction, at the hands of telephone and electric light companies when stringing wires. A fine will be imposed for this offense.

Mr. Crist is modeling his bill in outline after the forestry bills of New York and Pennsylvania.

COMPLETION OF SYSTEM WITHIN THE PRESENT YEAR

OLD LAWSUIT IS ON AGAIN

Allegations of Fraud in Revival of Judgement Against Eclipse Baseball Managers.

INJUNCTION NOW SOUGHT

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—William A. Calhoun and George Y. Travis are plaintiffs in a suit filed in court here today against James C. Deidrich and Alfred J. Johnson, the latter as sheriff, asking that the court temporarily enjoin the sheriff from selling such property as has been levied upon and that the injunction may be made permanent on the final hearing of the case. The suit is the outgrowth of the tangled affairs of the old Eclipse base ball team, of East Liverpool.

The plaintiffs say that on December 30, 1893, in the court of Jethro Manley, a justice of the peace, James C. Deidrick brought an action against G. Y. Travis, W. A. Calhoun, John M. Davidson, John Sellars, George Carey, E. H. Hanlon and a number of others for the recovery of $129.23, alleged to be due on an account. On December 11 following a judgment was rendered in the case against George Y. Travis, W. A. Calhoun, J. N. Davidson, John Sellars, George Carey, John O'Brien, and C. W. Young. Under the laws of Ohio this judgment became dormant on December 12, 1898, and on May 1 last a motion was filed by J. C. Deidrick, the defendant in this action, in the court of Justice McLane, asking that the judgment be revised.

Several of the defendants appeared in the court in May in response to a citation which was served on only six of them, but Mr. Deidrick failed to appear to support his petition for a revival of judgment. A motion for the dismissal of the action was overruled by the justice, arbitrarily and without cause, it is alleged, and the case was continued. When the plaintiffs in this action again appeared and wanted to show why the judgment against them should not be revived, the justice is alleged to have refused to hear them and the case was finally continued by agreement without day.

On December 19 last, without any hearing whatever, it is alleged an execution was issued against G. Y. Travis, John Sellars, W. A. Calhoun, John O'Brien, W. Carey and Arthur Shaw, on a revival of the judgment alleged to have been made on May 14. The plaintiffs in common pleas court charge that the revival of this judgment was obtained by fraud, collusion and misconduct on the part of J. C. Deidrick and Justice McLane and that an unconscionable advantage was taken of the plaintiffs. On January 30 last Mr. Deidrick filed in common pleas court a transcript of the revised judgment, in accordance with which Sheriff Johnson has levied on property of the plaintiffs, who say they have a meritorious, legal and equitable defense to the reviver of judgment, which they have not been permitted to show.

G. Y. Travis and P. V. Mackall, of East Liverpool, and L. T. Farr, of Rogers, are the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

MAYOR PUZZLED AS TO HIS DUTY

Four Prisoners for Whom It Was Hard to Find a Proper Sentence.

ALL REMANDED TO JAIL

Mayor Weaver was in a continuous dilemma this morning, being unable to decide what should be done with any of the four prisoners arraigned before him. He finally settled the question by remanding them all to jail, where they will await a definite decision. The prisoners are John and Robert Franklin, Harry Headley and Jack Bradley.

The Franklin boys were arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of breaking into the home of John Cock, Gardendale, and stealing articles valued at $3. Both lads pleaded guilty, but the mayor could not decide upon a sentence that should be pronounced. He thinks, however, that the older youth, who is past 16, will be given a trip to Lisbon where he will be taken before the probate judge, and the younger one will likely be released on the payment of a fine and a promise never to be bad again.

Headley was arrested also by Officer Dawson. The policeman got him as he was trying to force an entrance through the wall of Rinehart's livery barn. He told the officer that he wanted to get a last sad glance at the face of Kruger. The officer remembered the dying wish of Kruger, when he said that he did not want any one to gaze at his remains, and to prevent Headley from his morbid desire took him to the city jail.

Headley told the mayor that he was "broke" and would remain so for a long time. The mayor sent him to jail and remarked that a week or so on bread and water might to him some good.

Jack Bradley denied strongly that he obtained groceries under false pretenses and he also denied that he stole a log chain, some barrels and numerous other articles charged against him. The mayor will hear him later on the charges, but meantime will put him in the sweatbox and attempt to find where he and the rest of his gang on Smoky Row get their cocaine. Bradley said that Clara Moore, alias Hi Ki, does the buying, but he does not know where she gets it.

The law is very strict on the sale of the drug and the mayor proposes to have it enforced if possible.

Foreclosure Suit Brought.

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—Firestone Bros., bankers of Lisbon, have begun foreclosure proceedings against William L. and Matilda Caldwell, asking judgment for $300, with interest at 8 per cent from October 31, 1897, less $10 paid in 1899, alleged to be due on a promissory note secured by a mortgage on 45 acres in Elkrun township. Ross Firestone is the plaintiff's attorney.

Saloon Man Must Pay Up.

A judgment was rendered in the court of 'Squire McCarron this morning against John Flesch, the saloonist of West Market street, in favor of County Treasurer W. A. Thompson for $30.53, alleged to be due the county for taxes. Constable Powell started out this afternoon to arrange matters. He will sell the saloon if Flesch does not pay the amount.

The Object Which the Youngstown & Southern Is Aiming At.

TO GET RIGHTS OF WAY

Condemnation Proceedings Will Be Instituted Where Other Means Fail.

PROGRESS OF CONSTRUCTION

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—Secretary John R. Ruhlman, of the Youngstown & Southern Railway company, with Ernest Gonzensbach and George Tod Jr., the electrical and civil engineers of the company, was in Lisbon yesterday and remained over until today. Mr. Ruhlman and the engineers are figuring on the problem of crossing the Beaver here, which will be accomplished by the construction of an immense viaduct extending over part of the town.

In accordance with orders from the eastern financial backers of the project, work on the construction of the line is to be pushed with a view of having the entire system completed and in operation within a year. The capitalists most heavily interested insist on the carrying out of this program and great activity all along the line may be looked for within a very few weeks. Owners of land along the route will greatly facilitate the work by permitting the line to cross their properties for a reasonable compensation which the company is always willing to give, and thus hurrying to completion a project that will mean much to them.

Furthermore amicable adjustment of these matters is nearly always to the advantage of the land owners, as expenses of appropriating proceedings are thus avoided and the compensation usually secured in such cases is no more than the railroad company would be willing to pay.

Potts & Wells, the company's legal representatives here, have been instructed, however, to institute proceedings without delay in cases where no agreement can be reached when the company commences soon to take up its rights of way. This work will of necessity have to be done rapidly when it is commenced, as grading forces will probably be at work at numerous points in the county within a few weeks.

The company is now considering a suggestion from a New York construction company, tnat the contract for the building and the equipment of the entire system, including power houses and rolling stock, be left open for bidding. Mr. Ruhlman and Mr. Gonzenbach will go to New York within the next two weeks to consult with representatives of the concern, which has signified its intention of submitting three propositions to the Youngstown & Southern company. If this construction company takes hold of the project strong forces will be put to work three or four miles apart all along the line.

The work of grading is still progressing near Columbiana and is about completed to within half a mile of the borough limits of that town. A very favorable arrangement has been made with the Pennsylvania company,

THE WIFE WILL CONTEST THE SUIT FOR DIVORCE

George P. McGillivray, well known in this city, having worked for years in local potteries, who has been employed at the pottery at Crooksville for several months, has filed suit in the court of Perry county for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Lida J. McGillivray, also a former resident of the city, but now living with her two children at Salineville. McGillivray charges extreme cruelty and asks that he be given an unconditional separation from his wife.

When the news of McGillivray's action reached the city it came as a general surprise. The plaintiff has his case in the hands of two prominent lawyers of New Lexington, O., and no doubt a hard fight will be made to defeat the woman. She, however, will not give up without a struggle, and indeed feels perfectly that it will be she and not her husband that gets the divorce. The accusations made by the husband are all denied in her answer to the petition which has been prepared and which will be forwarded in a day or two to attorneys at New Lexington, who will carry on the fight before the Perry county court.

McGillivray alleges that his wife was cruel to him by preferring charges of counterfeiting against him and being the cause of his confinement in the county jail at Cleveland for months. Other allegations are made by the plaintiff but none of them are considered seriously by the defendant wife. In her answer, she, after denying every accusation, prays for temporary alimony and when the case is finally settled for permanent alimony, together with the custody of her children, Paul, aged 3, and Richard, aged 1 year.

Mrs. McGillivray, according to her local attorney, has some startling accusations to produce when the case comes up for trial, all of which will be of great interest in East Liverpool, both parties being so generally known.

EMPIRE COUNCIL FAVORS GIVING TROLLEY FRANCHISE

Empire, February 12.—Byron D. Beacom, right of way man for the East Liverpool street car company, was at Empire, meeting the village council. His business was in the interests of the East Liverpool railway company, which desires a right of way down the river from Wellsville.

The franchise ordinance, granting the company the right to lay its lines through the village of Empire was passed under a suspension of the rules, requiring an ordinance to be read on three separate days, and in 10 days the ordinance will be a law.

The gap yet to be filled lies between the west end limits of Wellsville and the eastern limits of Empire. Mr. Beacom states that his company has secured the consent of all the property owners between the two towns, but that the county commissioners of Jefferson county have not yet granted the right of way. The commissioners have asked the railway company to save the county road. At least two of the commissioners, it is said, hold out for a 30-foot road to be made before the company gets the franchise.

The plaintiffs say that on December 30, 1893, in the court of Jethro Manley, a justice of the peace, James C. Deidrick brought an action against G. Y. Travis, W. A. Calhoun, John M. Davidson, John Sellars, George Carey, E. H. Hanlon and a number of others for the recovery of $129.23, alleged to be due on an account. On December 11 following a judgment was rendered in the case against George Y. Travis, W. A. Calhoun, J. N. Davidson, John Sellars, George Carey, John O'Brien, and C. W. Young. Under the laws of Ohio this judgment became dormant on December 12, 1898, and on May 1 last a motion was filed by J. C. Deidrick, the defendant in this action, in the court of Justice McLane, asking that the judgment be revised.

Several of the defendants appeared in the court in May in response to a citation which was served on only six of them, but Mr. Deidrick failed to appear to support his petition for a revival of judgment. A motion for the dismissal of the action was overruled by the justice, arbitrarily and without cause, it is alleged, and the case was continued. When the plaintiffs in this action again appeared and wanted to show why the judgment against them should not be revived, the justice is alleged to have refused to hear them and the case was finally continued by agreement without day.

On December 19 last, without any hearing whatever, it is alleged an execution was issued against G. Y. Travis, John Sellars, W. A. Calhoun, John O'Brien, W. Carey and Arthur Shaw, on a revival of the judgment alleged to have been made on May 14. The plaintiffs in common pleas court charge that the revival of this judgment was obtained by fraud, collusion and misconduct on the part of J. C. Deidrick and Justice McLane and that an unconscionable advantage was taken of the plaintiffs. On January 30 last Mr. Deidrick filed in common pleas court a transcript of the revised judgment, in accordance with which Sheriff Johnson has levied on property of the plaintiffs, who say they have a meritorious, legal and equitable defense to the reviver of judgment, which they have not been permitted to show.

G. Y. Travis and P. V. Mackall, of East Liverpool, and L. T. Farr, of Rogers, are the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

MAYOR PUZZLED AS TO HIS DUTY

Four Prisoners for Whom It Was Hard to Find a Proper Sentence.

ALL REMANDED TO JAIL

Mayor Weaver was in a continuous dilemma this morning, being unable to decide what should be done with any of the four prisoners arraigned before him. He finally settled the question by remanding them all to jail, where they will await a definite decision. The prisoners are John and Robert Franklin, Harry Headley and Jack Bradley.

The Franklin boys were arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of breaking into the home of John Cock, Gardendale, and stealing articles valued at $3. Both lads pleaded guilty, but the mayor could not decide upon a sentence that should be pronounced. He thinks, however, that the older youth, who is past 16, will be given a trip to Lisbon where he will be taken before the probate judge, and the younger one will likely be released on the payment of a fine and a promise never to be bad again.

Headley was arrested also by Officer Dawson. The policeman got him as he was trying to force an entrance through the wall of Rinehart's livery barn. He told the officer that he wanted to get a last sad glance at the face of Kruger. The officer remembered the dying wish of Kruger, when he said that he did not want any one to gaze at his remains, and to prevent Headley from his morbid desire took him to the city jail.

Headley told the mayor that he was "broke" and would remain so for a long time. The mayor sent him to jail and remarked that a week or so on bread and water might to him some good.

Jack Bradley denied strongly that he obtained groceries under false pretenses and he also denied that he stole a log chain, some barrels and numerous other articles charged against him. The mayor will hear him later on the charges, but meantime will put him in the sweatbox and attempt to find where he and the rest of his gang on Smoky Row get their cocaine. Bradley said that Clara Moore, alias Hi Ki, does the buying, but he does not know where she gets it.

The law is very strict on the sale of the drug and the mayor proposes to have it enforced if possible.

Foreclosure Suit Brought.

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—Firestone Bros., bankers of Lisbon, have begun foreclosure proceedings against William L. and Matilda Caldwell, asking judgment for $300, with interest at 8 per cent from October 31, 1897, less $10 paid in 1899, alleged to be due on a promissory note secured by a mortgage on 45 acres in Elkrun township. Ross Firestone is the plaintiff's attorney.

The Object Which the Youngstown & Southern Is Aiming At.

TO GET RIGHTS OF WAY

Condemnation Proceedings Will Be Instituted Where Other Means Fail.

PROGRESS OF CONSTRUCTION

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—Secretary John R. Ruhlman, of the Youngstown & Southern Railway company, with Ernest Gonzensbach and George Tod Jr., the electrical and civil engineers of the company, was in Lisbon yesterday and remained over until today. Mr. Ruhlman and the engineers are figuring on the problem of crossing the Beaver here, which will be accomplished by the construction of an immense viaduct extending over part of the town.

In accordance with orders from the eastern financial backers of the project, work on the construction of the line is to be pushed with a view of having the entire system completed and in operation within a year. The capitalists most heavily interested insist on the carrying out of this program and great activity all along the line may be looked for within a very few weeks. Owners of land along the route will greatly facilitate the work by permitting the line to cross their properties for a reasonable compensation which the company is always willing to give, and thus hurrying to completion a project that will mean much to them.

Furthermore amicable adjustment of these matters is nearly always to the advantage of the land owners, as expenses of appropriating proceedings are thus avoided and the compensation usually secured in such cases is no more than the railroad company would be willing to pay.

Potts & Wells, the company's legal representatives here, have been instructed, however, to institute proceedings without delay in cases where no agreement can be reached when the company commences soon to take up its rights of way. This work will of necessity have to be done rapidly when it is commenced, as grading forces will probably be at work at numerous points in the county within a few weeks.

The company is now considering a suggestion from a New York construction company, that the contract for the building and the equipment of the entire system, including power houses and rolling stock, be left open for bidding. Mr. Ruhlman and Mr. Gonzenbach will go to New York within the next two weeks to consult with representatives of the concern, which has signified its intention of submitting three propositions to the Youngstown & Southern company. If this construction company takes hold of the project strong forces will be put to work three or four miles apart all along the line.

The work of grading is still progressing near Columbiana and is about completed to within half a mile of the borough limits of that town. A very favorable arrangement has been made with the Pennsylvania company,

EMPIRE COUNCIL FAVORS GIVING TROLLEY FRANCHISE

Empire, February 12.—Byron D. Beacom, right of way man for the East Liverpool street car company, was at Empire, meeting the village council. His business was in the interests of the East Liverpool railway company, which desires a right of way down the river from Wellsville.

The franchise ordinance, granting the company the right to lay its lines through the village of Empire was passed under a suspension of the rules, requiring an ordinance to be read on three separate days, and in 10 days that ordinance will be a law.

The gap yet to be filled lies between the west end limits of Wellsville and the eastern limits of Empire. Mr. Beacom states that his company has secured the consent of all the property owners between the two towns, but that the county commissioners of Jefferson county have not yet granted the right of way. The commissioners have asked the railway company to save the county road. At least two of the commissioners, it is said, hold out for a 30-foot road to be made before the company gets the franchise.

THE WIFE WILL CONTEST THE SUIT FOR DIVORCE

George P. McGillivray, well known in this city, having worked for years in local potteries, who has been employed at the pottery at Crooksville for several months, has filed suit in the court of Perry county for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Lida J. McGillivray, also a former resident of the city, but now living with her two children at Salineville. McGillivray charges extreme cruelty and asks that he be given an unconditional separation from his wife.

When the news of McGillivray's action reached the city it came as a general surprise. The plaintiff has his case in the hands of two prominent lawyers of New Lexington, O., and no doubt a hard fight will be made to defeat the woman. She, however, will not give up without a struggle, and indeed feels perfectly that it will be she and not her husband that gets the divorce. The accusations made by the husband are all denied in her answer to the petition which has been prepared and which will be forwarded in a day or two to attorneys at New Lexington, who will carry on the fight before the Perry county court.

McGillivray alleges that his wife was cruel to him by preferring charges of counterfeiting against him and being the cause of his confinement in the county jail at Cleveland for months. Other allegations are made by the plaintiff but none of them are considered seriously by the defendant wife. In her answer, she, after denying every accusation, prays for temporary alimony and when the case is finally settled for permanent alimony, together with the custody of her children, Paul, aged 3, and Richard, aged 1 year.

Mrs. McGillivray, according to her local attorney, has some startling accusations to produce when the case comes up for trial, all of which will be of great interest in East Liverpool, both parties being so generally known.

THE BODY OF KRUGER IS CONSIGNED TO THE GRAVE

"But One Step Between Me and Death" Text at the Funeral.

Spoken By Rev. Albert E. Faust Over the Body of the Youthful Criminal.

MOTHER'S GRIEF PATHETIC

"There is but one step between me and death," was the text chosen by Rev. Albert E. Faust, of the Free Methodist church, when he stood over the dead body of Charles E. Betowsky, alias Kruger, in the office of Rinehart's underaking rooms on Second street this morning. It was a trying position for the minister, as well as the members of the family of the man who had given his life for one which he had taken.

"He confessed to me that he committed the crime for which he has paid the penalty," said the minister, "but there is redemption for his crime, and he sent a message to his mother to meet him in heaven. Charles was also concerned about the welfare of his sisters and brothers. He said his crime was due to liquor and admonished them to beware. He had been baptized, and I understand that when he mounted the scaffold he said: "I am going to heaven."

In a manner that is certainly worthy of commendation, Rev. Mr. Faust went through the trying ordeal, giving utterance to the words which are to be retained by the members of the family who were congregated to pay the last tribute to the dead. The minister realized that it was not his place to express his opinion of the end of the young man and devoted his time to giving the only proper advise at this time to the parents, that of looking to God for strength in their bereavement.

It was not until after 10 o'clock this morning that Mr. and Mrs. Betowsky, with the seven children who are now at home, arrived at the Rinehart undertaking establishment, and theservices began over the remains of the young man who had been hanged for murder at Greensburg, Pa., yesterday.

When the body was brought to this city last evening there was a large crowd at the station but later in the evening hundreds were admitted to the undertaking rooms and the remains were viewed. As a result the curiosity of the people for the most part had been appeased and at the services this morning there was no demonstration.

Rev. Mr. Faust said: "We come here today to mourn for the loss of one whom we loved. The words of the text are the most solemn contained in the Bible, 'There is but a step between me and death.' They are true of every one. Death is the

FIVE EXPERT CROOKS HERE

Learning that there have been five desperate men in the city for two days contemplating making a rich haul by blowing a safe and also being apprised of their descriptions, Officer McDermott this afternoon secured the aid of Officer Dawson and a railroad detective and started out in search of the gang.

The officers were aware of where the gang has been hanging out and went to the spot, but failed to find them there and extended their search in other sections of the city. Officer McDermott was told that the gang had operated in many other cities and that they are expert crooks. Their chief manner in committing a robbery is to locate a safe in which valuables are contained and after carefully laying plans, they do the work. In no case have they ever been detected and have been carrying on the thefts for a long time.

It is not known what institution they had decided to loot in this city, but they have been loitering around a certain bank and it is probable that they had determined to rob it.

The men are under 30 years of age, fairly well educated and experienced in crime.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MEN

Avery and Albert Gillespie, of Hookstown, had a most thrilling experience and a very narrow escape from instant death about noon today as the result of a collision of their buggy with a freight car being pushed by the pony engine. The accident occurred on East Sixth street and was witnessed scores of potters, who were held spellbound at the sight, believing that both men had been killed instantly.

The victims of the accident had driven to the city in a one-horse buggy and were driving down East Sixth street at a rapid rate. They knew that they were about to cross the switch which is used to transport ware from the D. E. McNicol pottery to the main line, but hearing no warning of the engineer or fireman of the train did not stop to investigate the safety of the crossing. Persons who witnessed the accident say that the engine was pushing the box car up the track with considerable momentum and that no warning whatever was given. The buggy was about half way across the track when the car struck it, breaking it into halves.

The occupants were thrown headlong under the car and together with a portion of the buggy were shoved for a distance of at least 20 feet before the engineer stopped the train. The horrified throng of spectators were unable to lend assistance for a moment, but they finally recovered from the shock and running to the men, who were lying prostrate on the track, were relieved at seeing them alive. Both were extricated from the debris which had completely covered them and it was discovered that Avery was the only one hurt. He received terrible injuries to his side and back and will likely be laid up for a long time.

The buggy was completely demolished and the horse cut about the hind legs.

And Advocates of Forestry Will Be Rejoiced If the Pending Bills Are Enacted Into Laws—Important Provisions Contained in Them.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, February 12.—Look to the trees! At last the word is heard among the law makers, and encouragement for all those who understand the importance of tree culture is to be found in the expressions voiced by the legislators.

That this pressing matter is to be taken up for Ohio and thoroughly handled will be a matter of much gratification for all those organizations and individuals who have been turning their attention to forestry.

The first step toward the careful preservation of the timber land of Ohio will be taken when a measure will be introduced to again establish a state board or bureau of forestry.

Representative Crist, of Columbiana, will father the bill to spare the trees. Besides his bill to restore the bureau of forestry, he will also introduce several bills along forestry lines. These measures will seek to have certain timber land protected from the onslaught of the saw and ax, while they will also endeavor to eliminate certain species of bad timber, the kind that is found in certain sections of Ohio.

Ohio once had a state bureau of forestry, but it was abandoned because at that time the people of the state did not sufficiently feel the necessity of preserving the trees. While the new bureau will be fashioned along the lines of the old one, new laws for its government will be devised and every thing possible will be done to make the operation of the bureau effective. Competent men, those who have made forestry a life-long study in all its branches will be installed.

The possible idea that the board is to be simply created for political purposes, which is the bugbear of the present legisuature, can be tabooed at the outset, considering the earnestness with which the men who are working for the measure are entering into the spirit of the thing.

The importance of stimulating forestry among private individuals and corporations is more thoroughly appreciated than formerly. The business world is coming to a full realization of the commercial disadvantages of continued forest decimation, and every effort to preserve the trees makes for the public advantage.

The forestry bill Mr. Crist is preparing provides for the preservation of forests, encouragement of shade tree planting along streets and roads and the protection from destruction, at the hands of telephone and electric light companies when stringing wires. A fine will be imposed for this offense.

Mr. Crist is modeling his bill in outline after the forestry bills of New York and Pennsylvania.

OLD LAWSUIT IS ON AGAIN

INJUNCTION NOW SOUGHT

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—William A. Calhoun and George Y. Travis are plaintiffs in a suit filed in court here today against James C. Deidrich and Alfred J. Johnson, the latter as sheriff, asking that the court temporarily enjoin the sheriff from selling such property as has been levied upon and that the injunction may be made permanent on the final hearing of the case. The suit is the outgrowth of the tangled affairs of the old Eclipse base ball team, of East Liverpool.

The plaintiffs say that on December 30, 1893, in the court of Jethro Manley, a justice of the peace, James C. Deidrick brought an action against G. Y. Travis, W. A. Calhoun, John M. Davidson, John Sellars, George Carey, E. H. Hanlon and a number of others for the recovery of $129.23, alleged to be due on an account. The plaintiffs in common pleas court charge that the revival of this judgment was obtained by fraud, collusion and misconduct on the part of J. C. Deidrick and Justice McLane and that an unconscionable advantage was taken of the plaintiffs. THE WIFE WILL CONTEST THE SUIT FOR DIVORCE

George P. McGillivray, well known in this city, having worked for years in local potteries, who has been employed at the pottery at Crooksville for several months, has filed suit in the court of Perry county for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Lida J. McGillivray, also a former resident of the city, but now living with her two children at Salineville. McGillivray charges extreme cruelty and asks that he be given an unconditional separation from his wife.

When the news of McGillivray's action reached the city it came as a general surprise. The accusations made by the husband are all denied in her answer to the petition which has been prepared and which will be forwarded in a day or two to attorneys at New Lexington, who will carry on the fight before the Perry county court.

McGillivray alleges that his wife was cruel to him by preferring charges of counterfeiting against him and being the cause of his confinement in the county jail at Cleveland for months. Other allegations are made by the plaintiff but none of them are considered seriously by the defendant wife. In her answer, she, after denying every accusation, prays for temporary alimony and when the case is finally settled for permanent alimony, together with the custody of her children, Paul, aged 3, and Richard, aged 1 year.

Among the Potteries and Allied Industries

ACTION DEFERRED.

It has developed, according to the statement of a prominent member of local No. 32, that the proposed change in the wage scale of printing crews, calculated to abolish the contract system, will not be brought to an issue until the next national convention. There has been a difference between the printers and the transferers since the change was first proposed and the transferers have opposed the change strenuously and so far victory, it seems, has rested with them. The printers proposed to place the transferrer on an equal footing with the cutters and rubbers, a plan by which the cutters and rubbers will benefit at the expense of the transferer. The opposition to the change on the part of the transferer is only natural and although in the minority they have so far prevented any change. Strange as it seems to the printers the transferers have succeeded in lining up a number of the rubbers against the plan calculated to give them an advance in wages.

A committee has had the proposed change under advisement for several months, but is making very little or no progress and the matter may be deferred until the next national convention.

TROUBLE WITH DECAL.

"One reason for the increased amount of hand printing now being done in this city," said a well known printer to a News Review reporter, "is the trouble some of the local firms are experiencing with the decalcomania prints. In the past two or three months quantities of ware on which the decal prints were used came out of the decorating kilns ruined, the losses being very provoking. This defect, it is claimed, is one of the greatest objections to decal prints. The printers claim these losses never occur from their product and state that hand printing will be used on all really high grade ware."

It is a fact that there are more printers at work here than for a year or more in spite of the fact that only a few of the plants are in full operation. There has been a demand for prints from out of town shops and the conditions in the trade are constantly improving.

NEW CASTLE NOTES.

New Castle, Pa., February 12.—Local union No. 54 held a very interesting meeting Friday evening. There was a large turnout and a vote was taken on changing the convention date which resulted unanimously for July. There was one initiation and one transfer card issued to Hiram Garner, of Buffalo.

Reports of the China works starting are still numerous and indications point to a start this time. Their engraver refused to finish a plate for the Shenango, as he was notified to report there for work. There was fire under the boilers today. It is certain that the decorators will start Monday, whether the clay hands do or not.

The Universal sanitary shop is still working with lots of orders.

The Shenango is still rushed. The latest arrivals at this plant are Dan Rosberry from Barberton, who is sticking up; Martin Stutler, who has accepted a job pressing, and his wife, who is finishing for R. H. Smith.

S. H. Gilbert has started again on the biscuit.

Harry Falls has quit the glost and expects to locate at East Liverpool.

"Nocky" Amos was through the shop yesterday. He is looking well, although he is very weak. It will be some time before he can work yet.

MR. WEAVER HERE.

Ed Weaver, who was manager of the decorating department at the Chelsea, was in town today. He has not yet decided upon his future, but will look for a situation if the Union company does not resume.

PLACING ORDERS.

Vice President Fowler, of the Union Pottery company, who has been in the city several days, is placing a number of orders for ware in order to carry on the business of the company. The entire stock of the Chelsea plant was destroyed, and as orders are still coming in this plan was necessary to fill them, the stock at the Union plant of the company being mostly teas. The orders were given to the local plants making the nearest ware to the shapes of the company. Several orders of considerable size were placed.

MRS. PARK WON.

The Beaver county court has rendered a decision in the case of John Warren vs. the Pennsylvania Clay company, of which the Colonial Trust company is receiver. The case involves the ownership of $24,000 worth of bonds of the Pennsylvania Clay company, held by Mrs. Mary J. Park, wife of the president of the Pennsylvania Clay company. The court's decision makes Mrs. Mary J. Park the rightful owner of the bonds in question.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

The situation at the Barberton pottery remains just the same as when the trouble first began. There has been no effort made by the pottery company as to a settlement. Just what is going to be done in regard to the trouble cannot be said. The notice put upon the door at the entrance into the pottery, "This Plant Closed Indefinitely by Order Board of Directors," still remains.

MANY RUMORS.

Several rumors have been in circulation the past few days that the Union plant here would resume. The statements of the officials, however, that nothing will be determined until the stockholders' meeting next Thursday, can be taken as true. There is strong hopes among the operatives that the Union will resume, as they have found it a pleasant place to work.

POTTERY NOTES.

It is reported that the Salineville plant will soon start.

Mike Reynolds has returned from Salem to accept a position here.

Clyde Williams, of Barberton, has taken a position at the Shenango.

Charles Lodge, of Steubenville, has accepted a pressing job at Sebring.

The Tiffin local voted unanimously for the change of the convention date.

Miss Rose Martin, injured by a fall at the Standard pottery a few days ago, is improving.

Herbert Machen and Roland Cullis, of New Cumberland, have accepted positions at Canonsburg.

MORE COMPLAINTS

Of Unsatisfactory Work on the Part of the City Building Janitor.

Auditor Davidson is the latest of the officials about the city hall to join the ranks of objectors to the manner in which the janitor work is being done about the city building. The auditor has filed his complaint with Chief Wyman. He claims that he would be able to cut down considerable expense in lights if the windows of his office were cleaned and the natural light allowed to penetrate.

Councilman Moon, chairman of the committee having in charge the work of repairing the city building, states that the hot water boiler was put in so that the janitor would be able to have water with which to work.

ACTION DEFERRED.

It has developed, according to the statement of a prominent member of local No. 32, that the proposed change in the wage scale of printing crews, calculated to abolish the contract system, will not be brought to an issue until the next national convention. There has been a difference between the printers and the transferers since the change was first proposed and the transferers have opposed the change strenuously and so far victory, it seems, has rested with them. The printers proposed to place the transferrer on an equal footing with the cutters and rubbers, a plan by which the cutters and rubbers will benefit at the expense of the transferer. The opposition to the change on the part of the transferer is only natural and although in the minority they have so far prevented any change. Strange as it seems to the printers the transferers have succeeded in lining up a number of the rubbers against the plan calculated to give them an advance in wages.

A committee has had the proposed change under advisement for several months, but is making very little or no progress and the matter may be deferred until the next national convention.

MORE COMPLAINTS

Of Unsatisfactory Work on the Part of the City Building Janitor.

Auditor Davidson is the latest of the officials about the city hall to join the ranks of objectors to the manner in which the janitor work is being done about the city building. The auditor has filed his complaint with Chief Wyman. He claims that he would be able to cut down considerable expense in lights if the windows of his office were cleaned and the natural light allowed to penetrate.

Councilman Moon, chairman of the committee having in charge the work of repairing the city building, states that the hot water boiler was put in so that the janitor would be able to have water with which to work.

The Waterway of the World

ACTION DEFERRED.

It has developed, according to the statement of a prominent member of local No. 32, that the proposed change in the wage scale of printing crews, calculated to abolish the contract system, will not be brought to an issue until the next national convention. There has been a difference between the printers and the transferers since the change was first proposed and the transferers have opposed the change strenuously and so far victory, it seems, has rested with them. The printers proposed to place the transferrer on an equal footing with the cutters and rubbers, a plan by which the cutters and rubbers will benefit at the expense of the transferer. The opposition to the change on the part of the transferer is only natural and although in the minority they have so far prevented any change. Strange as it seems to the printers the transferers have succeeded in lining up a number of the rubbers against the plan calculated to give them an advance in wages.

A committee has had the proposed change under advisement for several months, but is making very little or no progress and the matter may be deferred until the next national convention.

TROUBLE WITH DECAL.

"One reason for the increased amount of hand printing now being done in this city," said a well known printer to a News Review reporter, "is the trouble some of the local firms are experiencing with the decalcomania prints. In the past two or three months quantities of ware on which the decal prints were used came out of the decorating kilns ruined, the losses being very provoking. This defect, it is claimed, is one of the greatest objections to decal prints. The printers claim these losses never occur from their product and state that hand printing will be used on all really high grade ware."

It is a fact that there are more printers at work here than for a year or more in spite of the fact that only a few of the plants are in full operation. There has been a demand for prints from out of town shops and the conditions in the trade are constantly improving.

NEW CASTLE NOTES.

New Castle, Pa., February 12.—Local union No. 54 held a very interesting meeting Friday evening. There was a large turnout and a vote was taken on changing the convention date which resulted unanimously for July. There was one initiation and one transfer card issued to Hiram Garner, of Buffalo.

Reports of the China works starting are still numerous and indications point to a start this time. Their engraver refused to finish a plate for the Shenango, as he was notified to report there for work. There was fire under the boilers today. It is certain that the decorators will start Monday, whether the clay hands do or not.

The Universal sanitary shop is still working with lots of orders.

The Shenango is still rushed. The latest arrivals at this plant are Dan Rosberry from Barberton, who is sticking up; Martin Stutler, who has accepted a job pressing, and his wife, who is finishing for R. H. Smith.

S. H. Gilbert has started again on the biscuit.

Harry Falls has quit the glost and expects to locate at East Liverpool.

"Nocky" Amos was through the shop yesterday. He is looking well, although he is very weak. It will be some time before he can work yet.

MR. WEAVER HERE.

Ed Weaver, who was manager of the decorating department at the Chelsea, was in town today. He has not yet decided upon his future, but will look for a situation if the Union company does not resume.

PLACING ORDERS.

Vice President Fowler, of the Union Pottery company, who has been in the city several days, is placing a number of orders for ware in order to carry on the business of the company. The entire stock of the Chelsea plant was destroyed, and as orders are still coming in this plan was necessary to fill them, the stock at the Union plant of the company being mostly teas. The orders were given to the local plants making the nearest ware to the shapes of the company. Several orders of considerable size were placed.

MRS. PARK WON.

The Beaver county court has rendered a decision in the case of John Warren vs. the Pennsylvania Clay company, of which the Colonial Trust company is receiver. The case involves the ownership of $24,000 worth of bonds of the Pennsylvania Clay company, held by Mrs. Mary J. Park, wife of the president of the Pennsylvania Clay company. The court's decision makes Mrs. Mary J. Park the rightful owner of the bonds in question.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

The situation at the Barberton pottery remains just the same as when the trouble first began. There has been no effort made by the pottery company as to a settlement. Just what is going to be done in regard to the trouble cannot be said. The notice put upon the door at the entrance into the pottery, "This Plant Closed Indefinitely by Order Board of Directors," still remains.

MANY RUMORS.

Several rumors have been in circulation the past few days that the Union plant here would resume. The statements of the officials, however, that nothing will be determined until the stockholders' meeting next Thursday, can be taken as true. There is strong hopes among the operatives that the Union will resume, as they have found it a pleasant place to work.

POTTERY NOTES.

It is reported that the Salineville plant will soon start.

Mike Reynolds has returned from Salem to accept a position here.

Clyde Williams, of Barberton, has taken a position at the Shenango.

Charles Lodge, of Steubenville, has accepted a pressing job at Sebring.

Miss Rose Martin, injured by a fall at the Standard pottery a few days ago, is improving.

Herbert Machen and Roland Cullis, of New Cumberland, have accepted positions at Canonsburg.

Cripple Creek Miners' Suit Against Them Comes to Naught.

Cripple Creek, Col., Feb. 12.—Judge Lewis has dismissed the criminal cases against Adjutant General Bell, Brigadier General Chase and Major McClelland, charged with having illegally imprisoned union leaders in the bull pen.

Judge Lewis said it was not for the court to decide whether Governor Peabody did right in declaring Teller county to be in a state of insurrection. The military acted under their superiors and prisoners were not detained in excess of the time required to gather information against them.

FIGHTING BOLL WEEVIL.

Thirteen Experimental Farms Will Be Established in Texas.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The department of agriculture has issued a circular detailing the work which already has begun in Texas under the emergency appropriation made by congress to fight the cotton boll weevil.

There will be 13 experimental farms of 100 acres each in different parts of Texas. Stations will be established to demonstrate the value of diversification of crops, to indicate to planters what crops can be grown with profit in place of cotton.

Do we sell them at such prices now? So as to sell them all. They must go some time, and now is the time when you need them. Housekeepers well know the excellence of our BLANKETS. They are as excellent as ever. The only change is in their price. Not cut prices on a few, mind; not on certain kinds; all. On each you'll find the old figures, and the price we put on them now to hurry them out. The old price is as low as anybody is selling, and lower than most. The reduction is simply wiping out the profit and then some.

HANNA'S CASE IS GRAVE.

Physicians Are Much Concerned at Turn for the Worse.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Hanna's condition is very serious if not precarious. His physicians realize this, and are watching the case with the greatest concern. The senator is considerably weaker and as a result his pulse has run up to 104 pulsations to the minute.

The increased weakness is the direct result of the fever, as the official bulletin shows there are no complications. The physicians hope that the fever has reached its worst stage, but whether or not it has they declare they are unable to say. They are simply waiting for developments and realize the patient has lost ground the last two days. Stimulants have been given the senator during the day and with beneficial results. He rested well during the afternoon and has retained the nourishment given him during the past 24 hours. This latter feature of the case is encouraging to the physicians.

Extraordinary precautions are being taken to insure quiet in and around the hotel, so that the senator may get all the natural sleep possible. The motormen of the street cars almost a block away have been requested not to ring their gongs as their sudden clanging seems to irritate the senator. After the evening visit of the physicians, Senator Hanna slept for about an hour and a half, which considerably refreshed him. Dr. Carter remains at the hotel all the time so as to be on hand in case there is a call for him.

BURTON FILES DEMURRER.

Says There Is Not Sufficient Evidence to Sustain Charges.

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—United States Senator J. R. Burton has filed a demurrer in the United States district court setting forth that the indictment charging him with the unlawful acceptance of fees from the Rialto Grain and Securities company for the purpose of influencing the postal authorities did not set forth facts sufficient to hold him for trial.

The demurrer asserted that neither the postmaster general nor the post-office department had jurisdiction to issue a fraud order against the Rialto Grain and Securities company on the facts as they appeared. Judge Adams will hear arguments on the demurrers on Saturday.

Senator Burton's case was set for trial on March 21. He was indicted about three weeks ago.

William of Germany Pays Compliment to United States Ambassador.

Berlin, Feb. 12.—Emperor William dined with United States Ambassador and Mrs. Tower last night.

The diplomatic corps here regards his majesty's presence as a compliment to the United States and that it is intended by his majesty to be an unusual indication of the high position Mr. Tower has attained as ambassador to Germany.

Mormons Plan New Settlement.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 12.—The state land board has sold 16,000 acres of land in the Big Horn country to a syndicate of Mormons. The latter purpose to start irrigation projects and settle the land with at least 20,000 Mormons.

Bulgaria and Turkey to Fight.

Constantinople, Feb. 12.—The fear is increasing that Turkey and Bulgaria will take advantage of Russia's preoccupation in the Far East to settle their differences. Turkish securities have been falling off since Feb. 6.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NURSE NOT SATISFIED WITH SURROUNDINGS

Little Mary Miller, the 11-year-old girl who has been critically ill with typhoid fever, continues in about the same condition, the chances of her recovery being very slight. Owing to the enfeebled condition of the patient before stricken with fever, the battle against the disease is necessarily slow. The case is most pathetic and the sympathy of the entire community has been aroused, the neighbors and a number of ladies lending considerable assistance to the members of the family. It will be remembered that the child remained at home, caring and cooking for her younger brothers and sisters while her mother worked to support them. When the child became ill Mrs. Miller was compelled to remain at home and the income ceased and soon the family was in straightened circumstances.

A number of ladies raised a fund for the employment of a nurse and one was procured yesterday. She remained over night at the house, but early this morning took her departure. She called Dr. Mowen, who has been attending the child, by telephone and told him that she would not nurse the child longer, the surroundings not being to her taste. The physician and the ladies interested in the case were highly indignant over the actions of the nurse. Mrs. Pinkerton, a well known lady of the East End, has been secured as nurse.

KLONDIKE CITIZENS WILL ASK FOR RURAL ROUTE

Petition Will Be Circulated Within the Next Few Weeks Asking for Better Mail Facilities.

Residents of the Klondike are only waiting for open weather to start a movement toward the betterment of the present mail facilities. The severe weather has very vividly impressed them with the disadvantages and inconveniences of traveling nearly two miles for their mail, and the movement will be prosecuted all the more vigorously in consequence.

A prominent citizen stated this morning that a petition would be circulated within the next few weeks asking for the establishment of a rural free delivery route, starting from the East End station and including the entire East End not served with the city carriers and Calhoun's addition and Dixonville.

Several prominent East End citizens are greatly interested in the move of council to extend the corporate limits of the city and will ask that Calhoun's addition and Dixonville be taken in.

Fire Will Affect Trade.

The Anderson Porcelain works has been in steady operation during the winter, although there has been no great demand or large orders. A number of jobbers who have been carrying large stocks unloaded on the trade and for this reason demands upon the factories have been very few. The fact that the cold weather has paralyzed business and that there have been strikes in the building trades have depressed trade. One manufacturer stated this morning that demand for electrical supplies will be felt when the buildings destroyed in the Baltimore fire are reconstructed.

Condition Is Serious.

Conductor Frank Jackman, of the East Liverpool line, who was taken ill several weeks ago with the measles, is now in a very serious condition at his home near the power house. Complications have set in and a high fever has developed. Mr. Jackson has had several severe spells of sickness in the last year and his friends are much alarmed about him.

Misses Leslie Entertained.

Misses Ida and Lena Leslie, of Englewood, entertained a number of friends last evening with a party. Games and music were enjoyed until a late hour, when tempting refreshments were served. The guests numbered about 40.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Robert Maxwell Jr., critically ill with typhoid fever, is better today.

The condition of Walter C. Supplee continues to improve, although he is not yet able to leave his room.

Sanitary Officer Burgess was called to the East End this morning to investigate a complaint concerning a private sewer on High street.

Harry Cochrane, a member of Company E during the Spanish war, is confined to his home in the Klondike with a severe attack of the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wilson, who have been spending several weeks in the south, are now at Lake Helen, Fla., and are enjoying their visit very much.

Mrs. Campbell Brown, of Railroad street, who has been very sick for several weeks, will leave tomorrow for Beaver, where she will spend several weeks with relatives in the hope of recuperating.

Why

Do we sell them at such prices now? So as to sell them all. They must go some time, and now is the time when you need them. Housekeepers well know the excellence of our BLANKETS. They are as excellent as ever. The only change is in their price. Not cut prices on a few, mind; not on certain kinds; all. On each you'll find the old figures, and the price we put on them now to hurry them out. The old price is as low as anybody is selling, and lower than most. The reduction is simply wiping out the profit and then some.

Why

Do we sell them at such prices now? So as to sell them all. They must go some time, and now is the time when you need them. Housekeepers well know the excellence of our BLANKETS. They are as excellent as ever. The only change is in their price. Not cut prices on a few, mind; not on certain kinds; all. On each you'll find the old figures, and the price we put on them now to hurry them out. The old price is as low as anybody is selling, and lower than most. The reduction is simply wiping out the profit and then some.

$4.00 Red and Black Blankets now $2.47

HANNA'S CASE IS GRAVE.

Physicians Are Much Concerned at Turn for the Worse.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Hanna's condition is very serious if not precarious. His physicians realize this, and are watching the case with the greatest concern. The senator is considerably weaker and as a result his pulse has run up to 104 pulsations to the minute.

The increased weakness is the direct result of the fever, as the official bulletin shows there are no complications. The physicians hope that the fever has reached its worst stage, but whether or not it has they declare they are unable to say. They are simply waiting for developments and realize the patient has lost ground the last two days. Stimulants have been given the senator during the day and with beneficial results. He rested well during the afternoon and has retained the nourishment given him during the past 24 hours. This latter feature of the case is encouraging to the physicians.

Extraordinary precautions are being taken to insure quiet in and around the hotel, so that the senator may get all the natural sleep possible. The motormen of the street cars almost a block away have been requested not to ring their gongs as their sudden clanging seems to irritate the senator. After the evening visit of the physicians, Senator Hanna slept for about an hour and a half, which considerably refreshed him. Dr. Carter remains at the hotel all the time so as to be on hand in case there is a call for him.

BURTON FILES DEMURRER.

Says There Is Not Sufficient Evidence to Sustain Charges.

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—United States Senator J. R. Burton has filed a demurrer in the United States district court setting forth that the indictment charging him with the unlawful acceptance of fees from the Rialto Grain and Securities company for the purpose of influencing the postal authorities did not set forth facts sufficient to hold him for trial.

The demurrer asserted that neither the postmaster general nor the post-office department had jurisdiction to issue a fraud order against the Rialto Grain and Securities company on the facts as they appeared. Judge Adams will hear arguments on the demurrers on Saturday.

Senator Burton's case was set for trial on March 21. He was indicted about three weeks ago.

EMPEROR IS FRIENDLY.

Berlin, Feb. 12.—Emperor William dined with United States Ambassador and Mrs. Tower last night.

The diplomatic corps here regards his majesty's presence as a compliment to the United States and that it is intended by his majesty to be an unusual indication of the high position Mr. Tower has attained as ambassador to Germany.

Mormons Plan New Settlement.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 12.—The state land board has sold 16,000 acres of land in the Big Horn country to a syndicate of Mormons. The latter purpose to start irrigation projects and settle the land with at least 20,000 Mormons.

Bulgaria and Turkey to Fight.

Constantinople, Feb. 12.—The fear is increasing that Turkey and Bulgaria will take advantage of Russia's preoccupation in the Far East to settle their differences. Turkish securities have been falling off since Feb. 6.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Little Mary Miller, the 11-year-old girl who has been critically ill with typhoid fever, continues in about the same condition, the chances of her recovery being very slight. Owing to the enfeebled condition of the patient before stricken with fever, the battle against the disease is necessarily slow. The case is most pathetic and the sympathy of the entire community has been aroused, the neighbors and a number of ladies lending considerable assistance to the members of the family. It will be remembered that the child remained at home, caring and cooking for her younger brothers and sisters while her mother worked to support them. When the child became ill Mrs. Miller was compelled to remain at home and the income ceased and soon the family was in straightened circumstances.

A number of ladies raised a fund for the employment of a nurse and one was procured yesterday. She remained over night at the house, but early this morning took her departure. She called Dr. Mowen, who has been attending the child, by telephone and told him that she would not nurse the child longer, the surroundings not being to her taste. The physician and the ladies interested in the case were highly indignant over the actions of the nurse. Mrs. Pinkerton, a well known lady of the East End, has been secured as nurse.

KLONDIKE CITIZENS WILL ASK FOR RURAL ROUTE

Petition Will Be Circulated Within the Next Few Weeks Asking for Better Mail Facilities.

Residents of the Klondike are only waiting for open weather to start a movement toward the betterment of the present mail facilities. The severe weather has very vividly impressed them with the disadvantages and inconveniences of traveling nearly two miles for their mail, and the movement will be prosecuted all the more vigorously in consequence.

A prominent citizen stated this morning that a petition would be circulated within the next few weeks asking for the establishment of a rural free delivery route, starting from the East End station and including the entire East End not served with the city carriers and Calhoun's addition and Dixonville.

Several prominent East End citizens are greatly interested in the move of council to extend the corporate limits of the city and will ask that Calhoun's addition and Dixonville be taken in.

Fire Will Affect Trade.

The Anderson Porcelain works has been in steady operation during the winter, although there has been no great demand or large orders. A number of jobbers who have been carrying large stocks unloaded on the trade and for this reason demands upon the factories have been very few. The fact that the cold weather has paralyzed business and that there have been strikes in the building trades have depressed trade. One manufacturer stated this morning that demand for electrical supplies will be felt when the buildings destroyed in the Baltimore fire are reconstructed.

Condition Is Serious.

Conductor Frank Jackman, of the East Liverpool line, who was taken ill several weeks ago with the measles, is now in a very serious condition at his home near the power house. Complications have set in and a high fever has developed. Mr. Jackson has had several severe spells of sickness in the last year and his friends are much alarmed about him.

Misses Leslie Entertained.

Misses Ida and Lena Leslie, of Englewood, entertained a number of friends last evening with a party. Games and music were enjoyed until a late hour, when tempting refreshments were served. The guests numbered about 40.

TWELVE PAGES.

The proclamation of American neutrality in the Japanese-Russian war is but the carrying out of a principle of international law which this nation has long upheld. It is not the province of this country to interfere in wars between foreign powers, unless American interests are involved. During the recent Boer war many attempts were made by persons more emotional than thoughtful to induce this government to adopt resolutions of sympathy with the suffering Africanders. Such a course could have done the Boers no good and might have worked much harm to this country, as it would at once have been resented by Great Britain, with which this government is on the most friendly terms and desires so to continue. Popular sympathy is one thing; governmental policy quite another. Nine out of ten Americans probably sympathize with Japan in her valorous struggle against Russia, but that is no reason the government should take sides. As far as governmental and diplomatic relations to the United States are concerned, both Japan and Russia are friendly nations. While we may have a deep interest in the outcome of their quarrel, we take the wisest and best course by keeping out of it. Any other policy would invite trouble. Both nations will be treated alike by Uncle Sam, who, incidentally, is likely to profit far more than either of the belligerents by the warfare now in progress.

The board of public safety has done wisely in taking up the question of fire limits in this city, and it is to be hoped that its efforts will not be relaxed until a reasonable and equitable ordinance has been drafted and adopted to prevent the further increase of firetraps and wooden shanties in the business center of the city. The fire limits should be established with a view both to the present needs and the future growth of the city. It would be manifestly unjust to demand that existing structures be razed; but to demand that no more such structures shall be erected is in the interests of the whole city and its property holders. The march of progress in a few years will cause the shanties and firetraps to disappear, to be replaced by brick or stone buildings of greater value and of a more enduring nature. The lesson of the Baltimore fire, which became terribly destructive simply because there were more bad buildings than good ones in its pathway, should be taken home. The result, aside from greater safety, the first desideratum, will be a handsomer city and enhanced value to all business properties.

The Philippine islands, according to Secretary Taft, former governor, are now ready to enter upon a period of great constructive and internal development. The antis, who have painted the Filipinos as a deeply wronged people, are now respectfully invited to state, if they can, how long it would have required for them to become ready for such a thing if they had been left to the tender mercies of Spain or the rule of their friend Aguinaldo.

OBITUARY

William Tilney.

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—Word was received here by telephone from Canton yesterday afternoon that William Tilney, formerly of Lisbon, had just died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank McConnell, in that city. Mr. Tilney lived in Lisbon many years and was well known as the proprietor of a clothing house and later as the landlord of the Cowan House, now known as the Hasbrouck hotel. He went to Canton to live with his daughter and son-in-law less than two years ago. He was about 65 years old. Mrs. McConnell is the only member of his immediate family that survives him.

Vance Todd.

Vance Todd, aged 50, died at his home on Ninth street, Wellsville, last night after a three-months' illness. Death was caused by paralysis. The funeral services, conducted by Rev. L. F. Laverty, will be held Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, burial being made at Spring Hill cemetery.

Mr. Vance is survived by his wife and three children: Mrs. Cora Johnson, Chester, W. Va.; Mrs. Lucy Strauss, Rebecca, Martha, William and Herman, all of Wellsville. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, the Odd Fellows and the carpenter's union. Born in Wayne township, Mr. Vance had been a resident of Wellsville for 20 years.

TERRY CARMAN IS A BENEDICT

WEDDED IN COLUMBUS JANUARY 4, BUT KEPT THE SECRET.

Desperate Efforts Made to Keep the Fact of the Wedding a Secret.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Terry O. Carman, of East Liverpool, and Alice G. Keplar, of Columbus, were married in this city January 4 by Father J. C. Keely at St. Patrick's church.

The interested parties went to great lengths to keep the affair a secret, but in spite of their precautions it leaked out today. The license was granted on January 3 and was suppressed by the probate court officials until yesterday, when the bare announcement was made that a license had been granted to Terry O. Carman and Alice G. Keplar, no details being given as to the age, place of residence and occupation.

An inquisitive reporter plied the license clerk with interrogations as to why these details were withheld, and was given to understand a fat fee had had something to do with the matter. The newspaper man made a peremptory demand for missing information, which finally the officials reluctantly furnished. Carman's age was given as 33 years and that of his bride as 22 years. The certificate read that he was a merchant and "not previously married," and that the bride was a stenographer. The directory gives 584 Mt. Vernon avenue, Columbus, as the place of residence of Alice Keplar.

Early in January there was a story circulated in that neighborhood that the daughter of a resident of Mt. Vernon avenue had attempted to elope and that the priest of a parish other than the one to which her family belonged had refused to perform the marriage ceremony. It is said that the relatives of the girl spoiled the elopement, but afterward permitted her to wed the man of her choice, but in the regular way.

Former East Liverpool residents have frequently seen Carman on the streets of this city during the past two years. The Keplar family refuse to talk about the wedding.

THE BODY OF KRUGER

one event which happens to all, and we know not the hour when it may come. There are many different ways in which we are compelled to meet it. During the past few weeks that accidents at Dawson and Cheswick in Pennsylvania, and the theatre fire at Chicago have caused many to face their Maker.

"Death is a final step, and we have to take it alone, so far as our earthly friends are concerned. But there is One who has given us the promise of keeping us company through the valley and the shadow of death. Jesus Christ will support us at this trying hour and it is His presence that allows us to say: 'O grave, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?'

"We are unable to understand the providence of God. We cannot understand His ways, but the Lord knows what is best and what He does is done well. Our lives are in the hands of our Maker; all we have we owe to Him. He is a God of mercy, and we must look to Him in this trying hour. He is the source of help and strength. He is one in whom we can confide. Lean heavily on His arm and you will find a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. We know that God is good and that justice will be meted out to him who lies before us when that day comes that he is called before the justice bar of Heaven."

The body of the young man was placed in the hearse and was followed by the members of the family to the grave in Riverview cemetery, where a brief service was conducted and the body of Charles Kruger was lowered into its last resting place.

Mrs. Betowsky, the mother of the young man, with her babe and her son William, arrived with the body on the evening train yesterday and was met at the station by the husband. The woman still held and announced her hatred of Sheriff Trescher, whose duty it was to spring the trap which sent her son into eternity. "He tried to make me bow my head," said the woman, "but no, I held my head up and acted more like a man than a poor weak woman whose throat was thick. I came near breaking down, but I would not let them in Greensburg see me."

Mrs. Betowsky claimed that the undertaker at Greensburg refused to give her money that had been paid by the boy for his burial. The undertaker telephoned to Undertaker Rinehart, of this city, that he would send him $17 for the securing of the grave and taking the body to it. The mother claims that Charles had $52, only a portion of which can be accounted for.

Neither the mother nor the other members of the family expressed any great degree of grief until this morning, when they were assembled about the casket containing the body of their son and brother. The mother had promised to make statements to the newspapers, but today she had nothing to say. William, the eldest brother of Charles, assisted in the singing of the hymns over the body of his brother. He knew the words of the three songs by memory. They were, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "Rock of Ages."

Just before the casket was placed in the hearse the lid was removed and the members of the family took a last farewell. Mrs. Betowsky was weeping and attempted to kiss the cold lips but could not get her head down in the casket.

"God bless you, my boy," said she. "My marriage was a mistake, it was my mother's fault."

The mother evidently referred to some domestic troubles of her own life, but the husband gave no notice if he heard her statement.

The younger members of the family were held up to view the face of their brother and the mother then drew back the sheet which hid from view the purple scar which showed where the hemp had tightened about the throat. "See, that is what it leads to," said the mother. "But he was not a criminal," she said hurriedly. "They made him what he was." The father made some comment in German which could not be understood.

After the funeral the members of the family of Kruger returned to their home west of the city. The letters which the mother stated she had for Rev. Mr. Faust were left at the home today. Their contents, however, were given out at Greensburg. They contained a rambling history of the life of the young man, in which he at times said people were trying to make a fool of him and at others that he was fooling them. They admtted his guilt in regard to the murder which he paid for with his life.

It would be manifestly unjust to demand that existing structures be razed; but to demand that no more such structures shall be erected is in the interests of the whole city and its property holders. The march of progress in a few years will cause the shanties and firetraps to disappear, to be replaced by brick or stone buildings of greater value and of a more enduring nature. The lesson of the Baltimore fire, which became terribly destructive simply because there were more bad buildings than good ones in its pathway, should be taken home. The result, aside from greater safety, the first desideratum, will be a handsomer city and enhanced value to all business properties.

The Philippine islands, according to Secretary Taft, former governor, are now ready to enter upon a period of great constructive and internal development. The antis, who have painted the Filipinos as a deeply wronged people, are now respectfully invited to state, if they can, how long it would have required for them to become ready for such a thing if they had been left to the tender mercies of Spain or the rule of their friend Aguinaldo.

OBITUARY

William Tilney.

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—Word was received here by telephone from Canton yesterday afternoon that William Tilney, formerly of Lisbon, had just died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank McConnell, in that city. Mr. Tilney lived in Lisbon many years and was well known as the proprietor of a clothing house and later as the landlord of the Cowan House, now known as the Hasbrouck hotel. He went to Canton to live with his daughter and son-in-law less than two years ago. He was about 65 years old. Mrs. McConnell is the only member of his immediate family that survives him.

Vance Todd.

Vance Todd, aged 50, died at his home on Ninth street, Wellsville, last night after a three-months' illness. Death was caused by paralysis. The funeral services, conducted by Rev. L. F. Laverty, will be held Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, burial being made at Spring Hill cemetery.

Mr. Vance is survived by his wife and three children: Mrs. Cora Johnson, Chester, W. Va.; Mrs. Lucy Strauss, Rebecca, Martha, William and Herman, all of Wellsville. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, the Odd Fellows and the carpenter's union. Born in Wayne township, Mr. Vance had been a resident of Wellsville for 20 years.

TERRY CARMAN IS A BENEDICT

WEDDED IN COLUMBUS JANUARY 4, BUT KEPT THE SECRET.

Desperate Efforts Made to Keep the Fact of the Wedding a Secret.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Terry O. Carman, of East Liverpool, and Alice G. Keplar, of Columbus, were married in this city January 4 by Father J. C. Keely at St. Patrick's church.

The interested parties went to great lengths to keep the affair a secret, but in spite of their precautions it leaked out today. The license was granted on January 3 and was suppressed by the probate court officials until yesterday, when the bare announcement was made that a license had been granted to Terry O. Carman and Alice G. Keplar, no details being given as to the age, place of residence and occupation.

An inquisitive reporter plied the license clerk with interrogations as to why these details were withheld, and was given to understand a fat fee had had something to do with the matter. The newspaper man made a peremptory demand for missing information, which finally the officials reluctantly furnished. Carman's age was given as 33 years and that of his bride as 22 years. The certificate read that he was a merchant and "not previously married," and that the bride was a stenographer. The directory gives 584 Mt. Vernon avenue, Columbus, as the place of residence of Alice Keplar.

Early in January there was a story circulated in that neighborhood that the daughter of a resident of Mt. Vernon avenue had attempted to elope and that the priest of a parish other than the one to which her family belonged had refused to perform the marriage ceremony. It is said that the relatives of the girl spoiled the elopement, but afterward permitted her to wed the man of her choice, but in the regular way.

Former East Liverpool residents have frequently seen Carman on the streets of this city during the past two years. The Keplar family refuse to talk about the wedding.

one event which happens to all, and we know not the hour when it may come. There are many different ways in which we are compelled to meet it. During the past few weeks that accidents at Dawson and Cheswick in Pennsylvania, and the theatre fire at Chicago have caused many to face their Maker.

"Death is a final step, and we have to take it alone, so far as our earthly friends are concerned. But there is One who has given us the promise of keeping us company through the valley and the shadow of death. Jesus Christ will support us at this trying hour and it is His presence that allows us to say: 'O grave, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?'

"We are unable to understand the providence of God. We cannot understand His ways, but the Lord knows what is best and what He does is done well. Our lives are in the hands of our Maker; all we have we owe to Him. He is a God of mercy, and we must look to Him in this trying hour. He is the source of help and strength. He is one in whom we can confide. Lean heavily on His arm and you will find a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. We know that God is good and that justice will be meted out to him who lies before us when that day comes that he is called before the justice bar of Heaven."

The body of the young man was placed in the hearse and was followed by the members of the family to the grave in Riverview cemetery, where a brief service was conducted and the body of Charles Kruger was lowered into its last resting place.

Mrs. Betowsky, the mother of the young man, with her babe and her son William, arrived with the body on the evening train yesterday and was met at the station by the husband. The woman still held and announced her hatred of Sheriff Trescher, whose duty it was to spring the trap which sent her son into eternity. "He tried to make me bow my head," said the woman, "but no, I held my head up and acted more like a man than a poor weak woman whose throat was thick. I came near breaking down, but I would not let them in Greensburg see me."

Mrs. Betowsky claimed that the undertaker at Greensburg refused to give her money that had been paid by the boy for his burial. The undertaker telephoned to Undertaker Rinehart, of this city, that he would send him $17 for the securing of the grave and taking the body to it. The mother claims that Charles had $52, only a portion of which can be accounted for.

Neither the mother nor the other members of the family expressed any great degree of grief until this morning, when they were assembled about the casket containing the body of their son and brother. The mother had promised to make statements to the newspapers, but today she had nothing to say. William, the eldest brother of Charles, assisted in the singing of the hymns over the body of his brother. He knew the words of the three songs by memory. They were, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "Rock of Ages."

Just before the casket was placed in the hearse the lid was removed and the members of the family took a last farewell. Mrs. Betowsky was weeping and attempted to kiss the cold lips but could not get her head down in the casket.

"God bless you, my boy," said she. "My marriage was a mistake, it was my mother's fault."

The mother evidently referred to some domestic troubles of her own life, but the husband gave no notice if he heard her statement.

The younger members of the family were held up to view the face of their brother and the mother then drew back the sheet which hid from view the purple scar which showed where the hemp had tightened about the throat. "See, that is what it leads to," said the mother. "But he was not a criminal," she said hurriedly. "They made him what he was." The father made some comment in German which could not be understood.

After the funeral the members of the family of Kruger returned to their home west of the city. The letters which the mother stated she had for Rev. Mr. Faust were left at the home today. Their contents, however, were given out at Greensburg. They contained a rambling history of the life of the young man, in which he at times said people were trying to make a fool of him and at others that he was fooling them. They admitted his guilt in regard to the murder which he paid for with his life.

TWELVE PAGES.

The proclamation of American neutrality in the Japanese-Russian war is but the carrying out of a principle of international law which this nation has long upheld. It is not the province of this country to interfere in wars between foreign powers, unless American interests are involved. During the recent Boer war many attempts were made by persons more emotional than thoughtful to induce this government to adopt resolutions of sympathy with the suffering Africanders. Such a course could have done the Boers no good and might have worked much harm to this country, as it would at once have been resented by Great Britain, with which this government is on the most friendly terms and desires so to continue. Popular sympathy is one thing; governmental policy quite another. Nine out of ten Americans probably sympathize with Japan in her valorous struggle against Russia, but that is no reason the government should take sides. As far as governmental and diplomatic relations to the United States are concerned, both Japan and Russia are friendly nations. While we may have a deep interest in the outcome of their quarrel, we take the wisest and best course by keeping out of it. Any other policy would invite trouble. Both nations will be treated alike by Uncle Sam, who, incidentally, is likely to profit far more than either of the belligerents by the warfare now in progress.

The board of public safety has done wisely in taking up the question of fire limits in this city, and it is to be hoped that its efforts will not be relaxed until a reasonable and equitable ordinance has been drafted and adopted to prevent the further increase of firetraps and wooden shanties in the business center of the city. The fire limits should be established with a view both to the present needs and the future growth of the city. It would be manifestly unjust to demand that existing structures be razed; but to demand that no more such structures shall be erected is in the interests of the whole city and its property holders. The march of progress in a few years will cause the shanties and firetraps to disappear, to be replaced by brick or stone buildings of greater value and of a more enduring nature. AN IMPORTANT BILL FOR THE WHOLE STATE

INHERITANCE TAX MEASURE ADVOCATED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Representative Crist, of This County, Has Been Requested to Stand Sponsor For It.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Mr. Crist, of Columbiana, chairman of the house taxation committee, has under advisement a request by the state administration that he stand sponsor for an inheritance tax bill. It has not yet been drafted nor have the details been decided upon, not even the rate of tax, though this will probably not be less than one per cent.

No statistics are available upon which to estimate even approximately the proceeds of such a tax in Ohio, but the state officers have no doubt it would bring in a substantial addition to the present revenues of the state. Accordingly it will be one of the most important bills of the session and it will be the only revenue measure which the state administration will push.

It was announced months ago that taxation measures would be tabooed during the present session, but it was explained yesterday that all that was meant was that no increase in the present excise and other taxes would be favored.

Governor Herrick yesterday declined to commit himself publicly to the plan, but it has been discussed with him by state officers, and his support of the program is assured. The state now has a collateral inheritance tax law, which is not much of a revenue getter. It produced but $39,000 last year. The tax on direct inheritances would produce an income in the hundred thousands, even if the rate is made as low as one per cent.

A LAND TITLE IS IN DISPUTE

Suit Filed Against Over 50 Defendants for Yellow Creek Property.

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—John C. Jenkins has filed a petition in court here against Greenberry T. Swearingen and something over half a hundred other defendants, asking that his title to 11.55 acres in Yellow Creek township may be cleared. The plaintiff says he obtained possession and ownership of the premises by a deed from Fanny Klasgy, dated April 1, 1902. He traces back nearly a century the transfers of the property and shows where a mistake was made in one of the early descriptions which represented the land to be in township No. 10, instead of No. 9, the latter township being the proper location. The defendants named the the heirs of the grantors and grantees named in the deed.

A. G. Smith, of Wellsville, is the attorney for the plaintiff.

Pythians Will Meet.

A meeting of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will be held this evening. Arrangements will be made for the holding of the annual parade and inspection which occurs on the evening of March 23. Lieut. Harry Eberts will have charge of the inspection. A billiard and pool table have been ordered to be placed in the rooms of the Knights in the Oyster building on Sixth street. It is expected that the tables will be here this week.

The young men wore black dominos with red masks and the young ladies wore red dominos with black masks.

At 9 o'clock the dancing began. The lights in the ball room of the Belmont club rooms were turned low and the dim shades cast from the Japanese lanterns gave a very weird appearance to the scene, and the party looked much like the ghostly elves from some mysterious land.

SOUTHSIDE PROMISED LOCALS ANOTHER GAME

Manager Roberts, However, Refused to Fix the Date and Local Fans Think He Is Fourflushing

Southside has promised to come to East Liverpool for another game of basket ball. This information was brought to the city last night by Manager Frank Gallimore, of the local five, and a number of local people who were at Freedom last night to witness the Southside-Freedom game. Manager Roberts, of the Southside bunch, when he heard the red hot challenge from Manager Gallimore, stated that he would give us a date some time next month.

Many local fans think the Southsiders are "fourflushing." Manager Roberts would not fix an exact date, his refusal to do so being taken to mean that the game will be postponed from time to time until the season has closed.

The game last night between Freedom and Southside was a tie, 10 to 10. The Southsiders were outplayed and Freedom could have won had it not been for nervousness. Staley, Freedom's crack goal thrower, missed several chances, not getting a goal in the entire game.

An Allegheny Mother Looking For a Boy Who Left For This City December 29.

Chief Wyman received a letter this morning from Mrs. A. The mother is distracted, having heard nothing from her son since he left and fears that something serious has happened him.

The mother further stated that the boy told her he intended to work in a pottery in this city, as he had an aunt in Chester by the name of Mrs. George Fulton, who would get him a job. The chief will investigate the case and report to the woman as soon as possible.

SOUTHSIDE PROMISED LOCALS ANOTHER GAME

Manager Roberts, However, Refused to Fix the Date and Local Fans Think He Is Fourflushing

Southside has promised to come to East Liverpool for another game of basket ball. This information was brought to the city last night by Manager Frank Gallimore, of the local five, and a number of local people who were at Freedom last night to witness the Southside-Freedom game. Manager Roberts, of the Southside bunch, when he heard the red hot challenge from Manager Gallimore, stated that he would give us a date some time next month.

Many local fans think the Southsiders are "fourflushing." Manager Roberts would not fix an exact date, his refusal to do so being taken to mean that the game will be postponed from time to time until the season has closed.

The game last night between Freedom and Southside was a tie, 10 to 10. The Southsiders were outplayed and Freedom could have won had it not been for nervousness. Staley, Freedom's crack goal thrower, missed several chances, not getting a goal in the entire game.

AN IMPORTANT BILL FOR THE WHOLE STATE

INHERITANCE TAX MEASURE ADVOCATED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Representative Crist, of This County, Has Been Requested to Stand Sponsor For It.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Mr. Crist, of Columbiana, chairman of the house taxation committee, has under advisement a request by the state administration that he stand sponsor for an inheritance tax bill. It has not yet been drafted nor have the details been decided upon, not even the rate of tax, though this will probably not be less than one per cent.

No statistics are available upon which to estimate even approximately the proceeds of such a tax in Ohio, but the state officers have no doubt it would bring in a substantial addition to the present revenues of the state. Accordingly it will be one of the most important bills of the session and it will be the only revenue measure which the state administration will push.

It was announced months ago that taxation measures would be tabooed during the present session, but it was explained yesterday that all that was meant was that no increase in the present excise and other taxes would be favored.

Governor Herrick yesterday declined to commit himself publicly to the plan, but it has been discussed with him by state officers, and his support of the program is assured. The state now has a collateral inheritance tax law, which is not much of a revenue getter. It produced but $39,000 last year. The tax on direct inheritances would produce an income in the hundred thousands, even if the rate is made as low as one per cent.

A LAND TITLE IS IN DISPUTE

Suit Filed Against Over 50 Defendants for Yellow Creek Property.

Lisbon, February 12.—(Special.)—John C. Jenkins has filed a petition in court here against Greenberry T. Swearingen and something over half a hundred other defendants, asking that his title to 11.55 acres in Yellow Creek township may be cleared. The plaintiff says he obtained possession and ownership of the premises by a deed from Fanny Klasgy, dated April 1, 1902. He traces back nearly a century the transfers of the property and shows where a mistake was made in one of the early descriptions which represented the land to be in township No. 10, instead of No. 9, the latter township being the proper location. The defendants named the the heirs of the grantors and grantees named in the deed.

A. G. Smith, of Wellsville, is the attorney for the plaintiff.

Pythians Will Meet.

A meeting of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will be held this evening. Arrangements will be made for the holding of the annual parade and inspection which occurs on the evening of March 23. Lieut. Harry Eberts will have charge of the inspection. A billiard and pool table have been ordered to be placed in the rooms of the Knights in the Oyster building on Sixth street. It is expected that the tables will be here this week.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Domino Party a Success.

The domino dance given last evening by the Belmont club was a grand success. The affair was unique and the members of the club and their lady friends who wore the dominos could have presented no more queer appearance than when they donned the garb for the occasion.

The young men wore black dominos with red masks and the young ladies wore red dominos with black masks.

At 9 o'clock the dancing began. The lights in the ball room of the Belmont club rooms were turned low and the dim shades cast from the Japanese lanterns gave a very weird appearance to the scene, and the party looked much like the ghostly elves from some mysterious land.

Everybody was intensely busy in trying to figure out who everybody else was, and there was plenty of fun in solving the mysterious questions.

At 11 o'clock the entire party unmasked and refreshments were served. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and having a general good time. The occasion was one which will long be remembered for its originality in design and superior success.

Successful Masquerade.

There was a large attendance at the masquerade ball held at Rock Springs park last evening and the contest for the prizes was somewhat spirited. The judges awarded the prizes as follows: Fancy dressed—Miss Viola Prosser, opal ring; David Carrier, watch fob. Comic dressed—Miss Maggie Hancock, brooch; Earl Waggle, cuff links.

Pleasant Euchre Party.

A very pleasant euchre party was given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hill to about 50 of their friends. The appointments were artistic and perfect and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all. An elaborate luncheon was served at a seasonable hour.

This costs but $1, and it will cure any ordinary case of catarrh. ANOTHER SCHOOL CODE.

Bassett of Lucas County Presents a Rival to Bonebrake Bill.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—The school code fight has taken another angle by the introduction of a bill by Representative Basset of Lucas county, which embodies all the features of the Harrison-Carr school code except that relating to the election of school boards in cities. In this it follows the Toledo plan, which is distinctive in that it provides for nomination by parties and provides against nomination by petition of 200 voters or more. The bill will serve to complicate matters, but will hardly meet with such favor as to make it a dangerous rival to either of those already introduced.

Bills providing for a 2-cent fare on railways and to make punishable by fine of $100 to $500 for giving a pass by a railroad company to any state or county official and the same penalty for acceptance have been introduced.

THE SAFETY BOARD FOR FIRE LIMITS

Matter of Nuch Moment to the City Discussed at a Meeting.

INSPECTION IS TO BE MADE

The Insurance on the Central Station Reduced — Monthly Reports of Chief Morley And Wyman Are Received And Accepted by the Board.

At the home of President Grafton, West Fourth street, the board of public safety held its regular meeting last evening. W. L. Taylor, who is sick with a severe attack of the grip, was the only member absent. But one important matter was taken up and it will result in a general overhauling of the city some day.

President Grafton stated that he thought some action should be taken to relieve the city of fire traps, such as rickety frame structures which stand alongside the business houses. He cited a number of instances where the finest structures of the city are in constant danger owing to their close proximity to frame buildings and a motion was finally made and carried ordering the board as a whole to meet with the fire chief and make a general inspection of the city, the idea being to locate all of the dangerous buildings and report them to council with the recommendation that an ordinance of some kind be passed which will either result in the razing of them or preventing the erection of such structures in the future.

There are cities in which frame structures cannot be erected in the business portions, and if the fire marshal so directs all buildings considered dangerous to adjacent property can be torn down. President Grafton stated that there are a number of store rooms on Sixth street in particular that are veritable death traps and that such can be found on nearly every street in the city. He does not want to be hard on any of the property holders, but at the same time believing it to be his duty to protect the people at large he will insist that something be done at once.

After considerable talk it was decided by the board to reduce the fire insurance on the central fire station to $1,800. Heretofore it has been insured for $4,000 at a cost of $110 per year. The reduction was made because the board has not sufficient money to carry the original amount. There was only $100 appropriated to pay the insurance and repair the roof of the station and as the latter work will cost considerable there was no other alternative than to reduce expenses.

The monthly reports of Chief Wyman and Chief Morley were received and accepted. The board instructed the clerk to make out a sheet of the expense bill against the safety board prior to January 1 and it will be presented next month for payment. Included in this will be the salaries of the police for the last week of December. Chief Wyman's report follows:

"Total number of arrests, 52; divided as follows: Intoxicants, 29; disorderly conduct, 9; larceny, 2; opening saloon on Sunday, 1; pointing firearms, 1; false pretense, 2; burglary, 2; unlawful sale of seats for aisles, 1; profane language, 1; picking pockets, 1; abandonment of child, 1; assault, 1; interfering with officer, 1."

The officers who made the above arrests are as follows: McDermott, 10; Dawson, 9; Wyman, 7; Aufderheide, 5; Mahoney, 5; Morris, 3; Todd, 3; Dunn, 2.

Business.

"How shall I prove the sincerity of my devotion?" asked the young man who had been so long coming to the point that doubt had begun to accumulate against him.

"Call the parson in as a witness," suggested the young lady, who meant business.

End of Their Engagement.

Gee—It was rather abrupt the way Tom broke his engagement with Miss Easy. Whiz—How did he do it? Gee—He simply took her hand in his and, clasping the diamond, said, "Ring off!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

STREET RAILWAY TEAM TO BE REORGANIZED

Base Ball Fever Has Struck the Car Men And They Want Another Try at the Newspaper Bunch.

The employes of the street railway lines have began active preparations for the reorganization of their base ball team for the coming season and state that they will have a team in the field that will do them credit. Last season the street railway men played a number of games and the only time they were defeated were when they attempted to line up against the press team, when they dropped suddenly in their average.

They state that they are not yet satisfied with the defeat and that they would like nothing better than to open the season with the members of the team representing the newspaper fraternity. They will very likely be given the opportunity of doing so.

whereby the Youngstown & Southern will have no difficulty in crossing the Ft. Wayne tracks at Columbiana. Pennsylvania officials have agreed to put in the undergrade crossing for the electric line at cost with an addition of 10 per cent for the use of its equipment and to have it ready as soon as it is needed.

The cross ties and hundreds of tons of steel rails which are now at Youngstown, are being distributed as rapidly as possible along the line as far as it has been graded.

Mr. Ruhlman had a conference at the Commercial hotel last evening with J. R. Carey, of Salem, one of the attorneys for the Salem & Eastern, which was incorporated at Columbus to extend the Stark system through Leetonia, Columbiana and New Waterford to East Palestine, with a spur to Lisbon. In reply to a question to Mr. Carey as to whether the Youngstown & Southern intends to extends its lines to Salem, Mr. Ruhlman said:

"We are bound to go to Salem, even though another company should parallel the lines between that city and Lisbon."

"In that event," said Mr. Carey, "our company will not build to Lisbon."

He was given every assurance by Mr. Ruhlman that the Youngstown & Southern will be willing to enter into a mutually beneficial traffic arrangement at Salem. Concerning the immediate extension of the Salem & Eastern to points east of Salem, Mr. Carey said yesterday that no definite conclusion has been reached in that regard, but that much would depend on the attitude of property owners whose land the line will have to cross.

An Early Riser.

A strong, healthy, active constitution depends largely on the condition of the liver. The famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers not only cleanse the system, but they strengthen the action of the liver and rebuild the tissues supporting that organ. AT THE THEATER

A series of moving pictures showing the interior and exterior of a famous shrine in India, with the heathen worshipping the idols; one showing the King of England and President Loubet of France during the former's recent visit to Vincennes; a series of scenes in a Canadian lumbering camp; a sensational ride on the front of an engine through the famous Frazer River Canon, Rocky Mountains; reception of naval and military officers and diplomats at Algiers; winter sports in Switzerland—these are a few of the interesting pictures to be seen in the Lyman H. Howe exhibition at the Grand on next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Hospital association.

If you were caught in an electric car ten miles from town on a summer evening, and had a very important engagement that meant life or death to you, what would you do? If the car broke down from blowing out the fuse of the car and the conductor and brakeman had none with them? This is a coincident that happened to John L. and Joe Kearney in New York last season when they took a day of recreation while appearing at one of New York's leading theatres in "A Stranger in New York," and had to be there or it meant close the house for the night. John and Joe will appear in the new farce comedy, "A Handsome Cabman," at the Grand Saturday night.

A coming attraction that will afford amusement to all classes of theatre goers is the sparkling farce comedy, Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys," on next Monday night. The cast includes clever farce comedy favorites, catchy songs, charming dances, big novelty acts and up-to-date specialties are among the pleasing features offered by the attraction.

That's All You Have to do With Hyomei.

Simple, but will Surely Cure Your Catarrh.

First Day's Use of it Will Show Improvement.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Catarrh, Grip, and Prevents pneumonia — Money Back if it Fails.

Hyomei is nature's own remedy for curing catarrh, colds, coughs and diseass of the respiratory organs. It is the only natural treatment for the cure of these troubles.

Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, the air that passes into the throat and lungs, is identical with that on the mountains, where it is laden with healing and health-giving balsams. It searches out and kills disease germs in the most remote and minute air sells of the head, throat and lungs, it soothes and heals all irritation of the mucous membrane.

Hyomei is prescribed by physicians generally. Many of them use it themselves to break up a cold and prevent pneumonia.

The complete Hyomei outfit consists of a neat inhaler, that is so small and convenient that it can be carried in the pocket or purse, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. This costs but $1, and it will cure any ordinary case of catarrh. In chronic and deep-seated conditions, longer use is necessary and extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50c, making it a most economical treatment for this disease.

Will Reed has so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh and other diseases of the throat and lungs that he sells it under his personal guarantee to refund the money to any purchaser in case it fails to give satisfaction. Will Reed takes all the risk himself, and Hyomei costs you absolutely nothing unless it does you good.

THE GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE

Will Reed Will Return Money If Hyomei Fails.

Hyomei has made so many cures of the most chronic and deep seated cases of catarrh, that Will Reed considers it a specific in this disease.

He extends an invitation to all catarrh sufferers to call at his store and purchase a Hyomei outfit with the distinct understanding that it will be absolutely free unless it effects a cure.

The chief reason for the unusual success of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles and other diseases of the air passages, is the fact that it cures by a new principle, impregnating the air you breathe with healing and germ-killing balsams. On this account it reaches the seat of the disease in a way impossible to pills, drugs or other stomach dosing.

Many of Will Reed's customers who have suffered with catarrh since childhood have been cured completely by this scientific remedy.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the purse or pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. Extra bottles can be obtained for 50c, making it a most economical remedy for the cure of catarrh.

Do not suffer longer with catarrhal disorders, but get a Hyomei outfit from Will Reed under his personal guarantee to return the money if it fails. If it cures, the treatment is not expensive, while if it fails, Mr. Reed will refund your money and it costs you absolutely nothing.

ANOTHER SCHOOL CODE.

Bassett of Lucas County Presents a Rival to Bonebrake Bill.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—The school code fight has taken another angle by the introduction of a bill by Representative Basset of Lucas county, which embodies all the features of the Harrison-Carr school code except that relating to the election of school boards in cities. In this it follows the Toledo plan, which is distinctive in that it provides for nomination by parties and provides against nomination by petition of 200 voters or more. The bill will serve to complicate matters, but will hardly meet with such favor as to make it a dangerous rival to either of those already introduced.

Bills providing for a 2-cent fare on railways and to make punishable by fine of $100 to $500 for giving a pass by a railroad company to any state or county official and the same penalty for acceptance have been introduced.

THE SAFETY BOARD FOR FIRE LIMITS

Matter of Nuch Moment to the City Discussed at a Meeting.

INSPECTION IS TO BE MADE

The Insurance on the Central Station Reduced — Monthly Reports of Chief Morley And Wyman Are Received And Accepted by the Board.

At the home of President Grafton, West Fourth street, the board of public safety held its regular meeting last evening. W. L. Taylor, who is sick with a severe attack of the grip, was the only member absent. But one important matter was taken up and it will result in a general overhauling of the city some day.

President Grafton stated that he thought some action should be taken to relieve the city of fire traps, such as rickety frame structures which stand alongside the business houses. He cited a number of instances where the finest structures of the city are in constant danger owing to their close proximity to frame buildings and a motion was finally made and carried ordering the board as a whole to meet with the fire chief and make a general inspection of the city, the idea being to locate all of the dangerous buildings and report them to council with the recommendation that an ordinance of some kind be passed which will either result in the razing of them or preventing the erection of such structures in the future.

There are cities in which frame structures cannot be erected in the business portions, and if the fire marshal so directs all buildings considered dangerous to adjacent property can be torn down. President Grafton stated that there are a number of store rooms on Sixth street in particular that are veritable death traps and that such can be found on nearly every street in the city. He does not want to be hard on any of the property holders, but at the same time believing it to be his duty to protect the people at large he will insist that something be done at once.

After considerable talk it was decided by the board to reduce the fire insurance on the central fire station to $1,800. Heretofore it has been insured for $4,000 at a cost of $110 per year. The reduction was made because the board has not sufficient money to carry the original amount. There was only $100 appropriated to pay the insurance and repair the roof of the station and as the latter work will cost considerable there was no other alternative than to reduce expenses.

The monthly reports of Chief Wyman and Chief Morley were received and accepted. The board instructed the clerk to make out a sheet of the expense bill against the safety board prior to January 1 and it will be presented next month for payment. Included in this will be the salaries of the police for the last week of December. Chief Wyman's report follows:

"Total number of arrests, 52; divided as follows: Intoxicants, 29; disorderly conduct, 9; larceny, 2; opening saloon on Sunday, 1; pointing firearms, 1; false pretense, 2; burglary, 2; unlawful sale of seats for aisles, 1; profane language, 1; picking pockets, 1; abandonment of child, 1; assault, 1; interfering with officer, 1."

The officers who made the above arrests are as follows: McDermott, 10; Dawson, 9; Wyman, 7; Aufderheide, 5; Mahoney, 5; Morris, 3; Todd, 3; Dunn, 2.

Business.

"How shall I prove the sincerity of my devotion?" asked the young man who had been so long coming to the point that doubt had begun to accumulate against him.

"Call the parson in as a witness," suggested the young lady, who meant business.

Base Ball Fever Has Struck the Car Men And They Want Another Try at the Newspaper Bunch.

The employes of the street railway lines have began active preparations for the reorganization of their base ball team for the coming season and state that they will have a team in the field that will do them credit. Last season the street railway men played a number of games and the only time they were defeated were when they attempted to line up against the press team, when they dropped suddenly in their average.

They state that they are not yet satisfied with the defeat and that they would like nothing better than to open the season with the members of the team representing the newspaper fraternity. They will very likely be given the opportunity of doing so.

First Day's Use of it Will Show Improvement.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Catarrh, Grip, and Prevents pneumonia — Money Back if it Fails.

Hyomei is nature's own remedy for curing catarrh, colds, coughs and diseass of the respiratory organs. It is the only natural treatment for the cure of these troubles.

Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, the air that passes into the throat and lungs, is identical with that on the mountains, where it is laden with healing and health-giving balsams. It searches out and kills disease germs in the most remote and minute air sells of the head, throat and lungs, it soothes and heals all irritation of the mucous membrane.

Hyomei is prescribed by physicians generally. Many of them use it themselves to break up a cold and prevent pneumonia.

The complete Hyomei outfit consists of a neat inhaler, that is so small and convenient that it can be carried in the pocket or purse, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. This costs but $1, and it will cure any ordinary case of catarrh. In chronic and deep-seated conditions, longer use is necessary and extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50c, making it a most economical treatment for this disease.

Will Reed has so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh and other diseases of the throat and lungs that he sells it under his personal guarantee to refund the money to any purchaser in case it fails to give satisfaction. Will Reed takes all the risk himself, and Hyomei costs you absolutely nothing unless it does you good.

THE GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE

Will Reed Will Return Money If Hyomei Fails.

Hyomei has made so many cures of the most chronic and deep seated cases of catarrh, that Will Reed considers it a specific in this disease.

He extends an invitation to all catarrh sufferers to call at his store and purchase a Hyomei outfit with the distinct understanding that it will be absolutely free unless it effects a cure.

The chief reason for the unusual success of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles and other diseases of the air passages, is the fact that it cures by a new principle, impregnating the air you breathe with healing and germ-killing balsams. On this account it reaches the seat of the disease in a way impossible to pills, drugs or other stomach dosing.

Many of Will Reed's customers who have suffered with catarrh since childhood have been cured completely by this scientific remedy.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the purse or pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. Extra bottles can be obtained for 50c, making it a most economical remedy for the cure of catarrh.

Do not suffer longer with catarrhal disorders, but get a Hyomei outfit from Will Reed under his personal guarantee to return the money if it fails. If it cures, the treatment is not expensive, while if it fails, Mr. Reed will refund your money and it costs you absolutely nothing.

ANOTHER SCHOOL CODE.

Bassett of Lucas County Presents a Rival to Bonebrake Bill.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—The school code fight has taken another angle by the introduction of a bill by Representative Basset of Lucas county, which embodies all the features of the Harrison-Carr school code except that relating to the election of school boards in cities. In this it follows the Toledo plan, which is distinctive in that it provides for nomination by parties and provides against nomination by petition of 200 voters or more. The bill will serve to complicate matters, but will hardly meet with such favor as to make it a dangerous rival to either of those already introduced.

Bills providing for a 2-cent fare on railways and to make punishable by fine of $100 to $500 for giving a pass by a railroad company to any state or county official and the same penalty for acceptance have been introduced.

THE SAFETY BOARD FOR FIRE LIMITS

Matter of Nuch Moment to the City Discussed at a Meeting.

INSPECTION IS TO BE MADE

The Insurance on the Central Station Reduced — Monthly Reports of Chief Morley And Wyman Are Received And Accepted by the Board.

At the home of President Grafton, West Fourth street, the board of public safety held its regular meeting last evening. W. L. Taylor, who is sick with a severe attack of the grip, was the only member absent. But one important matter was taken up and it will result in a general overhauling of the city some day.

President Grafton stated that he thought some action should be taken to relieve the city of fire traps, such as rickety frame structures which stand alongside the business houses. He cited a number of instances where the finest structures of the city are in constant danger owing to their close proximity to frame buildings and a motion was finally made and carried ordering the board as a whole to meet with the fire chief and make a general inspection of the city, the idea being to locate all of the dangerous buildings and report them to council with the recommendation that an ordinance of some kind be passed which will either result in the razing of them or preventing the erection of such structures in the future.

There are cities in which frame structures cannot be erected in the business portions, and if the fire marshal so directs all buildings considered dangerous to adjacent property can be torn down. President Grafton stated that there are a number of store rooms on Sixth street in particular that are veritable death traps and that such can be found on nearly every street in the city. He does not want to be hard on any of the property holders, but at the same time believing it to be his duty to protect the people at large he will insist that something be done at once.

After considerable talk it was decided by the board to reduce the fire insurance on the central fire station to $1,800. Heretofore it has been insured for $4,000 at a cost of $110 per year. The reduction was made because the board has not sufficient money to carry the original amount. There was only $100 appropriated to pay the insurance and repair the roof of the station and as the latter work will cost considerable there was no other alternative than to reduce expenses.

The monthly reports of Chief Wyman and Chief Morley were received and accepted. The board instructed the clerk to make out a sheet of the expense bill against the safety board prior to January 1 and it will be presented next month for payment. Included in this will be the salaries of the police for the last week of December. Chief Wyman's report follows:

"Total number of arrests, 52; divided as follows: Intoxicants, 29; disorderly conduct, 9; larceny, 2; opening saloon on Sunday, 1; pointing firearms, 1; false pretense, 2; burglary, 2; unlawful sale of seats for aisles, 1; profane language, 1; picking pockets, 1; abandonment of child, 1; assault, 1; interfering with officer, 1."

The officers who made the above arrests are as follows: McDermott, 10; Dawson, 9; Wyman, 7; Aufderheide, 5; Mahoney, 5; Morris, 3; Todd, 3; Dunn, 2.

Business.

"How shall I prove the sincerity of my devotion?" asked the young man who had been so long coming to the point that doubt had begun to accumulate against him.

"Call the parson in as a witness," suggested the young lady, who meant business.

Base Ball Fever Has Struck the Car Men And They Want Another Try at the Newspaper Bunch.

The employes of the street railway lines have began active preparations for the reorganization of their base ball team for the coming season and state that they will have a team in the field that will do them credit. Last season the street railway men played a number of games and the only time they were defeated were when they attempted to line up against the press team, when they dropped suddenly in their average.

They state that they are not yet satisfied with the defeat and that they would like nothing better than to open the season with the members of the team representing the newspaper fraternity. They will very likely be given the opportunity of doing so.

My baby had eczema so bad that its head was a solid mass of scabs, and its hair all came out. I tried many remedies but none seemed to do any permanent good until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. COMPLETION OF SYSTEM whereby the Youngstown & Southern will have no difficulty in crossing the Ft. Wayne tracks at Columbiana. Pennsylvania officials have agreed to put in the undergrade crossing for the electric line at cost with an addition of 10 per cent for the use of its equipment and to have it ready as soon as it is needed.

The cross ties and hundreds of tons of steel rails which are now at Youngstown, are being distributed as rapidly as possible along the line as far as it has been graded.

Mr. Ruhlman had a conference at the Commercial hotel last evening with J. R. Carey, of Salem, one of the attorneys for the Salem & Eastern, which was incorporated at Columbus to extend the Stark system through Leetonia, Columbiana and New Waterford to East Palestine, with a spur to Lisbon. In reply to a question to Mr. Carey as to whether the Youngstown & Southern intends to extends its lines to Salem, Mr. Ruhlman said:

"We are bound to go to Salem, even though another company should parallel the lines between that city and Lisbon."

"In that event," said Mr. Carey, "our company will not build to Lisbon."

He was given every assurance by Mr. Ruhlman that the Youngstown & Southern will be willing to enter into a mutually beneficial traffic arrangement at Salem. Concerning the immediate extension of the Salem & Eastern to points east of Salem, Mr. Carey said yesterday that no definite conclusion has been reached in that regard, but that much would depend on the attitude of property owners whose land the line will have to cross.

An Early Riser.

A strong, healthy, active constitution depends largely on the condition of the liver. The famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers not only cleanse the system, but they strengthen the action of the liver and rebuild the tissues supporting that organ. AT THE THEATER

A series of moving pictures showing the interior and exterior of a famous shrine in India, with the heathen worshipping the idols; one showing the King of England and President Loubet of France during the former's recent visit to Vincennes; a series of scenes in a Canadian lumbering camp; a sensational ride on the front of an engine through the famous Frazer River Canon, Rocky Mountains; reception of naval and military officers and diplomats at Algiers; winter sports in Switzerland—these are a few of the interesting pictures to be seen in the Lyman H. Howe exhibition at the Grand on next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Hospital association.

If you were caught in an electric car ten miles from town on a summer evening, and had a very important engagement that meant life or death to you, what would you do? If the car broke down from blowing out the fuse of the car and the conductor and brakeman had none with them? This is a coincident that happened to John L. and Joe Kearney in New York last season when they took a day of recreation while appearing at one of New York's leading theatres in "A Stranger in New York," and had to be there or it meant close the house for the night. John and Joe will appear in the new farce comedy, "A Handsome Cabman," at the Grand Saturday night.

A coming attraction that will afford amusement to all classes of theatre goers is the sparkling farce comedy, Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys," on next Monday night. The cast includes clever farce comedy favorites, catchy songs, charming dances, big novelty acts and up-to-date specialties are among the pleasing features offered by the attraction.

WHAT IS CATARRH—?

When we talk of "Catarrh" you must not think we mean only that form of catarrh which affects the nose and throat, and is very similar to a bad cold. Catarrh is a disease that attacks any part of the body, wherever the mucous membrane extends, and that is practically all over the entire system, for the mucous membrane is the delicate lining of all the organs of the body.

Catarrh is inflammation and congestion of the mucous membrane wherever located.

Consequently you can have catarrh in any part of the body. Your back may ache or you may have headaches, a disordered stomach or bladder trouble. Possibly there are no acute symptoms and you are merely run down and worn out—so miserable that you feel tired of life.

HEED NATURE'S WARNING.

All these are symptoms of catarrh. They are Nature's warning that some part of the mucous membranes has become inflamed and the little cells stopped up with poisonous secretions

Rexall Mucu-Tone was created to correct these unhealthy conditions.

PROMPT, HEALTHY STIMULATION

Mucu-Tone, working through the bloodvessels, is carried by them direct to the inflamed membranes. Here it drives out the poisons and allays the inflammation.

If you try Mucu-Tone for any of the troubles above described and it doesn't do what we claim, all you have to do is to say so and we will hand you back your money without question.

Sold only at our store.

SAYS MUCU-TONE SURELY CURES CATARRH.

"I feel as if every one who suffers from catarrhal affections should know of the merits of Mucu-Tone. It surely cures catarrh, as I can testify. I had for a long time been a sufferer from nasal and bronchial catarrh, and had tried local treatments and so-called catarrh cures without any lasting benefit. A friend of mine who had been cured of catarrh of the stomach by the use of Mucu-Tone urged me to try that remedy. As a result I am entirely cured not only of catarrh but of the debility which seems always more or less associated with the disease.

C. F. Ritchel

Professor Ritchel has made a remarkable record as an inventor. It was he who gave the world the original Parlor or Roller Skate. He was also the inventor of a brush making machine which revolutionized the brush making industry.

"After suffering for two years with pain in the back, and having tried all other remedies without obtaining any relief, I saw your advertisement of Rexall Mucu-Tone and got a sample. It did so much good that I kept using it. Several bottles effected a perfect cure, leaving no pain whatever. My husband, also, is a very hard man to get relief from pain, but nothing has cured him like Rexall.

Plaintiff Regrets Buying United States Shipbuilding Stock.

New York, Feb. 12.—A suit was instituted by Charles H. Kavanaugh of Waterford against a trust company in this city, a member of a law firm and an officer of another trust company, the three defendants being charged with conspiracy and fraud in connection with the sale of stock and bonds of the United States Shipbuilding company. The complaint says: "The plaintiff avers that many of the statements made in said prospectus and advertisements thus prepared by or under the direction of the defendants, in reliance on which plaintiff thus purchased said bonds and stock as aforesaid, were false and were known by the defendants to be false.

"On or about the month of June, 1902, with the intent to cheat and defraud the public and, among others, the plaintiff, the defendants fraudulently and corruptly entered into an agreement and conspiracy for the purpose of disposing of the bonds and stocks of the United States Shipbuilding company at a figure which they knew was much beyond their value."

Kavanaugh states that he suffered damages to the amount of $76,000. This is the first of up-state suits that have been threatened.

RIDDING UP DEBRIS

Baltimore Accomplishes Wonders in Way of Clearing Up the Streets.

MANY BANKS ARE REOPENED

Contracts Are Already Being Let for Construction of New Buildings to Replace Those That Have Been Burned—No Assistance Needed.

Baltimore, Feb. 12.—Today marked the most cheerful advance Baltimore has yet made in emerging from the dark cloud cast upon it by the great conflagration of last Sunday and Monday. An incident that inspired the whole community with tremendous confidence was the resumption of business by the banks, deposits being received and checks honored in the usual way.

The knowledge that Baltimore's terminal facilities are intact and that the grain elevators were not involved in the fiery tornado has also served to promote a popular conviction that the situation is not so dark as it has heretofore appeared. Indeed, the optimistic feeling is manifestly growing that the calamity, though harrowing in every detail, will give the city an opportunity to readjust itself on new and more modern plans and that a new city of imposing grandeur is to rise from the ruins of the old.

Magical Progress Made.

The progress which has been made in the work of clearing the debris from the streets in the burned district seems almost magical. Baltimore street, which at sunrise was a confused mass of rubbish, is practically clean, and likewise South street, one of the great banking thoroughfares. Hanover street, near where the fire started, was made passable for wagons, and Bratt street, a long avenue of trade, is clear of incumbrances all the way through. The city engineer's department, the building inspector and the street cleaning department all worked in conjunction No attempt was made to do more than to clear the streets from curb to curb, the debris being piled up on the sidewalks and back of the building line. Many dangerous walls which overhung the streets were pulled down. The most ambitious attempts at razing walls were on Liberty and Lombard streets. At each of these places there are hoisting engines with wire cables, which are fastened to a section of the toppling walls and then wound up on the spools. The Hurst building, in which the fire started, was pulled down.

Opening Safes and Vaults.

All through the financial district preparations are being made to open safes and vaults. Those of the German bank and the German Fire Insurance company were opened and the cash and books taken out uninjured. The vault of the Marine bank was opened and found intact. In no instance have the contents of any vault been seriously damaged.

The chamber of commerce has been exceedingly active in sending broadcast to every center of trade in this country and Europe the assurance that Baltimore is even now in condition to transact all shipping, grain and foreign trade and that all other lines of business will be restored to their normal channels within the next two or three months. The chamber of commerce announces that plans are nearly completed for the rebuilding of their $600,000 structure. Many merchants and manufacturers have signed contracts for rebuilding and there are on all sides the greatest signs of activity in this respect.

Didn't Have the Drivers.

The livery owners finally decided that they could get along without the "open shop" and a few other things and arbitrate the question of wages after they at first stubbornly refused to do so. Had they taken that stand at first the strike would not in all probability have been called; certainly it would not have been renewed after the truce following the Iroquois fire. The employers had everything in their favor, including the press and the public, but they did not have the drivers.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Whereas, There are citizens of the United States residing within the territories or dominions of each of the said belligerents and carrying on commerce, trade or other business or pursuits therein, protected by the faith of treaties; and

Whereas, There are subjects of each of the said belligerents residing within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States and carrying on commerce, trade or other business or pursuits therein, and

Whereas, The laws of the United States, without interfering with the free expression of opinion and sympathy, or with the open manufacture or sale of arms or ammunitions of war, nevertheless impose upon all persons who may be within their territory and jurisdiction the duty of an impartial neutrality during the existence of the contest; and

Whereas, It is the duty of a neutral government not to permit or suffer the making of its waters subservient to the purposes of war.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, in order to preserve the neutrality of the United Stathes and of their citizens and of persons within their territory and jurisdiction, and to enforce their laws, and in order that all persons, being warned of the general tenor of the laws and treaties of the United States in this behalf, and of the law of nations, may thus be prevented from an unintentional violation of the same, do hereby declare and proclaim that by the act passed on the 20th of April, A. D. 1818, commonly known as the "neutrality law," the acts therein prohibited are forbidden to be done, under severe penalties, within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States.

London, Feb. 12.—King Edward at a council held at Buckingham palace signed a proclamation declaring Great Britain's neutrality during the war between Russia and Japan.

Chicago Man Says He Forgets Bank Account of $700,000.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—On the ground that it might incriminate him, James S. Watson, formerly president of the Porter Brothers Fruit company, refused to say how he came in possession of more than $1,000,000 which he is said to have deposited in various banks to his personal account. In one instance Mr. Watson replied that he could not remember an account of $700,000 which he is said to have had with a Chicago bank.

Frederick G. Ranney, treasurer of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway company, testified that he had no vouchers showing that the railroad company had paid money to Mr. Watson. Mr. Ranney was instructed to make a further quest for vouchers and to appear at the hearing March 1.

EIGHT-HOUR BILL OPPOSED.

Attorney Refuses to Disclose the Names of His Clients.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Opposition was entered against pending eight-hour legislation before the house committee on labor by Daniel Davenport, an attorney of Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Davenport said he was the general agent of the American Anti-Boycott association. His ground of opposition was that eight-hour legislation was not wanted either by the employer or employe. It was, he said, socialistic legislation of the worst character.

Mr. Davenport declined to state the specific membership of the organization he represented, saying that it was necessarily a secret organization.

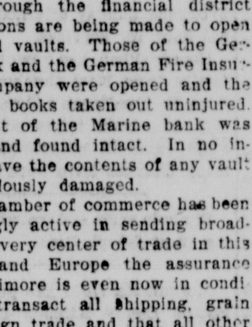
ALWAYS TIRED NEVER RESTED



To be tired out from hard work or bodily exercise is natural and rest is the remedy, but there is an exhaustion without physical exertion and a tired, never-rested feeling—a weariness without work that is unnatural and shows some serious disorder is threatening the health. One of the chief causes of that "Always-tired, never-rested condition" is impure blood and bad circulation. Unless the body is nourished with rich, pure blood there is lack of nervous force, the muscles become weak, the digestion impaired, and general disorder occurs throughout the system. Debility, insomnia, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, strength and energy, and the hundreds of little ailments we often have are due directly to a bad condition of the blood and circulation, and the quickest way to get rid of them is by purifying and building up the blood, and for this purpose no remedy equals S. S. S., which contains the best ingredients for cleansing the blood and toning up the system. It is a vegetable blood purifier and tonic combined, that enriches the blood, and through it the entire system is nourished and refreshing sleep comes to the tired, never-rested, body.

For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system. My cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic. Yours truly,

WHAT IS CATARRH—?

When we talk of "Catarrh" you must not think we mean only that form of catarrh which affects the nose and throat, and is very similar to a bad cold. Catarrh is a disease that attacks any part of the body, wherever the mucous membrane extends, and that is practically all over the entire system, for the mucous membrane is the delicate lining of all the organs of the body.

Catarrh is inflammation and congestion of the mucous membrane wherever located.

Consequently you can have catarrh in any part of the body. Your back may ache or you may have headaches, a disordered stomach or bladder trouble. Possibly there are no acute symptoms and you are merely run down and worn out—so miserable that you feel tired of life.

HEED NATURE'S WARNING.

All these are symptoms of catarrh. They are Nature's warning that some part of the mucous membranes has become inflamed and the little cells stopped up with poisonous secretions

Rexall Mucu-Tone was created to correct these unhealthy conditions.

PROMPT, HEALTHY STIMULATION

Mucu-Tone, working through the bloodvessels, is carried by them direct to the inflamed membranes. Here it drives out the poisons and allays the inflammation.

If you try Mucu-Tone for any of the troubles above described and it doesn't do what we claim, all you have to do is to say so and we will hand you back your money without question.

Sold only at our store.

SAYS MUCU-TONE SURELY CURES CATARRH.

"I feel as if every one who suffers from catarrhal affections should know of the merits of Mucu-Tone. It surely cures catarrh, as I can testify. I had for a long time been a sufferer from nasal and bronchial catarrh, and had tried local treatments and so-called catarrh cures without any lasting benefit. A friend of mine who had been cured of catarrh of the stomach by the use of Mucu-Tone urged me to try that remedy. As a result I am entirely cured not only of catarrh but of the debility which seems always more or less associated with the disease.

MAKES CHARGE OF FRAUD.

Plaintiff Regrets Buying United States Shipbuilding Stock.

New York, Feb. 12.—A suit was instituted by Charles H. Kavanaugh of Waterford against a trust company in this city, a member of a law firm and an officer of another trust company, the three defendants being charged with conspiracy and fraud in connection with the sale of stock and bonds of the United States Shipbuilding company. The complaint says: "The plaintiff avers that many of the statements made in said prospectus and advertisements thus prepared by or under the direction of the defendants, in reliance on which plaintiff thus purchased said bonds and stock as aforesaid, were false and were known by the defendants to be false.

"On or about the month of June, 1902, with the intent to cheat and defraud the public and, among others, the plaintiff, the defendants fraudulently and corruptly entered into an agreement and conspiracy for the purpose of disposing of the bonds and stocks of the United States Shipbuilding company at a figure which they knew was much beyond their value."

Kavanaugh states that he suffered damages to the amount of $76,000. This is the first of up-state suits that have been threatened.

RIDDING UP DEBRIS

Baltimore Accomplishes Wonders in Way of Clearing Up the Streets.

MANY BANKS ARE REOPENED

Contracts Are Already Being Let for Construction of New Buildings to Replace Those That Have Been Burned—No Assistance Needed.

Baltimore, Feb. 12.—Today marked the most cheerful advance Baltimore has yet made in emerging from the dark cloud cast upon it by the great conflagration of last Sunday and Monday. An incident that inspired the whole community with tremendous confidence was the resumption of business by the banks, deposits being received and checks honored in the usual way.

The knowledge that Baltimore's terminal facilities are intact and that the grain elevators were not involved in the fiery tornado has also served to promote a popular conviction that the situation is not so dark as it has heretofore appeared. Indeed, the optimistic feeling is manifestly growing that the calamity, though harrowing in every detail, will give the city an opportunity to readjust itself on new and more modern plans and that a new city of imposing grandeur is to rise from the ruins of the old.

Magical Progress Made.

The progress which has been made in the work of clearing the debris from the streets in the burned district seems almost magical. Baltimore street, which at sunrise was a confused mass of rubbish, is practically clean, and likewise South street, one of the great banking thoroughfares. Hanover street, near where the fire started, was made passable for wagons, and Bratt street, a long avenue of trade, is clear of incumbrances all the way through. The city engineer's department, the building inspector and the street cleaning department all worked in conjunction. No attempt was made to do more than to clear the streets from curb to curb, the debris being piled up on the sidewalks and back of the building line. Many dangerous walls which overhung the streets were pulled down. The most ambitious attempts at razing walls were on Liberty and Lombard streets. At each of these places there are hoisting engines with wire cables, which are fastened to a section of the toppling walls and then wound up on the spools. The Hurst building, in which the fire started, was pulled down.

Opening Safes and Vaults.

All through the financial district preparations are being made to open safes and vaults. Those of the German bank and the German Fire Insurance company were opened and the cash and books taken out uninjured. The vault of the Marine bank was opened and found intact. In no instance have the contents of any vault been seriously damaged.

The chamber of commerce has been exceedingly active in sending broadcast to every center of trade in this country and Europe the assurance that Baltimore is even now in condition to transact all shipping, grain and foreign trade and that all other lines of business will be restored to their normal channels within the next two or three months. The chamber of commerce announces that plans are nearly completed for the rebuilding of their $600,000 structure. Many merchants and manufacturers have signed contracts for rebuilding and there are on all sides the greatest signs of activity in this respect.

Didn't Have the Drivers.

The livery owners finally decided that they could get along without the "open shop" and a few other things and arbitrate the question of wages after they at first stubbornly refused to do so. Had they taken that stand at first the strike would not in all probability have been called; certainly it would not have been renewed after the truce following the Iroquois fire. The employers had everything in their favor, including the press and the public, but they did not have the drivers.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

President Issues Proclamation of Neutrality in Russo-Japanese War.

SALE OF ARMS NOT FORBIDDEN

Use of Harbors of the United States by Belligerents Prohibited—Citizens Cautioned to Observe Neutrality Act Passed in 1818.

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Roosevelt has issued the following proclamation declaring the neutrality of this government in the Russo-Japanese war:

Whereas, A state of war unhappily exists between Japan on the one side and Russia on the other side; and

Whereas, The United States are on terms of friendship and amity with both the contending powers and with the persons inhabiting their several dominions; and

Whereas, There are citizens of the United States residing within the territories or dominions of each of the said belligerents and carrying on commerce, trade or other business or pursuits therein, protected by the faith of treaties; and

Whereas, There are subjects of each of the said belligerents residing within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States and carrying on commerce, trade or other business or pursuits therein, and

Whereas, The laws of the United States, without interfering with the free expression of opinion and sympathy, or with the open manufacture or sale of arms or ammunitions of war, nevertheless impose upon all persons who may be within their territory and jurisdiction the duty of an impartial neutrality during the existence of the contest; and

Whereas, It is the duty of a neutral government not to permit or suffer the making of its waters subservient to the purposes of war.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, in order to preserve the neutrality of the United Stathes and of their citizens and of persons within their territory and jurisdiction, and to enforce their laws, and in order that all persons, being warned of the general tenor of the laws and treaties of the United States in this behalf, and of the law of nations, may thus be prevented from an unintentional violation of the same, do hereby declare and proclaim that by the act passed on the 20th of April, A. MAKES CHARGE OF FRAUD.

Plaintiff Regrets Buying United States Shipbuilding Stock.

New York, Feb. 12.—A suit was instituted by Charles H. Kavanaugh of Waterford against a trust company in this city, a member of a law firm and an officer of another trust company, the three defendants being charged with conspiracy and fraud in connection with the sale of stock and bonds of the United States Shipbuilding company. The complaint says: "The plaintiff avers that many of the statements made in said prospectus and advertisements thus prepared by or under the direction of the defendants, in reliance on which plaintiff thus purchased said bonds and stock as aforesaid, were false and were known by the defendants to be false.

"On or about the month of June, 1902, with the intent to cheat and defraud the public and, among others, the plaintiff, the defendants fraudulently and corruptly entered into an agreement and conspiracy for the purpose of disposing of the bonds and stocks of the United States Shipbuilding company at a figure which they knew was much beyond their value."

Kavanaugh states that he suffered damages to the amount of $76,000. This is the first of up-state suits that have been threatened.

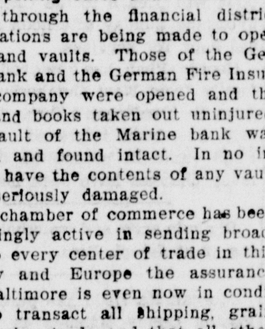
ALWAYS TIRED NEVER RESTED



To be tired out from hard work or bodily exercise is natural and rest is the remedy, but there is an exhaustion without physical exertion and a tired, never-rested feeling—a weariness without work that is unnatural and shows some serious disorder is threatening the health. One of the chief causes of that "Always-tired, never-rested condition" is impure blood and bad circulation. Unless the body is nourished with rich, pure blood there is lack of nervous force, the muscles become weak, the digestion impaired, and general disorder occurs throughout the system. Debility, insomnia, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, strength and energy, and the hundreds of little ailments we often have are due directly to a bad condition of the blood and circulation, and the quickest way to get rid of them is by purifying and building up the blood, and for this purpose no remedy equals S. S. S., which contains the best ingredients for cleansing the blood and toning up the system. It is a vegetable blood purifier and tonic combined, that enriches the blood, and through it the entire system is nourished and refreshing sleep comes to the tired, never-rested, body.

For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system. My cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic. Yours truly,

MRS. JOSIE A. BRITTAIN.

RIDDING UP DEBRIS

Baltimore Accomplishes Wonders in Way of Clearing Up the Streets.

MANY BANKS ARE REOPENED

Contracts Are Already Being Let for Construction of New Buildings to Replace Those That Have Been Burned—No Assistance Needed.

Baltimore, Feb. 12.—Today marked the most cheerful advance Baltimore has yet made in emerging from the dark cloud cast upon it by the great conflagration of last Sunday and Monday. An incident that inspired the whole community with tremendous confidence was the resumption of business by the banks, deposits being received and checks honored in the usual way.

The knowledge that Baltimore's terminal facilities are intact and that the grain elevators were not involved in the fiery tornado has also served to promote a popular conviction that the situation is not so dark as it has heretofore appeared. Indeed, the optimistic feeling is manifestly growing that the calamity, though harrowing in every detail, will give the city an opportunity to readjust itself on new and more modern plans and that a new city of imposing grandeur is to rise from the ruins of the old.

Magical Progress Made.

The progress which has been made in the work of clearing the debris from the streets in the burned district seems almost magical. Baltimore street, which at sunrise was a confused mass of rubbish, is practically clean, and likewise South street, one of the great banking thoroughfares. Hanover street, near where the fire started, was made passable for wagons, and Bratt street, a long avenue of trade, is clear of incumbrances all the way through. The city engineer's department, the building inspector and the street cleaning department all worked in conjunction No attempt was made to do more than to clear the streets from curb to curb, the debris being piled up on the sidewalks and back of the building line. Many dangerous walls which overhung the streets were pulled down. The most ambitious attempts at razing walls were on Liberty and Lombard streets. At each of these places there are hoisting engines with wire cables, which are fastened to a section of the toppling walls and then wound up on the spools. The Hurst building, in which the fire started, was pulled down.

Opening Safes and Vaults.

All through the financial district preparations are being made to open safes and vaults. Those of the German bank and the German Fire Insurance company were opened and the cash and books taken out uninjured. The vault of the Marine bank was opened and found intact. In no instance have the contents of any vault been seriously damaged.

The chamber of commerce has been exceedingly active in sending broadcast to every center of trade in this country and Europe the assurance that Baltimore is even now in condition to transact all shipping, grain and foreign trade and that all other lines of business will be restored to their normal channels within the next two or three months. The chamber of commerce announces that plans are nearly completed for the rebuilding of their $600,000 structure. Many merchants and manufacturers have signed contracts for rebuilding and there are on all sides the greatest signs of activity in this respect.

Didn't Have the Drivers.

The livery owners finally decided that they could get along without the "open shop" and a few other things and arbitrate the question of wages after they at first stubbornly refused to do so. Had they taken that stand at first the strike would not in all probability have been called; certainly it would not have been renewed after the truce following the Iroquois fire. The employers had everything in their favor, including the press and the public, but they did not have the drivers.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

President Issues Proclamation of Neutrality in Russo-Japanese War.

SALE OF ARMS NOT FORBIDDEN

Use of Harbors of the United States by Belligerents Prohibited—Citizens Cautioned to Observe Neutrality Act Passed in 1818.

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Roosevelt has issued the following proclamation declaring the neutrality of this government in the Russo-Japanese war:

Whereas, A state of war unhappily exists between Japan on the one side and Russia on the other side; and

Whereas, The United States are on terms of friendship and amity with both the contending powers and with the persons inhabiting their several dominions; and

Whereas, There are citizens of the United States residing within the territories or dominions of each of the said belligerents and carrying on commerce, trade or other business or pursuits therein, protected by the faith of treaties; and

Whereas, There are subjects of each of the said belligerents residing within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States and carrying on commerce, trade or other business or pursuits therein, and

Whereas, The laws of the United States, without interfering with the free expression of opinion and sympathy, or with the open manufacture or sale of arms or ammunitions of war, nevertheless impose upon all persons who may be within their territory and jurisdiction the duty of an impartial neutrality during the existence of the contest; and

Whereas, It is the duty of a neutral government not to permit or suffer the making of its waters subservient to the purposes of war.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, in order to preserve the neutrality of the United Stathes and of their citizens and of persons within their territory and jurisdiction, and to enforce their laws, and in order that all persons, being warned of the general tenor of the laws and treaties of the United States in this behalf, and of the law of nations, may thus be prevented from an unintentional violation of the same, do hereby declare and proclaim that by the act passed on the 20th of April, A. D. 1818, commonly known as the "neutrality law," the acts therein prohibited are forbidden to be done, under severe penalties, within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States.

HAD POOR MEMORY.

Chicago Man Says He Forgets Bank Account of $700,000.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—On the ground that it might incriminate him, James S. Watson, formerly president of the Porter Brothers Fruit company, refused to say how he came in possession of more than $1,000,000 which he is said to have deposited in various banks to his personal account. In one instance Mr. Watson replied that he could not remember an account of $700,000 which he is said to have had with a Chicago bank.

Frederick G. Ranney, treasurer of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway company, testified that he had no vouchers showing that the railroad company had paid money to Mr. Watson. Mr. Ranney was instructed to make a further quest for vouchers and to appear at the hearing March 1.

EIGHT-HOUR BILL OPPOSED.

Attorney Refuses to Disclose the Names of His Clients.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Opposition was entered against pending eight-hour legislation before the house committee on labor by Daniel Davenport, an attorney of Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Davenport said he was the general agent of the American Anti-Boycott association. His ground of opposition was that eight-hour legislation was not wanted either by the employer or employe. It was, he said, socialistic legislation of the worst character.

Mr. Davenport declined to state the specific membership of the organization he represented, saying that it was necessarily a secret organization.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be warded off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children, for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. Sold by Alvin H Bulger.

NEW TOWN HALL AND CITY JAIL

Committee of Investigation Says It Will Cost But $1,200 And Is Necessary.

Chester is to have a new jail and town hall. The present structure is neither safe nor is it large enough for the needs of the growing town. There has been some objection to the move on the part of certain persons, but by far the greater number approve of the action of the council, and the building will be commenced within a few weeks.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the town council to investigate the probable cost of the building, has been active within the past few days, and the result of their labors will be made known at the next meeting. One of the members of the committee said to a News Review reporter this morningn:

"The whole cost of the proposed new jail and city building will not exceed $1,200. We believe the work can be done for much less than that amount, but I do not want to be misleading. The figures have been gone over very carefully, the prices of materials have been secured and if the authorities who will superintend the work of erecting the building are careful the expense will not run over $1,000. Our committee believes it can be done for that amount and every item will be watched in order to keep down the cost.

"I am at a loss to know how the opponents of the scheme arrived at the concluson that the council proposed to add other cells to those already in use. Such a thing was never thought of. The cell room now available is thought to be sufficient for present demands, but the members of council do not believe the jail is safe as it is arranged. In case a fire should break out while a prisoner was confined in the jail, the town would undoubtedly be liable for damages. This, and other phases of the question, have been carefully weighed by the council and its committee, so the citizens of Chester can depend upon it that the project will go through."

Charged With Fighting.

Special Officer Prosser arrested Logan Wallace and William Gill yesterday, charging them with fighting. The young men, it seems, have both been keeping company with the same girl, and recently the rivalry has become so warm that it was hard to avoid a fight. Wallace appeared to have been the aggressor, and when arraigned before Mayor Mercer was fined $9.60. He had no money, but security was furnished, and he was released.

Poverty Social.

Arrangements are being made for a poverty social to be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Missionary society of the Presbyterian church of Chester. The affair will be held at Bloom's hall on Tuesday evening of next week and elaborate preparations are under way for the entertainment. A number of interesting features are being arranged by the ladies, and the attendance promises to be large.

Going Back to Wales.

Within the next few days the Chester plant of the American Tin Plate company wil lose two of its best and most skillful workmen. J. H. Evans and Harry Herbert have decided to try their luck in the old country, and will leave next week for Blenhoven, Monmouthshire, Wales, where they have engaged for a year to work in the sheet mills at that town. They are skilled mechanics, and with their long experience in the mills of both Europe and America will undoubtedly make a success of the venture.

Meetings Growing in Interest.

The meetings at the U. P. church in Chester have been very well attended. J. M. Streator preached a very interesting sermon last evening on saving faith. His illustrations from the old testament were very clear and comprehensive. He showed that all faith was of a historical character and that it rested on evidence either human or divine. He will preach this evening on sowing and reaping.

An Enjoyable Party.

A very enjoyable party was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harland Stewart, two ane one-half miles back of Chester. About 50 persons attended the function which was participated in by the young people. A large number of the guests were from Chester, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Epidemic of Grip.

An epidemic of grip has broken out among the Poles residing in shanties up Middle run. There are more than a score of the foreigners quartered in the same district, and more than half of them are confined to the house by the disease. The men are employed at the tin mill.

NEW TOWN HALL AND CITY JAIL

Committee of Investigation Says It Will Cost But $1,200 And Is Necessary.

Chester is to have a new jail and town hall. The present structure is neither safe nor is it large enough for the needs of the growing town. There has been some objection to the move on the part of certain persons, but by far the greater number approve of the action of the council, and the building will be commenced within a few weeks.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the town council to investigate the probable cost of the building, has been active within the past few days, and the result of their labors will be made known at the next meeting. One of the members of the committee said to a News Review reporter this morningn:

"The whole cost of the proposed new jail and city building will not exceed $1,200. We believe the work can be done for much less than that amount, but I do not want to be misleading. The figures have been gone over very carefully, the prices of materials have been secured and if the authorities who will superintend the work of erecting the building are careful the expense will not run over $1,000. Our committee believes it can be done for that amount and every item will be watched in order to keep down the cost.

"I am at a loss to know how the opponents of the scheme arrived at the conclusion that the council proposed to add other cells to those already in use. Such a thing was never thought of. The cell room now available is thought to be sufficient for present demands, but the members of council do not believe the jail is safe as it is arranged. In case a fire should break out while a prisoner was confined in the jail, the town would undoubtedly be liable for damages. This, and other phases of the question, have been carefully weighed by the council and its committee, so the citizens of Chester can depend upon it that the project will go through."

21ST YEAR. NO. 36. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1904. TWO CENTS.

PAINFUL PERIODS

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to have been the plan of nature that woman should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition which produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. Thousands have been cured by so doing, and by the use of

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine that helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like another person since. I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have added 12 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy."
—MISS AGNES MILLER, 25 Potomac Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial."

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine."—MRS. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., President Household Economics Club.

A BIG BATCH OF NEW BILLS

Grist That Has Been Poured Into the Legislative Hopper at Columbus.

POLLUTION OF STREAMS

A Matter Which It Is Sought to Remedy—Senator Houck Would Prevent Drunkards And Imbeciles from Marrying—Other Measures.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Senator Harvey has introduced in the senate a bill authorizing the governor to appoint a commission of three to confer with state and federal authorities with a view of abating and preventing the pollution of Ohio streams and lakes.

Senator Houck introduced his bill amending the marriage laws. The bill provides that all "license to marry shall be obtained from a probate judge in the county where the female resides. No license shall be granted where either of the parties, applicants therefore, is imbecile, insane or a habitual drunkard or who at the time of making application for said license is under the influence of any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug."

Senator Ricketts introduced a bill by request, a bill which provides for the disposition of property when there are no heirs by consanguinity or affinity. The bill provides that the property may pass to the heirs of adopted children instead of the state.

Two bills by Senator Heinlein will attract general interest. The first conveys to street railway companies already in existence the power of appropriating private property when necessary to avoid difficult grades or shorten lines. The second seeks to abolish common law marriages.

Senator Dunlap, at the request of the Ohio Live Stock association, introduced a bill providing for the appropriation by the state of $25,000 for the purpose of making a suitable live stock exhibit at the St. Louis exposition.

A bill introduced by Senator Kinsman seeks to hold electric light rents furnished by cities as a lien on the property.

A new bill by Senator Schumaker provides for the government and location of law libraries by taking from the judge and giving to the county commissioners power to furnish suitable rooms in court houses for such libraries.

Senator Crites introduced at the request of the township trustees' organization of the state the bill abolishing township road supervisors and the two days' work or poll tax.

Medical students who matriculated after January 1, 1900, must take the state examination. The house so decided Wednesday afternoon after an hour's argument.

Representative Kimball, of Lake, introduced a bill to increase the salary of the state dairy and food commissioner from $2,000 to $4,000.

The house passed and made half a law of the Carle bill providing that cities may fix the rate to be charged for water by private water companies.

IS A LEGAL CONTRACT

Druggist Reed's Bond That Mi-o-na Costs Nothing Unless It Cures Dyspepsia and Increases Weight.

When you get a box of Mi-o-na, the flesh-forming food, from Will Reed, he will give you a signed bond to refund the money unless it cures dyspepsia and increases weight.

The money is simply on deposit with Will Reed and does not become his until you acknowledge that Mi-o-na has helped you. It is just as safe in his hands as in the First National Bank. He gives you his signed bond that is a legal contract, to pay back every penny that Mi-o-na has cost you, in case it does not do all that is claimed for it. The regular sized box sells for only 50c.

Mi-o-na possesses healing and soothing qualities that make it specially valuable in cases of chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. It mingles with the food you eat, aids its assimilation, tones up and strengthens the digestive organs, makes rich, red blood, builds up the wasted and emaciated form, and restores health and strength to the whole system.

Remember that in beginning the use of Mi-o-na, you do not risk a penny. Druggist Reed's written guarantee is an absolute protection and even though you should lose it, he will return your money without question and without argument should Mi-o-na fail to give perfect satisfaction.

Improved Coal Chutes.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A force of C. & P. workmen have been busy raising the coaling chutes located at the Slope mine here. It was found necessary to raise the chutes owing to the fact that in coaling the large engines the coal did not drop rapidly into the tenders, thus losing much time in coaling. It was also found that when the tenders were well filled with coal it would not all drop out of the apron, thus compelling those in charge to shovel it out. The whole building was raised about 14 inches and the work took a large force of men several days.

Site For New Block.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A deal has been consummated whereby George Troupe, who owns a half interest in the building occupied by John S. Duncan's hardware store sold out to his partner, Robert Madison. The building, while not valuable itself, is probably the best located lot in the village. It is rumored that a fine business block is to be erected on the spot. The building formerly belonged to the Ohio Savings company, of East Liverpool.

BOWERY BRANCH OF THE Y. M. C. A.

An Organization That Has Existed 32 Years in the Metropolis.

ALL CONDITIONS OF MEN

Were Entertained And Fed Last Year, 20 Per Cent Being College Graduates—Self-Respect Is Fostered. Timely Help Saves Many.

While every Young Men's Christian association is doing more or less in a quiet way to help men in straightened circumstances to better their ways, it does not advertise itself as an eleemosinary institution. If it did the men of self respect would steer clear of it and the "bums" would steer straight for it. The association is always ready to lend a helping hand to the man having a hard pull and who has not found his place and work. The New York city associations found long ago that the streams of men coming to the city with great expectations and small pocket books, and many others who through foolishness or worse, were stranded, demanded their help in larger numbers than they were able to care for. So 32 years ago the Bowery Branch was formed especially for destitute men.

Morris K Jesup, who was then president of the association, suggested the founding of this branch and has since been one of its largest supporters. Robert R. McBurney, the first general secretary of the country at old Twenty-third street, kept his membership in this Branch, out of his deep interest and big-hearted Irish sympathy with men who were down on their luck and needed a boost or encouragement from Christian men to put them on their feet. Last year 3,068 men were entertained in the Branch, the average stay being eight days. Employment was found for 1,364 of them. There are 79 beds in the dormitories which are strictly clean and comfortable. Here a man without means may be entertained for a week or so, free of cost, until he secures a position, then, if he will, he may make a full payment for this courtesy shown him.

A man's self-respect is thus maintained. In the restaurant meals of good wholesome food are served at five cents each, for which he pays, if he is able. Last year 18,000 meals were served, over half of which were paid for by the men. Seven hundred are thus fed daily at a very small cost. Board is provided at $2.50 a week. On Thanksgiving day, a free dinner was given to 480 men. Every man who comes to the house is met by the secretary or one of his assistants, who has a frank talk with him about his ability and condition. A large amount of worn clothing is quietly supplied those whose wardrobes need to be replenished to make them presentable and enhance the possibility of securing employment. In the course of a year hundreds of garments are sent in by men who prefer to give away their partly worn clothing than to sell it for a song to a second-hand dealer. Men's clothing of all sorts is constantly needed. A man can find no better satisfaction these cold days than to thus put an unfortunate fellow in the way of securing comfort and obtaining a position.

It is interesting to note that 20 per cent of the 3,068 men who were entertained in 1903 were college and university men. Over 200 different professions and trades were represented and one-third of the number were skilled mechanics, and 59 professional men. Many of them came to the Branch in reduced circumstances because of sickness or accident, business depression or loss of work, and very many of course, from dissipation, failure in business, domestic trouble and gambling. Over 300 had been employed five years, and over 600 from three to five years and 55 per cent were under 35 years of age. 84 per cent were single men, 29 per cent were Roman Catholics and two per cent Hebrews. Very many of the number were found to need medical care and were sent to the hospitals, and on their dismissal found employment.

Every evening in the week a religious service is held. Here is the greatest factor in bringing courage to a man and putting him in the way of redeeming his life. The secretary, while having all sympathy with a man, he is not at all hesitant to talk straight with a man about dissipation and to honestly search out the causes of his failures. The secretary met and had such talks with 2,360 men in the past year.

Letters are being constantly received from men who have received the timely help the association has been able to give them at the Bowery Branch. Some of these men are in the Christian ministry, others are prominent in business, and hundreds have regained their foothold and taken their place as honorable members of society.

The Branch is seeking to erect a building which would be ten stories, and cost about $300,000. In this five hundred small rooms would be provided to be rented at $1.50 a week. There will be social rooms, baths, bowling alleys, parlors, amusement rooms, and a large restaurant capable of serving 3,000 meals a day. The chairman of the committee, J. Frederick Talcott, and the treasurer, Hammond Odell, 35 Naussau street, who with their associates, are confident that this branch which has demonstrated its usefulness to men for 30 years, and rendered an immeasurable service to stranded men on the Bowery, should be provided with adequate facilities.

Everybody's liable to itching piles. Rich and poor, old and young—terrible the torture they suffer. Only one sure cure. Doan's Ointment. Absolutely safe; can't fail.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. "I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. A BIG BATCH OF NEW BILLS

Grist That Has Been Poured Into the Legislative Hopper at Columbus.

A Matter Which It Is Sought to Remedy—Senator Houck Would Prevent Drunkards And Imbeciles from Marrying—Other Measures.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Senator Harvey has introduced in the senate a bill authorizing the governor to appoint a commission of three to confer with state and federal authorities with a view of abating and preventing the pollution of Ohio streams and lakes.

Senator Houck introduced his bill amending the marriage laws. The bill provides that all "license to marry shall be obtained from a probate judge in the county where the female resides. No license shall be granted where either of the parties, applicants therefore, is imbecile, insane or a habitual drunkard or who at the time of making application for said license is under the influence of any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug."

Senator Ricketts introduced a bill by request, a bill which provides for the disposition of property when there are no heirs by consanguinity or affinity. The bill provides that the property may pass to the heirs of adopted children instead of the state.

Two bills by Senator Heinlein will attract general interest. The first conveys to street railway companies already in existence the power of appropriating private property when necessary to avoid difficult grades or shorten lines. The second seeks to abolish common law marriages.

Senator Dunlap, at the request of the Ohio Live Stock association, introduced a bill providing for the appropriation by the state of $25,000 for the purpose of making a suitable live stock exhibit at the St. Louis exposition.

A bill introduced by Senator Kinsman seeks to hold electric light rents furnished by cities as a lien on the property.

A new bill by Senator Schumaker provides for the government and location of law libraries by taking from the judge and giving to the county commissioners power to furnish suitable rooms in court houses for such libraries.

Senator Crites introduced at the request of the township trustees' organization of the state the bill abolishing township road supervisors and the two days' work or poll tax.

Medical students who matriculated after January 1, 1900, must take the state examination. The house so decided Wednesday afternoon after an hour's argument.

Representative Kimball, of Lake, introduced a bill to increase the salary of the state dairy and food commissioner from $2,000 to $4,000.

The house passed and made half a law of the Carle bill providing that cities may fix the rate to be charged for water by private water companies.

IS A LEGAL CONTRACT

Druggist Reed's Bond That Mi-o-na Costs Nothing Unless It Cures Dyspepsia and Increases Weight.

When you get a box of Mi-o-na, the flesh-forming food, from Will Reed, he will give you a signed bond to refund the money unless it cures dyspepsia and increases weight.

The money is simply on deposit with Will Reed and does not become his until you acknowledge that Mi-o-na has helped you. It is just as safe in his hands as in the First National Bank. He gives you his signed bond that is a legal contract, to pay back every penny that Mi-o-na has cost you, in case it does not do all that is claimed for it. The regular sized box sells for only 50c.

Mi-o-na possesses healing and soothing qualities that make it specially valuable in cases of chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. It mingles with the food you eat, aids its assimilation, tones up and strengthens the digestive organs, makes rich, red blood, builds up the wasted and emaciated form, and restores health and strength to the whole system.

Remember that in beginning the use of Mi-o-na, you do not risk a penny. Druggist Reed's written guarantee is an absolute protection and even though you should lose it, he will return your money without question and without argument should Mi-o-na fail to give perfect satisfaction.

Improved Coal Chutes.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A force of C. & P. workmen have been busy raising the coaling chutes located at the Slope mine here. It was found necessary to raise the chutes owing to the fact that in coaling the large engines the coal did not drop rapidly into the tenders, thus losing much time in coaling. It was also found that when the tenders were well filled with coal it would not all drop out of the apron, thus compelling those in charge to shovel it out. The whole building was raised about 14 inches and the work took a large force of men several days.

Site For New Block.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A deal has been consummated whereby George Troupe, who owns a half interest in the building occupied by John S. Duncan's hardware store sold out to his partner, Robert Madison. The building, while not valuable itself, is probably the best located lot in the village. It is rumored that a fine business block is to be erected on the spot. The building formerly belonged to the Ohio Savings company, of East Liverpool.

BOWERY BRANCH OF THE Y. M. C. A.

An Organization That Has Existed 32 Years in the Metropolis.

ALL CONDITIONS OF MEN

Were Entertained And Fed Last Year, 20 Per Cent Being College Graduates—Self-Respect Is Fostered. Timely Help Saves Many.

While every Young Men's Christian association is doing more or less in a quiet way to help men in straightened circumstances to better their ways, it does not advertise itself as an eeleomosinary institution. If it did the men of self respect would steer clear of it and the "bums" would steer straight for it. The association is always ready to lend a helping hand to the man having a hard pull and who has not found his place and work. The New York city associations found long ago that the streams of men coming to the city with great expectations and small pocket books, and many others who through foolishness or worse, were stranded, demanded their help in larger numbers than they were able to care for. So 32 years ago the Bowery Branch was formed especially for destitute men.

Morris K. Jesup, who was then president of the association, suggested the founding of this branch and has since been one of its largest supporters. Robert R. McBurney, the first general secretary of the country at old Twenty-third street, kept his membership in this Branch, out of his deep interest and big-hearted Irish sympathy with men who were down on their luck and needed a boost or encouragement from Christian men to put them on their feet. Last year 3,068 men were entertained in the Branch, the average stay being eight days. Employment was found for 1,364 of them. There are 79 beds in the dormitories which are strictly clean and comfortable. Here a man without means may be entertained for a week or so, free of cost, until he secures a position, then, if he will, he may make a full payment for this courtesy shown him.

A man's self-respect is thus maintained. In the restaurant meals of good wholesome food are served at five cents each, for which he pays, if he is able. Last year 18,000 meals were served, over half of which were paid for by the men. Seven hundred are thus fed daily at a very small cost. Board is provided at $2.50 a week. On Thanksgiving day, a free dinner was given to 480 men. Every man who comes to the house is met by the secretary or one of his assistants, who has a frank talk with him about his ability and condition. A large amount of worn clothing is quietly supplied those whose wardrobes need to be replenished to make them presentable and enhance the possibility of securing employment. In the course of a year hundreds of garments are sent in by men who prefer to give away their partly worn clothing than to sell it for a song to a second-hand dealer. Men's clothing of all sorts is constantly needed. A man can find no better satisfaction these cold days than to thus put an unfortunate fellow in the way of securing comfort and obtaining a position.

It is interesting to note that 20 per cent of the 3,068 men who were entertained in 1903 were college and university men. Over 200 different professions and trades were represented and one-third of the number were skilled mechanics, and 59 professional men. Many of them came to the Branch in reduced circumstances because of sickness or accident, business depression or loss of work, and very many of course, from dissipation, failure in business, domestic trouble and gambling. Over 300 had been employed five years, and over 600 from three to five years and 55 per cent were under 35 years of age, 84 per cent were single men, 29 per cent were Roman Catholics and two per cent Hebrews. Very many of the number were found to need medical care and were sent to the hospitals, and on their dismissal found employment.

Every evening in the week a religious service is held. Here is the greatest factor in bringing courage to a man and putting him in the way of redeeming his life. The secretary, while having all sympathy with a man, he is not at all hesitant to talk straight with a man about dissipation and to honestly search out the causes of his failures. The secretary met and had such talks with 2,360 men in the past year.

Frederick Talcott, and the treasurer, Hammond Odell, 35 Naussau street, who with their associates, are confident that this branch which has demonstrated its usefulness to men for 30 years, and rendered an immeasurable service to stranded men on the Bowery, should be provided with adequate facilities.

It was found necessary to raise the chutes owing to the fact that in coaling the large engines the coal did not drop rapidly into the tenders, thus losing much time in coaling. It was also found that when the tenders were well filled with coal it would not all drop out of the apron, thus compelling those in charge to shovel it out. The whole building was raised about 14 inches and the work took a large force of men several days.

Site For New Block.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A deal has been consummated whereby George Troupe, who owns a half interest in the building occupied by John S. Duncan's hardware store sold out to his partner, Robert Madison. The building, while not valuable itself, is probably the best located lot in the village. It is rumored that a fine business block is to be erected on the spot. The building formerly belonged to the Ohio Savings company, of East Liverpool.

BOWERY BRANCH OF THE Y. M. C. A.

An Organization That Has Existed 32 Years in the Metropolis.

ALL CONDITIONS OF MEN

Were Entertained And Fed Last Year, 20 Per Cent Being College Graduates—Self-Respect Is Fostered. Timely Help Saves Many.

While every Young Men's Christian association is doing more or less in a quiet way to help men in straightened circumstances to better their ways, it does not advertise itself as an eeleomosinary institution. If it did the men of self respect would steer clear of it and the "bums" would steer straight for it. The association is always ready to lend a helping hand to the man having a hard pull and who has not found his place and work. The New York city associations found long ago that the streams of men coming to the city with great expectations and small pocket books, and many others who through foolishness or worse, were stranded, demanded their help in larger numbers than they were able to care for. So 32 years ago the Bowery Branch was formed especially for destitute men.

Morris K Jesup, who was then president of the association, suggested the founding of this branch and has since been one of its largest supporters. Robert R. McBurney, the first general secretary of the country at old Twenty-third street, kept his membership in this Branch, out of his deep interest and big-hearted Irish sympathy with men who were down on their luck and needed a boost or encouragement from Christian men to put them on their feet. Last year 3,068 men were entertained in the Branch, the average stay being eight days. Employment was found for 1,364 of them. There are 79 beds in the dormitories which are strictly clean and comfortable. Here a man without means may be entertained for a week or so, free of cost, until he secures a position, then, if he will, he may make a full payment for this courtesy shown him.

A man's self-respect is thus maintained. In the restaurant meals of good wholesome food are served at five cents each, for which he pays, if he is able. Last year 18,000 meals were served, over half of which were paid for by the men. Seven hundred are thus fed daily at a very small cost. Board is provided at $2.50 a week. On Thanksgiving day, a free dinner was given to 480 men. Every man who comes to the house is met by the secretary or one of his assistants, who has a frank talk with him about his ability and condition. A large amount of worn clothing is quietly supplied those whose wardrobes need to be replenished to make them presentable and enhance the possibility of securing employment. In the course of a year hundreds of garments are sent in by men who prefer to give away their partly worn clothing than to sell it for a song to a second-hand dealer. Men's clothing of all sorts is constantly needed. A man can find no better satisfaction these cold days than to thus put an unfortunate fellow in the way of securing comfort and obtaining a position.

It is interesting to note that 20 per cent of the 3,068 men who were entertained in 1903 were college and university men. Over 200 different professions and trades were represented and one-third of the number were skilled mechanics, and 59 professional men. Many of them came to the Branch in reduced circumstances because of sickness or accident, business depression or loss of work, and very many of course, from dissipation, failure in business, domestic trouble and gambling. Over 300 had been employed five years, and over 600 from three to five years and 55 per cent were under 35 years of age, 84 per cent were single men, 29 per cent were Roman Catholics and two per cent Hebrews. Very many of the number were found to need medical care and were sent to the hospitals, and on their dismissal found employment.

Every evening in the week a religious service is held. Here is the greatest factor in bringing courage to a man and putting him in the way of redeeming his life. The secretary, while having all sympathy with a man, he is not at all hesitant to talk straight with a man about dissipation and to honestly search out the causes of his failures. The secretary met and had such talks with 2,360 men in the past year.

Letters are being constantly received from men who have received the timely help the association has been able to give them at the Bowery Branch. Some of these men are in the Christian ministry, others are prominent in business, and hundreds have regained their foothold and taken their place as honorable members of society.

The Branch is seeking to erect a building which would be ten stories, and cost about $300,000. In this five hundred small rooms would be provided to be rented at $1.50 a week. There will be social rooms, baths, bowling alleys, parlors, amusement rooms, and a large restaurant capable of serving 3,000 meals a day. The chairman of the committee, J. Frederick Talcott, and the treasurer, Hammond Odell, 35 Naussau street, who with their associates, are confident that this branch which has demonstrated its usefulness to men for 30 years, and rendered an immeasurable service to stranded men on the Bowery, should be provided with adequate facilities.

Everybody's liable to itching piles. Rich and poor, old and young—terrible the torture they suffer. Only one sure cure. Doan's Ointment. Absolutely safe; can't fail.

Fortunes In Valentines

By SEATON LORD

NONE of the many iconoclasts who have been shattering the cherished traditions of our romantic youth has yet succeeded in extinguishing the cult of St. Valentine. Prosaic professors have proved that William Tell did not shoot the apple from the head of his son, that George Washington did not convert the cherry tree into firewood with his little hatchet, that the commander of the Old Guard never cast his famed defiance into the teeth of the British conquerors, but they cannot make us believe that the Roman martyr of blessed memory does not still exert a beneficent influence on affairs of the heart.

We continue to dust off our rhyming dictionaries as the ides of February approach and with paste pot, scissors and cardboard manufacture weird symbols of undying affection, to intrust them for safe delivery to St. Valentine's priest, the postman, meanwhile praying the saint himself to kindle fires of reciprocal love in the bosoms of their recipients. And while we are thus engrossed great factories are turning out for those of less imagination or less leisure hundreds of thousands of erotic epistles varied in sentiment and costliness to suit the tastes and pocketbooks of the modest maiden and the ardent swain, the wealthy suitor and the impecunious.

Massachusetts, the home of statesmen and men of letters, where love, like everything else, is taken seriously, is fittingly the center of the valentine industry. As long ago as 1848 Miss Esther Howland, just out of college, added a few handmade valentines to the stock of her father's bookstore in Worcester. They were quickly snapped up. Some found their way to New York, and demands for many more came in. Mr. Howland bought lithographs and embossed paper and set four girls to work tying ribbons and frills and cutting out sheets, while his young son traveled the country in search of orders. Then enamel pictures were imported from Germany, and dies were made to do quickly the cutting which had been done laboriously with scissors. Before Miss Howland knew what was happening she was making $50,000 a year. Then she sold the business to a Worcester syndicate, which continues the manufacture of valentines "at the old stand," though that stand has been enlarged until it fills a building with 55,000 square feet of floor space. Four hundred persons are now working for this syndicate, which is constantly enlarging its premises without being able to keep up with the demand.

The making of valentines is complex. The buyer who pays a cent for his tribute to his sweetheart seldom thinks of the work it represents. Diemakers, cutters, boxmakers, photographers, artists, copyists, painters, pressmen, dyers, embossers and other workmen are busy in the Worcester factory all the year round. It takes six weeks to make some of the dies, for the hundreds of lines and circles that stamp out the paper into lace must have cutting edges. Skill of like sort is needed in making the plates for embossing.

Then there is the matter of printing. The three color process is used now, but the valentine has often to go through the press seven times—once each for the red, blue, yellow, purple and gold, the printed verse and the embossing. Then it must be cut into lace edges, bronzed and "jeweled," after which ribbons are tied on it and hinges put between the upper and under sheets. In the more expensive valentines there are heavy backgrounds and celluloid additions to be stamped out by hand and put on with glue or silk.

Four artists are employed all the year painting the first schemes of designs on porcelain in oil. There is no regular hired poet, however. Verses are culled from books and magazines, though contributions are not refused. A large part of the working force is made up of girls, who do the sewing, piecing, etc. Steady hands can earn $1.50 a day, but many of the girls work only at intervals to get a little pin money for the holidays.

The comic valentines, a base innovation of an irreverent age, are not made in Worcester. They are perpetrated in Brooklyn, whence they are sent broadcast, to the delight of the malicious schoolboy and the disgust of his teachers and other grownup acquaintances.

The custom of choosing valentines is so old that early English poets refer to it as an established affair. Chaucer says that not only youths and maids, but also the birds, make choice of "makes" or mates on that day and quotes a heavenly power as saying to them:

Ye know well how on St. Valentine's day
By my statute and through my governaunce,
Ye dae chese your makes and after flie away
With hem as I move you with pleasaunce.

And Wharton wrote this in praise of Katherine, the French wife of Henry V.:

Seynte Valentine, of custome yeere by yeere
Men have an usance, in this regioun,
To loke and serche Cupide's kalendere,
And chose theyr choyse, by grete affeccioun,
Such as ben move with Cupide's mocioun,
Takying theyre choyse as theyr sort do the falle;
But I love oon whiche excelleth alle.

In "Hamlet" Ophelia sings this pathetic song:

Tomorrow is St. Valentine's day
All in the morning betime,
And I, a maid, at your window,
To be your valentine.

Mission, who in 1698 published "Travels In England," wrote:

"On the eve of St. Valentine's day the young folks in England and Scotland, by a very ancient custom, celebrate a little festival. An equal number of maids and bachelors write their true or feigned names upon separate billets, which they roll up and draw by way of lots, the maids taking the men's billets and the men the maids', so that each of the young men chooses a young girl that he calls his valentine and each of the girls a young man she calls hers. By this means each has two valentines, but the man clings to the valentine that has fallen to his lot rather than the one who calls him hers. Fortune having thus divided the company into so many couples, the valentines give balls and treats, wear their billets several days upon their sleeves, and this little sport often ends in love."

The custom of drawing one's valentine by lot became exceedingly popular all over Europe, especially in merry England, and continued as late as a century ago. But it grew to be such an extravagance that it wore itself out, for each "valentine" was expected to present his or her partner with a costly gift. Even royalty took part in the festival. Pepys' diary and other memoirs of the time mentioned jewels, gloves, silk stockings, garters, etc., as among the gifts bestowed upon valentines.

Lovers' Perjuries.

"So," she cried passionately—"so you did not mean what you said in that valentine when you called me your 'only love' and implored me to be your 'mate forever?'"

"Nein, non, nit, no!" he chuckled coarsely. "Why, don't you know, Jove or somebody else laughs at lovers' perjuries?"

"So does a breach of promise jury," she hissed triumphantly, "but the fair plaintiff always gets a verdict just the same."

With a wild shriek he skipped to the Philippines.

A Work-a-Day Valentine

[Copyright, 1904, by American Press Association.]

OF one thing we were all three certain—she was too angelic a creature for life in an office, even our office. Rooney swore she was one of the nobility in disguise; Davis, the treasurer's clerk, agreed she was no less than a duchess. As for me—well, that's the story.

I had noticed her the first day she came. I repeat it—I noticed her first. I pride myself in this, for hers was not a personality to attract attention from the unobservant. To be sure, her hands were twin doves, her eyes were a sea born blue, and her voice was a deep toned bell ringing on June Sundays only. But these were points not likely to be appreciated at a casual meeting, for the doves were kept busy fluttering over the clicking keyboard, the fair blue eyes were modestly veiled beneath lowered lashes, and cathedral bells do not mingle their tones with the clanging gongs of this work-a-day world.

After I had noted the mold of her hands and the timbre of her voice I noted other things, for my eyes seldom left her, and my mind had taken up permanent quarters at her desk. She was of another world—any one could see that. I was sure she could never stand the strain of this—that she would break down under it.

Day after day I hurried to the office expecting to find a new girl in her place. Yet she was never absent. Her work was always of the best, quickly and adroitly dispatched and with the manner of a queen. I cannot describe the feeling of reverence I came to have for her.

At last there came an event that almost cost me my life. I am given to heart trouble, and the manager, without preliminary caution, instructed me to dictate my letters that morning to her. I saved myself only by the quickest kind of hard, consistent gulping, and, hurrying into the storeroom, I hammered out my letters there myself.

All this time I had kept my feelings to myself. But there is a limit to a man's reserve. It was in Rooney's little cubby hole that I opened up. That evening we had enjoyed a hot drink that Davis had learned to mix from his friend at the Dutch kitchen and now for an hour had been looking moodily at one another through a thickening fog of Latakia, or Virginia cheroots, or something. Rooney had his feet on the table and was burning fuel under forced draft. Davis sat apart, twirling his mixing spoon. No one had a word.

"I wonder who she is," I said, my mind dwelling as ever upon the doves and the bell.

In an instant they were both talking at once. I was too terribly in earnest to think how strange was their enthusiasm. The fires went out in Rooney's great meerschaum. Davis bent eagerly forward, and through the dispersing fog their eyes burned strangely. My heart warmed to them as I heard their faraway voices singing the praises of her hair, her brow, her throat. Here were kindred spirits admiring what I adored. They were agreed that she was never intended for an office. Davis thought she was like a fair flower in a wind tossed meadow, while Rooney wavered between the figure of a linnet among jay birds and a lily among thorns, adding that her voice was like the music of unnumbered flutes. It all sounded practicable enough at the time.

Suddenly Rooney rose and, going to an old worm eaten desk, brought forth

a half finished pen sketch. It was less bad than some he had done, and he was enthusiastic.

"I don't know what you think," he said, "but I think this 'll make a right nice valentine."

My heart groaned with envy. So bitter were my thoughts that I found it hard to bid my host a civil good night, which I did soon after, coldly, but courteously. I had not noticed the chilling effect of Rooney's words upon his other guest, but before Davis left me at my door that night he unburdened his heart.

"Does he think she'll care for a pen scrawl like that—she who's been used to the masters? But I'll send her a valentine. Just you wait!"

In my bed that night I caught an idea. Immediately I sat up and laughed. The next morning the plan seemed less a stroke of genius, but I held to it nevertheless. The violets cost me half a week's salary and the doggerel a week's time, but I felt confident enough when at last I had consigned them to the office boy for delivery St. Valentine's eve.

Valentine's day I reached the office half an hour before the janitor, and in the meantime both Rooney and Davis put in an appearance. We were all feeling sheepish, but I was the only one that knew it.

When the janitor opened the door we all rushed to our desks with a great show of energy. The office filled slowly; clerks, stenographers, office boys, accountants were buzzing about, waiting for the manager. He came, but she came not. The delinquents filed in. Still her desk stood empty.

I was utterly depressed. Even my newspaper lay unread upon my desk.

It must have been near 10 o'clock when my eye dropped casually along the society notes. Suddenly my heart stopped. My glance had rested upon her name.

"Miss Gertrude Aileen Bonsall, daughter of Colonel Bonsall, whose sad death occurred immediately after his bankruptcy a year ago, was married last evening in her mother's modest home on Beech hill to Mr. V. Stanley Hapwell, the multimillionaire and society lion of last season. There is a pretty romance about the affair, which reached its culmination in the sudden wedding so fittingly observed on Valentine's eve. It seems that Miss Bonsall, with her mother, disappeared from the view of the world immediately after the failure and death of her unfortunate father a year ago, and until last evening no trace of them could be found by their fashionable friends. In fact, all had given up save one. The cause of Mr. Hapwell's success where others had failed may be guessed from the fact that within two hours from the time he had located the object of his search, in the office of a well known business house in this city, he had made her his bride."

I tried to force a yawn as I passed the paper over to Rooney. Rooney whistled in a bored sort of way as Davis joined us.

"Which desk did she work at?" I asked indifferently.

Just then an office boy approached us. "Youse are left at de post. She's tied up to some swell an' gone away," he said. "Hyer's yer valentines."

He handed Rooney a volume of poetry, Davis received his pen and ink sketch, while I found myself holding half a week's salary in perishable goods done up with yards of ribbon.

"I knowed it," said Rooney. And that night we were at peace again in the little cubby hole.

I.

THE flowers are off the hills, my dear,
The flour is off my hands;
There's icing on the rills, my dear,
And on the cake it stands.
The sun has made his bow, my dear,
And I have made my bread;
The latter's rising now, my dear,
But I must go to bed.

II.

ALL heavy is the yeast, my love,
The west alone is light
(For "yeast" please read "the east," my dove);
The panes are frosted white,
The snow is sprinkling dale and down
Like sugar on a bun,
The night has just commenced to brown,
Although the day is done.

III.

THE stars like dainty candies shine
In heaven's angel cake
As I this tasty valentine
Tomy own angel make.
For you my heart beats quick and high
As beats the egg new laid;
'Tis bubbling o'er, like berry pie,
With love for you, sweet maid.

IV.

YOUR haughty father bids me go,
He vows my wage is slim,
And coarsely says I knead the "dough"
And so would sponge on him.
I have no "roll," but this I swear—
I'm better bred than he,
And if you drop me, cruel fair,
No sponge drop it will be.

YOUR pa is short and crusty, sweet,
But I'll be candied, too,
And that you'll have enough to eat
So I'd eclair to you.
Oh, doughnut elsewhere give your hand,
Your lady fingers fine,
But say you'll be my sweet tart, and
I'll be your valentine!

Committee of Investigation Says It Will Cost But $1,200 And Is Necessary.

Chester is to have a new jail and town hall. The present structure is neither safe nor is it large enough for the needs of the growing town. There has been some objection to the move on the part of certain persons, but by far the greater number approve of the action of the council, and the building will be commenced within a few weeks.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the town council to investigate the probable cost of the building, has been active within the past few days, and the result of their labors will be made known at the next meeting. One of the members of the committee said to a News Review reporter this morningn:

"The whole cost of the proposed new jail and city building will not exceed $1,200. We believe the work can be done for much less than that amount, but I do not want to be misleading. The figures have been gone over very carefully, the prices of materials have been secured and if the authorities who will superintend the work of erecting the building are careful the expense will not run over $1,000. Our committee believes it can be done for that amount and every item will be watched in order to keep down the cost.

"I am at a loss to know how the opponents of the scheme arrived at the conclusion that the council proposed to add other cells to those already in use. Such a thing was never thought of. The cell room now available is thought to be sufficient for present demands, but the members of council do not believe the jail is safe as it is arranged. In case a fire should break out while a prisoner was confined in the jail, the town would undoubtedly be liable for damages. This, and other phases of the question, have been carefully weighed by the council and its committee, so the citizens of Chester can depend upon it that the project will go through."

Charged With Fighting.

Special Officer Prosser arrested Logan Wallace and William Gill yesterday, charging them with fighting. The young men, it seems, have both been keeping company with the same girl, and recently the rivalry has become so warm that it was hard to avoid a fight. Wallace appeared to have been the aggressor, and when arraigned before Mayor Mercer was fined $9.60. He had no money, but security was furnished, and he was released.

Poverty Social.

Arrangements are being made for a poverty social to be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Missionary society of the Presbyterian church of Chester. The affair will be held at Bloom's hall on Tuesday evening of next week and elaborate preparations are under way for the entertainment. A number of interesting features are being arranged by the ladies, and the attendance promises to be large.

Going Back to Wales.

Within the next few days the Chester plant of the American Tin Plate company wil lose two of its best and most skillful workmen. J. H. Evans and Harry Herbert have decided to try their luck in the old country, and will leave next week for Blenhoven, Monmouthshire, Wales, where they have engaged for a year to work in the sheet mills at that town. They are skilled mechanics, and with their long experience in the mills of both Europe and America will undoubtedly make a success of the venture.

Meetings Growing in Interest.

The meetings at the U. P. church in Chester have been very well attended. J. M. Streator preached a very interesting sermon last evening on saving faith. His illustrations from the old testament were very clear and comprehensive. He showed that all faith was of a historical character and that it rested on evidence either human or divine. He will preach this evening on sowing and reaping.

An Enjoyable Party.

A very enjoyable party was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harland Stewart, two ane one-half miles back of Chester. About 50 persons attended the function which was participated in by the young people. A large number of the guests were from Chester, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Epidemic of Grip.

An epidemic of grip has broken out among the Poles residing in shanties up Middle run. There are more than a score of the foreigners quartered in the same district, and more than half of them are confined to the house by the disease. The men are employed at the tin mill.

Rev. N. M. Crowe, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in East Liverpool, will preach to the Chester Presbyterians Sunday afternoon at the usual hour for services.

George Pugh has removed with his family from New Cumberland to his farm on Tomlinson's Run. The property has been improved since Mr. Pugh came in possession of it, and many changes have been made.

HAKODATE SHELLED

Russians Retaliate by Bombarding One of Japan's Principal Seaports.

MORE FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR

Japanese Torpedo Boats Sneak in Along Cliffs in Darkness and Sink Russian Ships When They Retreat Toward the Harbor Entrance.

London, Feb. 12.—The Tien Tsin correspondent of the Standard cables that five Russian cruisers from Vladivostock bombarded Hakodate, Japan, on Tuesday.

In a dispatch from Shanghai dated Feb. 12, 2 a. m., a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "The bombardment of Port Arthur continues. Three Russian cruisers have been sunk. The Russian bank building has been destroyed."

In a dispatch from Nagasaki, dated Feb. 10, a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: There has been a renewed attack on Port Arthur. The Japanese captured seven Russian ships and chased others.

There have been disturbances at Port Arthur in which a number of Japanese civilians were killed or imprisoned.

A Chinese mob has destroyed the telegraph line around New Chwang.

A special dispatch from Tien Tsin confirms the report that the Manchurian railroad has been blocked by the blowing up of a bridge on the line and that 30 Russians were killed in the explosion.

It is reported, the dispatch adds, that the Russian steamers, Nonni and Mukden, belonging to the Chinese Eastern Railway company, have been captured by the Japanese.

Russian Officers at a Circus.

Statements of all kinds concerning the Port Arthur fight are published here this morning. According to the Chefoo correspondent of the Daily Mail the lack of preparation on the part of the Russians at Port Arthur was due to the fact that all the naval and military officers were attending a circus performance at Port Arthur which did not terminate until early Tuesday morning.

According to the correspondent of the Paris edition of the New York Herald at Chefoo, the Japanese torpedo boats succeeded in entering the outer harbor by a ruse; they used the Russian flash light signals. This correspondent adds that three Japanese torpedo boats were sunk with great loss of life.

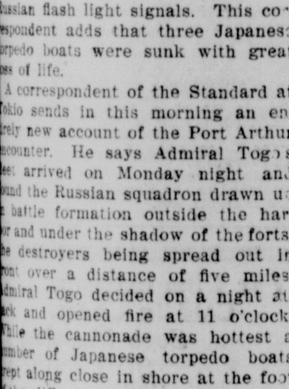
A correspondent of the Standard at Tokio sends in this morning an entirely new account of the Port Arthur encounter. He says Admiral Togo's fleet arrived on Monday night and found the Russian squadron drawn up in battle formation outside the harbor and under the shadow of the forts. The destroyers being spread out in front over a distance of five miles. Admiral Togo decided on a night attack and opened fire at 11 o'clock. While the cannonade was hottest a number of Japanese torpedo boats crept along close in shore at the foot of the cliff and succeeded in the darkness in getting between the Russian ships and the land. Here they lay unnoticed until the Russians began to give way before the Japanese fire and thought to re-enter the harbor. The Japanese torpedo boats then opened fire at comparatively close range and sank two battleships and one cruiser close to the entrance of the harbor.

A RAVING MANIAC

Nervousness the Cause of Insanity—Blood Wine Scores a Triumph.

It is hard to realize that a dangerous, raving maniac becomes so from such a simple start as an ordinary nervous disease, but such is nearly invariably the case. First sleeplessness, then the loss of nerve force, then brain disease—insanity.

Here is a remarkable cure of a case of nervous prostration—a disease just on the verge of actual insanity.



Mr. J. H. Waddy of Nashville, Tenn., says: "My nervous system was completely worked down, and I suffered from nervous prostration for a year, during which time I was under the treatment of three different physicians and used several kinds of medicines without results. I then took 'Blood Wine,' and consider it a wonderful medicine. In fact, I cannot praise it too much enough for the great benefit derived from four bottles. I am now a sound man once more."

FIFTY CENTS A MONTH

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort.

Babies that are given Scott's Emulsion quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most.

Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

The effect of this coup was the retreat of the remainder of the squadron into the harbor.

Japanese Celebrate Their Victories.

All was safe on board the Japanese ships at noon of Tuesday, the correspondent concludes, and the engagement was then still in progress.

At Lloyds today 30 per cent was paid to insure against the risk of war between France and Great Britain within six months. Yesterday the rate was 20 per cent. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha announces that the Inaba Maru arrived safely at Hong Kong.

Tokio, Feb. 12.—The existence of a state of war with Russia was formally announced by an imperial proclamation.

Tokio witnessed a smaller Mafeking celebration last night. Thousands of students paraded the streets, accompanied by many bands of music and carrying torches, flags, colored lanterns and transparencies emblazoned with war pictures. National airs were sung and cheers were continually given. The various processions surrounded the palace wall and visited the government offices.

The Russian legation overlooks a square where thousands of people had assembled to witness the celebration of the Japanese victory, but the windows of the legation were darkened. The crowds are orderly. The British residents of Tokio were cheered wherever they appeared.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 12.—Admiral Starydloff has left for the Far East to take command of the Russian fleet there. All unattached naval officers in St. Petersburg and Kronstadt have been ordered to go east promptly without making farewell calls.

Students in uniform and bareheaded paraded in front of the Kazan cathedral and went to the winter palace. They were followed by several thousands of persons singing the national anthem.

There is a general movement among the public to raise money for the purpose of increasing the navy. The Red Cross society sent the steamship Mongolia loaded with hospital stores to the Far East on Sunday.

An official telegram from Viceroy Alexieff describes the damage done to the Russian warships during the bombardment by the Japanese fleet at Port Arthur. It says:

"The Czarevitch and Pallada were brought into the harbor Tuesday. The Retvizan is making temporary repairs to a hole. Repairs to the battleships are so complicated that it is difficult to say when the ships will be ready. The Pallada and Novik will be docked in turn and I expect them to be ready in a fortnight. All the other vessels injured in the fight are now repairing and coaling in the harbor. I expect them to be ready in three days.

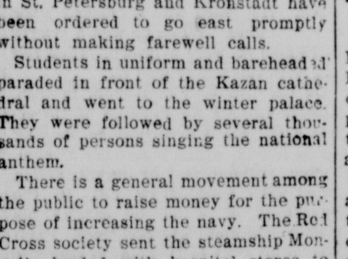
Wounded Officers Recovering.

"The wounded officers, Lieutenant Colonel Zaiontchkovsky of the artillery corps and Lieutenant Petrof, are doing well. Four of the wounded have died. A majority of the injured belonged to the cruiser Pallada and their injuries are due to gases from the explosion of a melinite torpedo. A careful search by cruisers and torpedo boats day and night has not revealed the presence of the enemy."

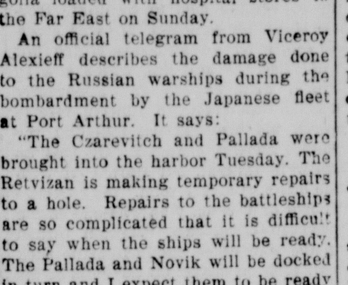
It is officially announced that no news has been received here of the fight at Chemulpo, the landing of Japanese or the blowing up of a bridge on the Manchurian railroad.

Orders have been issued for the formation of a third Siberian army corps and a trans-Baikal division of Cossacks. These will be incorporated in the Manchurian army.

Russian Battleships Damaged at Port Arthur by Japanese Torpedo Boat Attack.



BATTLESHIP RETVIZAN.



BATTLESHIP CESAREVITCH.

A dispatch from Irkutsk, Siberia, says orders have been issued to have the railroad across the ice-covered Lake Baikal completed by Feb. 28. The contractors have been promised a bonus of $1,500 for each day's earlier completion.

Japanese Landing Frustrated.

Chefoo, China, Feb. 12.—It is reported that the Japanese attempted a landing near Bedzevo, 80 miles north of Port Arthur, but were repulsed with heavy loss. They again tried to effect a landing at Talienwan under shelter of the fleet, but owing to the strong fort firing were unable to succeed. The Japanese then drew off, their losses being slight.

London, Feb. 12.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of Reuters cables that the naval headquarter's staff there announces that in the fight at Port Arthur six Japanese ships were slightly damaged and 50 Japanese were killed and 150 wounded.

ST. LOUIS GETS LOAN.

House Agrees to Amendment of Urgent Deficiency Measure.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The house by a vote of 172 to 103 concurred in the senate amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill authorizing a loan of $4,600,000 to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, after amending it with respect to the manner in which the money shall be paid. The proposition was strongly opposed in the debate which covered portions of three days. There were arrayed against it some of the house leaders. Among those who voiced their opposition to it were Messrs. Payne (N. Y.), Grosvenor (O.) and Dalzell (Pa.). Mr. Hemenway (Ind.), chairman of the appropriations committee, closed the debate with a strong appeal in favor of the loan. There was no party alignment on the measure, its supporters being composed of Republicans and Democrats alike.

The house also concurred in the senate amendment to the urgent deficiency bill authorizing tests of coal and lignites at the St. Louis fair and non-concurred in all the other amendments proposed by the senate. A number of bills were passed, among them measures ratifying agreements with Indians in Minnesota and Montana.

The senate will vote on the Panama canal treaty between Feb. 15 and 23. An agreement has been reached to take action on Monday next to decide upon a time for voting on the treaty and it was determined that such date should be on or before Feb. 23.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.

Employe of Diamond Match Company Said to Have Stolen $12,000.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—A special to the Record-Herald from Akron, O., says: Frank S. Newton, for over 20 years an employe of the Diamond Match company, has been arrested charged with the embezzlement of between $12,000 and $15,000.

Newton, it is charged, sold goods to a Cleveland merchant, collecting for them and opening an account in the company's books, which he kept straight by applying moneys paid by other customers. The irregularities extend over six years. Newton says that he spent the money in sumptuous living. He was sent to jail in default of $5,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

WAS NO TREACHERY.

Japanese Attack on Port Arthur Not a Violation of Law of Nations.

New Haven, Feb. 12.—Prof. Woolsey of the Yale law school, an authority on international law, has given it as his opinion that in breaking off diplomatic relations the Japanese government gave a perfectly fair warning to Russia that war was at hand.

"A declaration of war nowadays is unnecessary," said Prof. Woolsey. "War dates from the first moment of conflict, so far as the belligerents are concerned. There was nothing treacherous or improper in the Japanese torpedo attack upon the Russian ships at Port Arthur."

BODY FELL FROM WINDOW.

Fire in Millinery Shop at Kansas City Has Serious Results.

Kansas City, Feb. 12.—Miss Jessie Averill burned to death and four were injured in the burning of an apartment house. Miss Averill's body fell out of a window through which she had apparently sought to escape.

Miss Ida Parish was probably fatally hurt, as she was badly burned and received internal injuries by jumping from a window. The explosion of a gasoline stove in Miss Averill's room started the fire.

PAINFUL PERIODS

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to have been the plan of nature that woman should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition which produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. Thousands have been cured by so doing, and by the use of

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine that helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like another person since. I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have added 12 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy." —MISS AGNES MILLER, 25 Potomac Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial."

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine." — MRS. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., President Household Economics Club.

A BIG BATCH OF NEW BILLS

POLLUTION OF STREAMS

A Matter Which It Is Sought to Remedy—Senator Houck Would Prevent Drunkards And Imbeciles from Marrying—Other Measures.

Columbus, February 12.—(Special.)—Senator Harvey has introduced in the senate a bill authorizing the governor to appoint a commission of three to confer with state and federal authorities with a view of abating and preventing the pollution of Ohio streams and lakes.

Senator Houck introduced his bill amending the marriage laws. The bill provides that all "license to marry shall be obtained from a probate judge in the county where the female resides. No license shall be granted where either of the parties, applicants therefore, is imbecile, insane or a habitual drunkard or who at the time of making application for said license is under the influence of any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug."

Senator Ricketts introduced a bill by request, a bill which provides for the disposition of property when there are no heirs by consanguinity or affinity. The bill provides that the property may pass to the heirs of adopted children instead of the state.

Two bills by Senator Heinlein will attract general interest. The first conveys to street railway companies already in existence the power of appropriating private property when necessary to avoid difficult grades or shorten lines. The second seeks to abolish common law marriages.

Senator Dunlap, at the request of the Ohio Live Stock association, introduced a bill providing for the appropriation by the state of $25,000 for the purpose of making a suitable live stock exhibit at the St. Louis exposition.

A bill introduced by Senator Kinsman seeks to hold electric light rents furnished by cities as a lien on the property.

A new bill by Senator Schumaker provides for the government and location of law libraries by taking from the judge and giving to the county commissioners power to furnish suitable rooms in court houses for such libraries.

Senator Crites introduced at the request of the township trustees' organization of the state the bill abolishing township road supervisors and the two days' work or poll tax.

Medical students who matriculated after January 1, 1900, must take the state examination. The house so decided Wednesday afternoon after an hour's argument.

Representative Kimball, of Lake, introduced a bill to increase the salary of the state dairy and food commissioner from $2,000 to $4,000.

The house passed and made half a law of the Carle bill providing that cities may fix the rate to be charged for water by private water companies.

IS A LEGAL CONTRACT

Druggist Reed's Bond That Mi-o-na Costs Nothing Unless It Cures Dyspepsia and Increases Weight.

When you get a box of Mi-o-na, the flesh-forming food, from Will Reed, he will give you a signed bond to refund the money unless it cures dyspepsia and increases weight.

The money is simply on deposit with Will Reed and does not become his until you acknowledge that Mi-o-na has helped you. It is just as safe in his hands as in the First National Bank. He gives you his signed bond that is a legal contract, to pay back every penny that Mi-o-na has cost you, in case it does not do all that is claimed for it. The regular sized box sells for only 50c.

Mi-o-na possesses healing and soothing qualities that make it specially valuable in cases of chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. It mingles with the food you eat, aids its assimilation, tones up and strengthens the digestive organs, makes rich, red blood, builds up the wasted and emaciated form, and restores health and strength to the whole system.

Remember that in beginning the use of Mi-o-na, you do not risk a penny. Druggist Reed's written guarantee is an absolute protection and even though you should lose it, he will return your money without question and without argument should Mi-o-na fail to give perfect satisfaction.

Improved Coal Chutes.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A force of C. & P. workmen have been busy raising the coaling chutes located at the Slope mine here. It was found necessary to raise the chutes owing to the fact that in coaling the large engines the coal did not drop rapidly into the tenders, thus losing much time in coaling. It was also found that when the tenders were well filled with coal it would not all drop out of the apron, thus compelling those in charge to shovel it out. The whole building was raised about 14 inches and the work took a large force of men several days.

Site For New Block.

Salineville, February 12.—(Special.)—A deal has been consummated whereby George Troupe, who owns a half interest in the building occupied by John S. Duncan's hardware store sold out to his partner, Robert Madison. The building, while not valuable itself, is probably the best located lot in the village. It is rumored that a fine business block is to be erected on the spot. The building formerly belonged to the Ohio Savings company, of East Liverpool.

BOWERY BRANCH OF THE Y. M. C. A.

An Organization That Has Existed 32 Years in the Metropolis.

ALL CONDITIONS OF MEN

Were Entertained And Fed Last Year, 20 Per Cent Being College Graduates—Self-Respect Is Fostered. Timely Help Saves Many.

While every Young Men's Christian association is doing more or less in a quiet way to help men in straightened circumstances to better their ways, it does not advertise itself as an eeleomosinary institution. If it did the men of self respect would steer clear of it and the "bums" would steer straight for it. The association is always ready to lend a helping hand to the man having a hard pull and who has not found his place and work. The New York city associations found long ago that the streams of men coming to the city with great expectations and small pocket books, and many others who through foolishness or worse, were stranded, demanded their help in larger numbers than they were able to care for. So 32 years ago the Bowery Branch was formed especially for destitute men.

Morris K. Jesup, who was then president of the association, suggested the founding of this branch and has since been one of its largest supporters. Robert R. McBurney, the first general secretary of the country at old Twenty-third street, kept his membership in this Branch, out of his deep interest and big-hearted Irish sympathy with men who were down on their luck and needed a boost or encouragement from Christian men to put them on their feet. Last year 3,068 men were entertained in the Branch, the average stay being eight days. Employment was found for 1,364 of them. There are 79 beds in the dormitories which are strictly clean and comfortable. Here a man without means may be entertained for a week or so, free of cost, until he secures a position, then, if he will, he may make a full payment for this courtesy shown him.

A man's self-respect is thus maintained. In the restaurant meals of good wholesome food are served at five cents each, for which he pays, if he is able. Last year 18,000 meals were served, over half of which were paid for by the men. Seven hundred are thus fed daily at a very small cost. Board is provided at $2.50 a week. On Thanksgiving day, a free dinner was given to 480 men. Every man who comes to the house is met by the secretary or one of his assistants, who has a frank talk with him about his ability and condition. A large amount of worn clothing is quietly supplied those whose wardrobes need to be replenished to make them presentable and enhance the possibility of securing employment. In the course of a year hundreds of garments are sent in by men who prefer to give away their partly worn clothing than to sell it for a song to a second-hand dealer. Men's clothing of all sorts is constantly needed. A man can find no better satisfaction these cold days than to thus put an unfortunate fellow in the way of securing comfort and obtaining a position.

It is interesting to note that 20 per cent of the 3,068 men who were entertained in 1903 were college and university men. Over 200 different professions and trades were represented and one-third of the number were skilled mechanics, and 59 professional men. Many of them came to the Branch in reduced circumstances because of sickness or accident, business depression or loss of work, and very many of course, from dissipation, failure in business, domestic trouble and gambling. Over 300 had been employed five years, and over 500 from three to five years and 55 per cent were under 35 years of age, 84 per cent were single men, 29 per cent were Roman Catholics and two per cent Hebrews. Very many of the number were found to need medical care and were sent to the hospitals, and on their dismissal found employment.

Every evening in the week a religious service is held. Here is the greatest factor in bringing courage to a man and putting him in the way of redeeming his life. The secretary, while having all sympathy with a man, he is not at all hesitant to talk straight with a man about dissipation and to honestly search out the causes of his failures. The secretary met and had such talks with 2,360 men in the past year.

Letters are being constantly received from men who have received the timely help the association has been able to give them at the Bowery Branch. Some of these men are in the Christian ministry, others are prominent in business, and hundreds have regained their foothold and taken their place as honorable members of society.

The Branch is seeking to erect a building which would be ten stories, and cost about $300,000. In this five hundred small rooms would be provided to be rented at $1.50 a week. There will be social rooms, baths, bowling alleys, parlors, amusement rooms, and a large restaurant capable of serving 3,000 meals a day. The chairman of the committee, J. Frederick Talcott, and the treasurer, Hammond Odell, 35 Naussau street who with their associates, are confident that this branch which has demonstrated its usefulness to men for 30 years, and rendered an immeasurable service to stranded men on the Bowery, should be provided with adequate facilities.

Everybody's liable to itching piles. Rich and poor, old and young—terrible the torture they suffer. Only one sure cure. Doan's Ointment. Absolutely safe; can't fail.

LINCOLN'S STRANGE COURTSHIPS

By JONATHAN JOYCE

[Copyright, 1904, by Arthur J. Palmer.]

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was, above all things, human. With all his greatness, he was a man of like passions with ourselves, and in nothing was this humanizing touch of nature better shown than in his loves.

Aside from the boy and girl romances of his school days, Lincoln's diffidence had kept him from much association with the opposite sex, and it was not until he had reached the full stature of manhood that he was strongly drawn toward any woman not of his own family. Then he met Anne Rutledge. She was a beautiful girl, of Kentucky birth, with auburn hair, blue eyes, a fair complexion and of slight physique. Her father was one of the founders of New Salem, Ill., and was the proprietor of the village tavern when Lincoln went to that place in 1833. Lincoln boarded at the tavern. Miss Rutledge, who was then about seventeen, was betrothed to a young man from the east, John McNeil, who had become one of New Salem's leading citizens.

Her lover, having accumulated what was then a fortune, determined to pay a visit to his old home in New York state, and before going away pledged Anne to await his return, at the same time making the singular revelation that his name was not McNeil, but McNamar. When he reached New York he wrote to her that his old father's declining health would require his presence with him for some time. Then he wrote of his father's death. Other letters followed, but they grew fewer and less affectionate and finally ceased.

In the meantime Lincoln had come to love Anne as he never loved another woman, and as her attachment to McNamar weakened through his continued absence and silence Lincoln's suit progressed. In time she was induced to promise that she would marry Lincoln if McNamar should formally release her. She wrote to McNamar, but her letter was never answered, and at last she accepted Lincoln unconditionally. But the strain to which she had been subjected had been too great for her to bear, and she gave way under it. She was seized with brain fever and sank day by day until all hope was abandoned. During the last days of her illness her doctors forbade her receiving any visitors, but she asked for Lincoln so continuously that a few days before her death he was admitted to her bedside.

When Lincoln heard that Anne was dead he roamed the woods in woeful abstraction, almost madness. His condition became so serious that he was sent to the home of Bowlin Green, who lived in a secluded spot in the hills some distance from the village, where he was won back to something like his normal self. But the wound he had received in the death of Miss Rutledge seems never to have healed.

Long afterward, in speaking of her resting place, he said to a friend, "My heart lies buried there," and he told fellow members of the Illinois legislature that he dared not carry a pocketknife lest he be tempted to take his life.

In time another Kentucky girl, Mary Owens, came into Lincoln's life. She differed from Miss Rutledge in that she had been highly educated and had been reared in wealth. Her social position seems to have been the rock on which Lincoln's second love was wrecked. She had met Lincoln when visiting her brother-in-law, Bennett Able, in New Salem, before Miss Rutledge died. She came again to New Salem about a year after Lincoln's great loss, when he was peculiarly susceptible to feminine sympathy. Their intimacy ripened until it culminated in an offer of marriage. Miss Owens declined his proposal with all kindness. Lincoln renewed his offer later, but it was again refused.

The year 1840 found Mr. Lincoln in his thirty-second year and still unmarried. "I have come to the conclusion," he said in a letter to a friend shortly before this time, "never again to think of marrying." But meanwhile he had seen more of the world. The state capital had been removed to Springfield, and Lincoln soon observed the power of social and family connections. Though still poor and lacking the graces and ease of bearing obtained through mingling in polite society, he had risen to a high place in the law and in politics and numbered among his friends many men of wealth and consequence.

Mary Todd, like Lincoln's two earlier sweethearts, a Kentuckian, went to Springfield in 1839 to live with her sister, Mrs. Ninian W. Edwards. She was of a rich family and one in whose veins coursed the bluest blood of the south. She was then in her twenty-first year, of strong, passionate nature, and had left her home in Kentucky because "she could not live under the same roof with a stepmother." She was of average height, rather compactly built, with well rounded face, rich dark brown hair and bluish gray eyes. In her bearing she was proud, but handsome and vivacious. She was exceptionally well educated and a brilliant conversationalist.

Lincoln was led through the influence of Joshua Speed, a firm friend of the Edwardses, to call on Miss Todd, and he was from the first her captive. The contrast in their characters made Lincoln's courtship of Miss Todd a strange one. "I have often happened in the room where they were sitting," relates Mrs. Edwards, "and Mary was leading the conversation. Mr. Lincoln scarcely said a word. He gazed upon her as if irresistibly drawn toward her by some superior and unseen power." Mrs. Edwards believed that while Lincoln was deeply attached to Mary they could not always be congenial and advised against the marriage.

Mrs. Edwards' advice fell on stony ground. The courtship ran on to the point of an engagement, when a new and disturbing element loomed in the path. This was no other than the dashing and handsome Stephen A. Douglas, Lincoln's rival now in love as in after years he became his rival in public life.

Douglas was vastly more attractive to women than Lincoln, and it is not to be marveled at that he should supplant Lincoln in the affections of the proud and aristocratic Miss Todd. There were those who thought Miss Todd's encouragement of Douglas an artifice to spur Lincoln on to manifest his love with greater fervor, but a lady relative of Mrs. Lincoln, who lived with her after her marriage, is authority for the statement that Mary loved Douglas and but for her promise to Lincoln would have married him.

Douglas was unremitting in his attentions to Miss Todd and seemed to go out of his way to annoy Lincoln with his rivalry. Finally the unfortunate position she was compelled to occupy between the two young men resulted in making Miss Todd ill. Her brother-in-law and physician, William Wallace, to whom she had confided the real cause of her sickness, went to Douglas and asked him to end his pursuit. This Douglas did with great reluctance.

If Miss Todd intended by a flirtation with Douglas to test Lincoln's devotion she committed a great mistake. Lincoln began to feel the sting. One evening he called on Joshua Speed, to whom he was indebted for his introduction to Miss Todd, and showed him a letter addressed to Mary telling her that he had deliberated on the matter of their engagement and that he did not feel that he now loved her enough to marry her. He asked Speed to deliver this letter. Speed refused and advised Lincoln to go to Mary in person and settle the subject once for all. Speed waited until nearly midnight for Lincoln to come back. When he came and Speed asked him if he had followed his instructions he said: "Yes, and when I told Mary I did not love her she burst into tears and wrung her hands as if in agony, talking incoherently. I found the tears coursing down my own cheeks. I took her in my arms and kissed her."

Convinced that Miss Todd considered the engagement ratified instead of broken, as Lincoln at first intended, he continued his visits, and things went on smoothly as before. Douglas had dropped out of the race, and everything pointed to an early marriage.

The time fixed for the wedding was the first day of January, 1841. Careful preparations for the occasion were made in the Edwards mansion. The house was decorated, the supper prepared and the guests invited. The latter assembled on the evening set. Miss Todd, in bridal array, sat in an adjoining room. Nothing was lacking but the groom. He had been unaccountably delayed. An hour passed, and the bride as well as the guests grew restless. Another hour passed. Messengers were sent out through the town, and, each returning unaccompanied, it became evident that Mr. Lincoln's absence was premeditated. The party broke up, and Miss Todd retired to her own room. Toward daybreak, after persistent search, Lincoln was found. Restless, gloomy, desperate, he seemed an object of pity. His friends, fearing a tragic termination of the strange episode, watched him closely. Every instrument which could be used for suicide was kept from him. Mrs. Edwards and Miss Todd did not hesitate to regard him as insane.

After two or three weeks of brooding in seclusion Lincoln was persuaded to accompany Speed to his home in Kentucky. The change of environment drove away the cloud which had settled on Lincoln's mind, and he returned to Springfield nearly cured. He resumed his practice of the law and let the memory of his engagement to Miss Todd trouble him no more. Their ways had diverged. But through Mrs. Simeon Francis, a friend of Miss Todd, they were brought together again. After a brief second courtship Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd were married on Nov. 4, 1842, at the home of Mr. Edwards. Herndon asserts his belief that Lincoln married Miss Todd merely to save his honor. He came to his wedding, says Herndon, "pale and trembling, as a lamb to the slaughter." When Lincoln was dressing in the home of his friend, Mr. Butler, preparing to meet his bride, Butler's little son asked him where he was going. "To hell, I suppose," was Lincoln's answer.

THE BIRTHNIGHT OF LINCOLN

BY WALTON WILLIAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY C. N. LURIE.

OUT of Kentucky night came there a breeze
Fraught with the pine-land odors, and with news
Such as might rock the thrones beyond the seas,
Could monarch-ridden lands its text peruse.

THE laden breeze did beckon in the morn
The Spirits of the Right by men unseen,
And whispered as it sped, "A babe is born
Whose glory it will be to crown a queen."

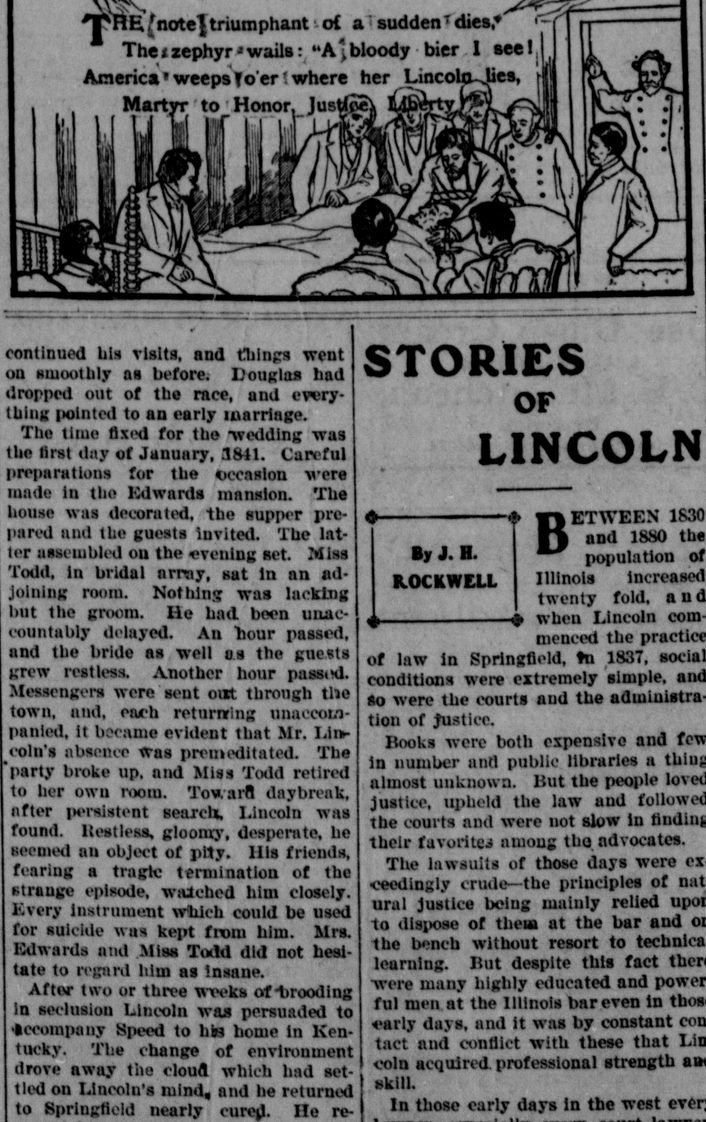
THE souls of Freedom and of Honor bright
And Justice fair did shudder this to hear.
What could they gain for the good cause of Right
While scepters flourished o'er a world of fear?

THE pitying breeze now laughed aloud in glee
And spoke: "The queen this newborn babe will crown
Shall be America, entirely free,
Land of full justice and of bright renown!

CONFIRMING and enlarging the decrees
By which a narrow freedom was installed,
He shall make grander than the dynasties
A people's rule, and save a world inthralled!

FOR thrones must fall when all the nations see
The glory of his doubly-rescued land;
And toil must triumph to its fair degree
When regal bay'nets back not greed's command!"

THE note triumphant of a sudden dies,
The zephyr wails: "A bloody bier I see!
America weeps o'er where her Lincoln lies,
Martyr to Honor, Justice, Liberty.



STORIES OF LINCOLN

By J. H. ROCKWELL

BETWEEN 1830 and 1880 the population of Illinois increased twenty fold, and when Lincoln commenced the practice of law in Springfield, in 1837, social conditions were extremely simple, and so were the courts and the administration of justice.

Books were both expensive and few in number and public libraries a thing almost unknown. But the people loved justice, upheld the law and followed the courts and were not slow in finding their favorites among the advocates.

The lawsuits of those days were exceedingly crude—the principles of natural justice being mainly relied upon to dispose of them at the bar and on the bench without resort to technical learning. But despite this fact there were many highly educated and powerful men at the Illinois bar even in those early days, and it was by constant contact and conflict with these that Lincoln acquired professional strength and skill.

In those early days in the west every lawyer, especially every court lawyer, was necessarily a politician, constantly engaged in the public discussion of many questions evolved from the rapid development of town, county, state and federal affairs. Then and there in this regard public discussion supplied the place which the press has since monopolized, and the public speaker who by clearness, force, earnestness and wit could make himself felt on the questions of the day, would soon come to the front. In the absence of popular entertainments, which are now so common, the people then found their chief amusement in frequenting the courts and political assemblies. In either place he who impressed, entertained and amused them most was the hero of the hour. They did not discriminate very carefully between the eloquence of the forum and the eloquence of the hustings. Human nature ruled both alike, and the man who was the most effective speaker in a political harangue was often retained in a lawsuit as the most likely one to win in a cause before a jury.

There is little doubt that in this way many retainers came to Lincoln. Fees—money in any form—had no charm for him. In his eager pursuit of fame he could not afford to make money. He was ambitious to distinguish himself in some great service to mankind, and this ambition for fame and real public service left in his nature no room for avarice.

However much he earned, he seems to have ended every year no richer than when he began it, and yet as time passed fees came to him liberally. One of $5,000 is recorded, a very large fee at that time in any part of the country. As already suggested, the legal profession always has been and is now the main avenue to public life, and his training and experience in the courts had very much to do with the development of those forces of character which he so successfully displayed in later years on a broader field.

His ready wit and infinite good nature were elements of strength to him, especially after his entrance into politics, and even his personal appearance, which was always attractive, won him the favor and confidence of the masses. He was not a good looking man in the ordinary sense of the term, and yet there were times when, moved by great impulses, his face would light up and become almost handsome. As an illustration of this the following incident is given, which I think is new, and certainly bears every evidence of genuineness:

In 1858, during the senatorial campaign in Illinois, when Lincoln was canvassing the western part of the state, he made a speech at Rushville, in Schuyler county, which was reported by a young lady who wrote occasionally for the local paper, the Schuyler Citizen. As an introduction to her report of the speech, which appeared in the next number of that journal, she said:

"So many people had told me that Mr. Lincoln was a miracle of homeliness I expected to see the ugliest man in Illinois. Instead of that I saw a man whose face lit up in a most extraordinary way when he talked, and I don't care what anybody else's opinion is, I want to say that I consider Mr. Lincoln one of the handsomest men I ever saw."

A copy of the paper, with this paragraph carefully marked, was sent to Mr. Lincoln. He took it at once to his wife. "Mary," he said, "I have always thought until now that you were the only woman on earth who considered me a handsome man, and I have not been absolutely certain about that, but it seems there is one other."

"THERE IS ONE OTHER."

By G. L. LANGDON

LINCOLN'S numerous deeds of kindness to all sorts of people often proved embarrassing to officials who were held responsible for a businesslike and vigorous administration of military affairs.

On one occasion at least Lincoln's good nature was balked by the grim secretary of war, Mr. Stanton. The president favored a certain man's application to serve the army as chaplain and sent the applicant to the war department with the usual indorsement on the paper:

Dear Stanton—Appoint this man chaplain. A. LINCOLN.

The man soon reappeared at the White House with the following indorsement under Lincoln's:

Dear Mr. Lincoln—He is not a preacher. E. M. STANTON.

Some time afterward the man appeared again at the war department with this indorsement written under Stanton's:

He is now. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton promptly returned it with the indorsement:

There is no vacancy. E. M. STANTON.

This called forth another executive indorsement, saying:

Appoint him chaplain at large. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton wrote underneath:

There is no warrant of law for that. E. M. STANTON.

Out of patience at last, the president wrote:

Appoint him anyhow. A. LINCOLN.

Equally out of patience, the secretary wrote underneath the laconic dictum:

I will not. E. M. STANTON.

LINCOLN'S ODD PERSONALITY

By DAVID H. BARNES

[Copyright, 1904, by Hamilton Musk.]

THE unique personality of Abraham Lincoln was in no way more marked than in his physical appearance. His height was six feet four inches. His figure was gaunt and slightly bent. He was swarthy as an Indian, with wiry, jet black hair not easily amenable to the comb. His face was grotesquely rough and square, "lantern jawed," he called himself. During the latter part of his life he wore a rough, black beard "to hide his homely features," he said. His hands and feet were very large. He wore a No. 11 boot on his left foot and a No. 11½ on his right.

Lincoln's clothes were always loose fitting and usually in need of pressing.

THE STALWART LINCOLN.

His trousers were always too short. His cloak, for which he often substituted a shawl, was short and voluminous. He carried a faded green umbrella with "A. Lincoln" in white cotton letters sewed to the outside. His eyes were bright, keen and of luminous gray in color, and his eyebrows were black. His voice was a musical tenor of rich timbre. When he was a lawyer in Illinois he wore a brown, faded felt hat, with the nap rubbed off.

On his first visit to Boston, in 1848, Lincoln excited the derision of the effete east. He is described as wearing an ill fitting, badly worn suit of bombazine, without vest or cravat, and a twenty-five cent straw hat, in the sweatband of which he carried his memoranda and correspondence. From Boston he went to Dedham to speak at the convention held to nominate Horace Mann for congress. He was greeted coldly by an audience which but half filled the hall and which saw in him a man morose and apparently stupid. But when Mr. Lincoln rose to speak, his head almost touching the ceiling, all was changed. He was no longer indifferent, but started off with fine effect. "Pretty soon," says George Monroe of Boston, who was one of the reception committee, "Lincoln turned up the sleeves of his bombazine sack coat, then he turned up the cuffs of his shirt and by and by loosened his necktie and wound up by taking it off altogether, the enthusiasm of his listeners rising steadily as the transformation progressed."

Lincoln's high silk hat, which he assumed with his increasing honors, was a treasure to the cartoonists of the day. It was a very tall "stovepipe," with a brim like a sombrero. The hat which he wore toward the end of his life is preserved in the Oldroyd museum in Washington. It is a good 7¼ in size. A legend credits this hat with having saved the president's life. It is said that he was riding alone near the capitol when a concealed assassin fired at him. Misjudging the size of the famous hat, the assailant shot too high, the bullet going through the tile about an inch below the top and just missing the hair of the president, who was later to be the victim of John Wilkes Booth's pistol.

Fortunes In Valentines

By SEATON LORD

NONE of the many iconoclasts who have been shattering the cherished traditions of our romantic youth has yet succeeded in extinguishing the cult of St. Valentine. Prosaic professors have proved that William Tell did not shoot the apple from the head of his son, that George Washington did not convert the cherry tree into firewood with his little hatchet, that the commander of the Old Guard never cast his famed defiance into the teeth of the British conquerors, but they cannot make us believe that the Roman martyr of blessed memory does not still exert a beneficent influence on affairs of the heart.

We continue to dust off our rhyming dictionaries as the ides of February approach and with paste pot, scissors and cardboard manufacture weird symbols of undying affection, to intrust them for safe delivery to St. Valentine's priest, the postman, meanwhile praying the saint himself to kindle fires of reciprocal love in the bosoms of their recipients. And while we are thus engrossed great factories are turning out for those of less imagination or less leisure hundreds of thousands of erotic epistles varied in sentiment and costliness to suit the tastes and pocketbooks of the modest maiden and the ardent swain, the wealthy suitor and the impecunious.

Massachusetts, the home of statesmen and men of letters, where love, like everything else, is taken seriously, is fittingly the center of the valentine industry. As long ago as 1848 Miss Esther Howland, just out of college, added a few handmade valentines to the stock of her father's bookstore in Worcester. They were quickly snapped up. Some found their way to New York, and demands for many more came in. Mr. Howland bought lithographs and embossed paper and set four girls to work tying ribbons and frills and cutting out sheets, while his young son traveled the country in search of orders. Then enamel pictures were imported from Germany, and dies were made to do quickly the cutting which had been done laboriously with scissors. Before Miss Howland knew what was happening she was making $50,000 a year. Then she sold the business to a Worcester syndicate, which continues the manufacture of valentines "at the old stand," though that stand has been enlarged until it fills a building with 55,000 square feet of floor space. Four hundred persons are now working for this syndicate, which is constantly enlarging its premises without being able to keep up with the demand.

The making of valentines is complex. The buyer who pays a cent for his tribute to his sweetheart seldom thinks of the work it represents. Diemakers, cutters, boxmakers, photographers, artists, copyists, painters, pressmen, dyers, embossers and other workmen are busy in the Worcester factory all the year round. It takes six weeks to make some of the dies, for the hundreds of lines and circles that stamp out the paper into lace must have cutting edges. Skill of like sort is needed in making the plates for embossing.

Then there is the matter of printing. The three color process is used now, but the valentine has often to go through the press seven times—once each for the red, blue, yellow, purple and gold, the printed verse and the embossing. Then it must be cut into lace edges, bronzed and "jeweled," after which ribbons are tied on it and hinges put between the upper and under sheets. In the more expensive valentines there are heavy backgrounds and celluloid additions to be stamped out by hand and put on with glue or silk.

Four artists are employed all the year painting the first schemes of designs on porcelain in oil. There is no regular hired poet, however. Verses are culled from books and magazines, though contributions are not refused. A large part of the working force is made up of girls, who do the sewing, piecing, etc. Steady hands can earn $1.50 a day, but many of the girls work only at intervals to get a little pin money for the holidays.

The comic valentines, a base innovation of an irreverent age, are not made in Worcester. They are perpetrated in Brooklyn, whence they are sent broadcast, to the delight of the malicious schoolboy and the disgust of his teachers and other grownup acquaintances.

The custom of choosing valentines is so old that early English poets refer to it as an established affair. Chaucer says that not only youths and maids, but also the birds, make choice of "makes" or mates on that day and quotes a heavenly power as saying to them:

Ye know well how on St. Valentine's day
By my statute and through my governaunce,
Ye dae chese your makes and after flie away
With hem as I move you with pleasaunce.

And Wharton wrote this in praise of Katherine, the French wife of Henry V.:

Seynte Valentine, of custome yeere by yeere
Men have an usance, in this regioun,
To loke and serche Cupide's kalendere,
And chose theyr choyse, by grete affectioun,
Such as ben move with Cupide's mocioun,
Takying theyre choyse as theyr sort do the falle;
But I love oon whiche excelleth alle.

In "Hamlet" Ophelia sings this pathetic song:

Tomorrow is St. Valentine's day
All in the morning betime,
And I, a maid, at your window,
To be your valentine.

Mission, who in 1698 published "Travels In England," wrote:

"On the eve of St. Valentine's day the young folks in England and Scotland, by a very ancient custom, celebrate a little festival. An equal number of maids and bachelors write their true or feigned names upon separate billets, which they roll up and draw by way of lots, the maids taking the men's billets and the men the maids', so that each of the young men chooses a young girl that he calls his valentine and each of the girls a young man she calls hers. By this means each has two valentines, but the man clings to the valentine that has fallen to his lot rather than the one who calls him hers. Fortune having thus divided the company into so many couples, the valentines give balls and treats, wear their billets several days upon their sleeves, and this little sport often ends in love."

The custom of drawing one's valentine by lot became exceedingly popular all over Europe, especially in merry England, and continued as late as a century ago. But it grew to be such an extravagance that it wore itself out, for each "valentine" was expected to present his or her partner with a costly gift. Even royalty took part in the festival. Pepys' diary and other memoirs of the time mentioned jewels, gloves, silk stockings, garters, etc., as among the gifts bestowed upon valentines.

Lovers' Perjuries.

"So," she cried passionately—"so you did not mean what you said in that valentine when you called me your 'only love' and implored me to be your 'mate forever?'"

"Nein, non, nit, no!" he chuckled coarsely. "Why, don't you know, Jove or somebody else laughs at lovers' perjuries?"

"So does a breach of promise jury," she hissed triumphantly, "but the fair plaintiff always gets a verdict just the same."

With a wild shriek he skipped to the Philippines.

A Work-a-Day Valentine

[Copyright, 1904, by American Press Association.]

OF one thing we were all three certain—she was too angelic a creature for life in an office, even our office. Rooney swore she was one of the nobility in disguise; Davis, the treasurer's clerk, agreed she was no less than a duchess. As for me—well, that's the story.

I had noticed her the first day she came. I repeat it—I noticed her first. I pride myself in this, for hers was not a personality to attract attention from the unobservant. To be sure, her hands were twin doves, her eyes were a sea born blue, and her voice was a deep toned bell ringing on June Sundays only. But these were points not likely to be appreciated at a casual meeting, for the doves were kept busy fluttering over the clicking keyboard, the fair blue eyes were modestly veiled beneath lowered lashes, and cathedral bells do not mingle their tones with the clanging gongs of this work-a-day world.

After I had noted the mold of her hands and the timbre of her voice I noted other things, for my eyes seldom left her, and my mind had taken up permanent quarters at her desk. She was of another world—any one could see that. I was sure she could never stand the strain of this—that she would break down under it.

Day after day I hurried to the office expecting to find a new girl in her place. Yet she was never absent. Her work was always of the best, quickly and adroitly dispatched and with the manner of a queen. I cannot describe the feeling of reverence I came to have for her.

At last there came an event that almost cost me my life. I am given to heart trouble, and the manager, without preliminary caution, instructed me to dictate my letters that morning to her. I saved myself only by the quickest kind of hard, consistent gulping, and, hurrying into the storeroom, I hammered out my letters there myself.

All this time I had kept my feelings to myself. But there is a limit to a man's reserve. It was in Rooney's little cubby hole that I opened up. That evening we had enjoyed a hot drink that Davis had learned to mix from his friend at the Dutch kitchen and now for an hour had been looking moodily at one another through a thickening fog of Latakia, or Virginia cheroots, or something. Rooney had his feet on the table and was burning fuel under forced draft. Davis sat apart, twirling his mixing spoon. No one had a word.

"I wonder who she is," I said, my mind dwelling as ever upon the doves and the bell.

In an instant they were both talking at once. I was too terribly in earnest to think how strange was their enthusiasm. The fires went out in Rooney's great meerschaum. Davis bent eagerly forward, and through the dispersing fog their eyes burned strangely. My heart warmed to them as I heard their faraway voices singing the praises of her hair, her brow, her throat. Here were kindred spirits admiring what I adored. They were agreed that she was never intended for an office. Davis thought she was like a fair flower in a wind tossed meadow, while Rooney wavered between the figure of a linnet among jay birds and a lily among thorns, adding that her voice was like the music of unnumbered flutes. It all sounded practicable enough at the time.

Suddenly Rooney rose and, going to an old worm eaten desk, brought forth

a half finished pen sketch. It was less bad than some he had done, and he was enthusiastic.

"I don't know what you think," he said, "but I think this 'll make a right nice valentine."

My heart groaned with envy. So bitter were my thoughts that I found it hard to bid my host a civil good night, which I did soon after, coldly, but courteously. I had not noticed the chilling effect of Rooney's words upon his other guest, but before Davis left me at my door that night he unburdened his heart.

"Does he think she'll care for a pen scrawl like that—she who's been used to the masters? But I'll send her a valentine. Just you wait!"

In my bed that night I caught an idea. Immediately I sat up and laughed. The next morning the plan seemed less a stroke of genius, but I held to it nevertheless. The violets cost me half a week's salary and the doggerel a week's time, but I felt confident enough when at last I had consigned them to the office boy for delivery St. Valentine's eve.

Valentine's day I reached the office half an hour before the janitor, and in the meantime both Rooney and Davis put in an appearance. We were all feeling sheepish, but I was the only one that knew it.

When the janitor opened the door we all rushed to our desks with a great show of energy. The office filled slowly; clerks, stenographers, office boys, accountants were buzzing about, waiting for the manager. He came, but she came not. The delinquents filed in. Still her desk stood empty.

I was utterly depressed. Even my newspaper lay unread upon my desk.

It must have been near 10 o'clock when my eye dropped casually along the society notes. Suddenly my heart stopped. My glance had rested upon her name.

"Miss Gertrude Aileen Bonsall, daughter of Colonel Bonsall, whose sad death occurred immediately after his bankruptcy a year ago, was married last evening in her mother's modest home on Beech hill to Mr. V. Stanley Hapwell, the multimillionaire and society lion of last season. There is a pretty romance about the affair, which reached its culmination in the sudden wedding so fittingly observed on Valentine's eve. It seems that Miss Bonsall, with her mother, disappeared from the view of the world immediately after the failure and death of her unfortunate father a year ago, and until last evening no trace of them could be found by their fashionable friends. In fact, all had given up save one. The cause of Mr. Hapwell's success where others had failed may be guessed from the fact that within two hours from the time he had located the object of his search, in the office of a well known business house in this city, he had made her his bride."

I tried to force a yawn as I passed the paper over to Rooney. Rooney whistled in a bored sort of way as Davis joined us.

"Which desk did she work at?" I asked indifferently.

Just then an office boy approached us. "Youse are left at de post. She's tied up to some swell an' gone away," he said. "Hyer's yer valentines."

He handed Rooney a volume of poetry, Davis received his pen and ink sketch, while I found myself holding half a week's salary in perishable goods done up with yards of ribbon.

"I knowed it," said Rooney. And that night we were at peace again in the little cubby hole.

I.

THE flowers are off the hills, my dear,
The flour is off my hands;
There's icing on the rills, my dear,
And on the cake it stands.
The sun has made his bow, my dear,
And I have made my bread;
The latter's rising now, my dear,
But I must go to bed.

II.

ALL heavy is the yeast, my love,
The west alone is light
(For "yeast" please read "the east," my dove);
The panes are frosted white,
The snow is sprinkling dale and down
Like sugar on a bun,
The night has just commenced to brown,
Although the day is done.

III.

THE stars like dainty candies shine
In heaven's angel cake
As I this tasty valentine
Tomy own angel make.
For you my heart beats quick and high
As beats the egg new laid;
'Tis bubbling o'er, like berry pie,
With love for you, sweet maid.

IV.

YOUR haughty father bids me go,
He vows my wage is slim,
And coarsely says I knead the "dough"
And so would sponge on him.
I have no "roll," but this I swear—
I'm better bred than he,
And if you drop me, cruel fair,
No sponge drop it will be.

V.

YOUR pa is short and crusty, sweet,
But I'll be candied, too,
And that you'll have enough to eat
So I'd eclair to you.
Oh, doughnut elsewhere give your hand,
Your lady fingers fine,
But say you'll be my sweet tart, and
I'll be your valentine!

By SEATON LORD

NONE of the many iconoclasts who have been shattering the cherished traditions of our romantic youth has yet succeeded in extinguishing the cult of St. Valentine. Prosaic professors have proved that William Tell did not shoot the apple from the head of his son, that George Washington did not convert the cherry tree into firewood with his little hatchet, that the commander of the Old Guard never cast his famed defiance into the teeth of the British conquerors, but they cannot make us believe that the Roman martyr of blessed memory does not still exert a beneficent influence on affairs of the heart.

We continue to dust off our rhyming dictionaries as the ides of February approach and with paste pot, scissors and cardboard manufacture weird symbols of undying affection, to intrust them for safe delivery to St. Valentine's priest, the postman, meanwhile praying the saint himself to kindle fires of reciprocal love in the bosoms of their recipients. And while we are thus engrossed great factories are turning out for those of less imagination or less leisure hundreds of thousands of erotic epistles varied in sentiment and costliness to suit the tastes and pocketbooks of the modest maiden and the ardent swain, the wealthy suitor and the impecunious.

Massachusetts, the home of statesmen and men of letters, where love, like everything else, is taken seriously, is fittingly the center of the valentine industry. As long ago as 1848 Miss Esther Howland, just out of college, added a few handmade valentines to the stock of her father's bookstore in Worcester. They were quickly snapped up. Some found their way to New York, and demands for many more came in. Mr. Howland bought lithographs and embossed paper and set four girls to work tying ribbons and frills and cutting out sheets, while his young son traveled the country in search of orders. Then enamel pictures were imported from Germany, and dies were made to do quickly the cutting which had been done laboriously with scissors. Before Miss Howland knew what was happening she was making $50,000 a year. Then she sold the business to a Worcester syndicate, which continues the manufacture of valentines "at the old stand," though that stand has been enlarged until it fills a building with 55,000 square feet of floor space. Four hundred persons are now working for this syndicate, which is constantly enlarging its premises without being able to keep up with the demand.

The making of valentines is complex. The buyer who pays a cent for his tribute to his sweetheart seldom thinks of the work it represents. Diemakers, cutters, boxmakers, photographers, artists, copyists, painters, pressmen, dyers, embossers and other workmen are busy in the Worcester factory all the year round. It takes six weeks to make some of the dies, for the hundreds of lines and circles that stamp out the paper into lace must have cutting edges. Skill of like sort is needed in making the plates for embossing.

Then there is the matter of printing. The three color process is used now, but the valentine has often to go through the press seven times—once each for the red, blue, yellow, purple and gold, the printed verse and the embossing. Then it must be cut into lace edges, bronzed and "jeweled," after which ribbons are tied on it and hinges put between the upper and under sheets. In the more expensive valentines there are heavy backgrounds and celluloid additions to be stamped out by hand and put on with glue or silk.

Four artists are employed all the year painting the first schemes of designs on porcelain in oil. There is no regular hired poet, however. Verses are culled from books and magazines, though contributions are not refused. A large part of the working force is made up of girls, who do the sewing, piecing, etc. Steady hands can earn $1.50 a day, but many of the girls work only at intervals to get a little pin money for the holidays.

The comic valentines, a base innovation of an irreverent age, are not made in Worcester. They are perpetrated in Brooklyn, whence they are sent broadcast, to the delight of the malicious schoolboy and the disgust of his teachers and other grownup acquaintances.

The custom of choosing valentines is so old that early English poets refer to it as an established affair. Chaucer says that not only youths and maids, but also the birds, make choice of "makes" or mates on that day and quotes a heavenly power as saying to them:

Ye know well how on St. Valentine's day
By my statute and through my governaunce,
Ye dae chese your makes and after flie away
With hem as I move you with pleasaunce.

And Wharton wrote this in praise of Katherine, the French wife of Henry V.:

Seynte Valentine, of custome yeere by yeere
Men have an usance, in this regioun,
To loke and serche Cupide's kalendere,
And chose theyr choyse, by grete affeccioun,
Such as ben move with Cupide's mocioun,
Takying theyre choyse as theyr sort do the falle;
But I love oon whiche excelleth alle.

In "Hamlet" Ophelia sings this pathetic song:

Tomorrow is St. Valentine's day
All in the morning betime,
And I, a maid, at your window,
To be your valentine.

Mission, who in 1698 published "Travels In England," wrote:

"On the eve of St. Valentine's day the young folks in England and Scotland, by a very ancient custom, celebrate a little festival. An equal number of maids and bachelors write their true or feigned names upon separate billets, which they roll up and draw by way of lots, the maids taking the men's billets and the men the maids', so that each of the young men chooses a young girl that he calls his valentine and each of the girls a young man she calls hers. By this means each has two valentines, but the man clings to the valentine that has fallen to his lot rather than the one who calls him hers. Fortune having thus divided the company into so many couples, the valentines give balls and treats, wear their billets several days upon their sleeves, and this little sport often ends in love."

The custom of drawing one's valentine by lot became exceedingly popular all over Europe, especially in merry England, and continued as late as a century ago. But it grew to be such an extravagance that it wore itself out, for each "valentine" was expected to present his or her partner with a costly gift. Even royalty took part in the festival. Pepys' diary and other memoirs of the time mentioned jewels, gloves, silk stockings, garters, etc., as among the gifts bestowed upon valentines.

Lovers' Perjuries.

"So," she cried passionately—"so you did not mean what you said in that valentine when you called me your 'only love' and implored me to be your 'mate forever?'"

"Nein, non, nit, no!" he chuckled coarsely. "Why, don't you know, Jove or somebody else laughs at lovers' perjuries?"

"So does a breach of promise jury," she hissed triumphantly, "but the fair plaintiff always gets a verdict just the same."

With a wild shriek he skipped to the Philippines.

A Work-a-Day Valentine

[Copyright, 1904, by American Press Association.]

OF one thing we were all three certain—she was too angelic a creature for life in an office, even our office. Rooney swore she was one of the nobility in disguise; Davis, the treasurer's clerk, agreed she was no less than a duchess. As for me—well, that's the story.

I had noticed her the first day she came. I repeat it—I noticed her first. I pride myself in this, for hers was not a personality to attract attention from the unobservant. To be sure, her hands were twin doves, her eyes were a sea born blue, and her voice was a deep toned bell ringing on June Sundays only. But these were points not likely to be appreciated at a casual meeting, for the doves were kept busy fluttering over the clicking keyboard, the fair blue eyes were modestly veiled beneath lowered lashes, and cathedral bells do not mingle their tones with the clanging gongs of this work-a-day world.

After I had noted the mold of her hands and the timbre of her voice I noted other things, for my eyes seldom left her, and my mind had taken up permanent quarters at her desk. She was of another world—any one could see that. I was sure she could never stand the strain of this—that she would break down under it.

Day after day I hurried to the office expecting to find a new girl in her place. Yet she was never absent. Her work was always of the best, quickly and adroitly dispatched and with the manner of a queen. I cannot describe the feeling of reverence I came to have for her.

At last there came an event that almost cost me my life. I am given to heart trouble, and the manager, without preliminary caution, instructed me to dictate my letters that morning to her. I saved myself only by the quickest kind of hard, consistent gulping, and, hurrying into the storeroom, I hammered out my letters there myself.

All this time I had kept my feelings to myself. But there is a limit to a man's reserve. It was in Rooney's little cubby hole that I opened up. That evening we had enjoyed a hot drink that Davis had learned to mix from his friend at the Dutch kitchen and now for an hour had been looking moodily at one another through a thickening fog of Latakia, or Virginia cheroots, or something. Rooney had his feet on the table and was burning fuel under forced draft. Davis sat apart, twirling his mixing spoon. No one had a word.

"I wonder who she is," I said, my mind dwelling as ever upon the doves and the bell.

In an instant they were both talking at once. I was too terribly in earnest to think how strange was their enthusiasm. The fires went out in Rooney's great meerschaum. Davis bent eagerly forward, and through the dispersing fog their eyes burned strangely. My heart warmed to them as I heard their faraway voices singing the praises of her hair, her brow, her throat. Here were kindred spirits admiring what I adored. They were agreed that she was never intended for an office. Davis thought she was like a fair flower in a wind tossed meadow, while Rooney wavered between the figure of a linnet among jay birds and a lily among thorns, adding that her voice was like the music of unnumbered flutes. It all sounded practicable enough at the time.

Suddenly Rooney rose and, going to an old worm eaten desk, brought forth

a half finished pen sketch. It was less bad than some he had done, and he was enthusiastic.

"I don't know what you think," he said, "but I think this 'll make a right nice valentine."

My heart groaned with envy. So bitter were my thoughts that I found it hard to bid my host a civil good night, which I did soon after, coldly, but courteously. I had not noticed the chilling effect of Rooney's words upon his other guest, but before Davis left me at my door that night he unburdened his heart.

"Does he think she'll care for a pen scrawl like that—she who's been used to the masters? But I'll send her a valentine. Just you wait!"

In my bed that night I caught an idea. Immediately I sat up and laughed. The next morning the plan seemed less a stroke of genius, but I held to it nevertheless. The violets cost me half a week's salary and the doggerel a week's time, but I felt confident enough when at last I had consigned them to the office boy for delivery St. Valentine's eve.

Valentine's day I reached the office half an hour before the janitor, and in the meantime both Rooney and Davis put in an appearance. We were all feeling sheepish, but I was the only one that knew it.

When the janitor opened the door we all rushed to our desks with a great show of energy. The office filled slowly; clerks, stenographers, office boys, accountants were buzzing about, waiting for the manager. He came, but she came not. The delinquents filed in. Still her desk stood empty.

I was utterly depressed. Even my newspaper lay unread upon my desk.

It must have been near 10 o'clock when my eye dropped casually along the society notes. Suddenly my heart stopped. My glance had rested upon her name.

"Miss Gertrude Aileen Bonsall, daughter of Colonel Bonsall, whose sad death occurred immediately after his bankruptcy a year ago, was married last evening in her mother's modest home on Beech hill to Mr. V. Stanley Hapwell, the multimillionaire and society lion of last season. There is a pretty romance about the affair, which reached its culmination in the sudden wedding so fittingly observed on Valentine's eve. It seems that Miss Bonsall, with her mother, disappeared from the view of the world immediately after the failure and death of her unfortunate father a year ago, and until last evening no trace of them could be found by their fashionable friends. In fact, all had given up save one. The cause of Mr. Hapwell's success where others had failed may be guessed from the fact that within two hours from the time he had located the object of his search, in the office of a well known business house in this city, he had made her his bride."

I tried to force a yawn as I passed the paper over to Rooney. Rooney whistled in a bored sort of way as Davis joined us.

"Which desk did she work at?" I asked indifferently.

Just then an office boy approached us. "Youse are left at de post. She's tied up to some swell an' gone away," he said. "Hyer's yer valentines."

He handed Rooney a volume of poetry, Davis received his pen and ink sketch, while I found myself holding half a week's salary in perishable goods done up with yards of ribbon.

"I knowed it," said Rooney. And that night we were at peace again in the little cubby hole.

HAKODATE SHELLED

Russians Retaliate by Bombarding One of Japan's Principal Seaports.

MORE FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR

Japanese Torpedo Boats Sneak in Along Cliffs in Darkness and Sink Russian Ships When They Retreat Toward the Harbor Entrance.

London, Feb. 12.—The Tien Tsin correspondent of the Standard cables that five Russian cruisers from Vladivostock bombarded Hakodate, Japan, on Tuesday.

In a dispatch from Shanghai dated Feb. 12, 2 a. m., a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "The bombardment of Port Arthur continues. Three Russian cruisers have been sunk. The Russian bank building has been destroyed."

In a dispatch from Nagasaki, dated Feb. 10, a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: There has been a renewed attack on Port Arthur. The Japanese captured seven Russian ships and chased others.

There have been disturbances at Port Arthur in which a number of Japanese civilians were killed or imprisoned.

A Chinese mob has destroyed the telegraph line around New Chwang.

A special dispatch from Tien Tsin confirms the report that the Manchurian railroad has been blocked by the blowing up of a bridge on the line and that 30 Russians were killed in the explosion.

It is reported, the dispatch adds, that the Russian steamers, Nonni and Mukden, belonging to the Chinese Eastern Railway company, have been captured by the Japanese.

Russian Officers at a Circus.

Statements of all kinds concerning the Port Arthur fight are published here this morning. According to the Chefoo correspondent of the Daily Mail the lack of preparation on the part of the Russians at Port Arthur was due to the fact that all the naval and military officers were attending a circus performance at Port Arthur which did not terminate until early Tuesday morning.

According to the correspondent of the Paris edition of the New York Herald at Chefoo, the Japanese torpedo boats succeeded in entering the outer harbor by a ruse; they used the Russian flash light signals. This correspondent adds that three Japanese torpedo boats were sunk with great loss of life.

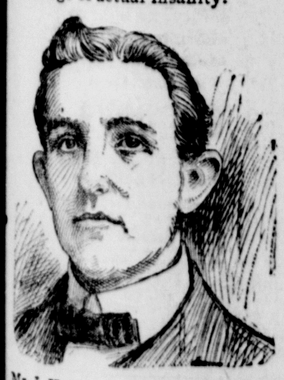
A correspondent of the Standard at Tokio sends in this morning an entirely new account of the Port Arthur encounter. He says Admiral Togo's fleet arrived on Monday night and found the Russian squadron drawn up in battle formation outside the harbor and under the shadow of the forts. The destroyers being spread out in front over a distance of five miles. Admiral Togo decided on a night attack and opened fire at 11 o'clock. While the cannonade was hottest a number of Japanese torpedo boats crept along close in shore at the foot of the cliff and succeeded in the darkness in getting between the Russian ships and the land. Here they lay unnoticed until the Russians began to make way before the Japanese fire and sought to re-enter the harbor. The Japanese torpedo boats then opened fire at comparatively close range and sank two battleships and one cruiser close to the entrance of the harbor.

A RAVING MANIAC

Nervousness the Cause of Insanity—Blood Wine Scores a Triumph.

It is hard to realize that a dangerous, raving maniac becomes so from such a simple start as an ordinary nervous disease, but such is nearly invariably the case. First sleeplessness, then the loss of nerve force, then brain disease—insanity.

Here is a remarkable cure of a case of nervous prostration—a disease just on the verge of actual insanity.



Mr. J. H. Waddy of Nashville, Tenn., says: "My nervous system was completely worked down, and I suffered from nervous prostration for a year, during which time I was under the treatment of three different physicians and used several kinds of medicines without results. Japanese Celebrate Their Victories.

All was safe on board the Japanese ships at noon of Tuesday, the correspondent concludes, and the engagement was then still in progress.

At Lloyds today 30 per cent was paid to insure against the risk of war between France and Great Britain within six months. Yesterday the rate was 20 per cent. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha announces that the Inaba Maru arrived safely at Hong Kong.

Tokio, Feb. 12.—The existence of a state of war with Russia was formally announced by an imperial proclamation.

Tokio witnessed a smaller Mafeking celebration last night. Thousands of students paraded the streets, accompanied by many bands of music and carrying torches, flags, colored lanterns and transparencies emblazoned with war pictures. National airs were sung and cheers were continually given. The various processions surrounded the palace wall and visited the government offices.

The Russian legation overlooks a square where thousands of people had assembled to witness the celebration of the Japanese victory, but the windows of the legation were darkened. The crowds are orderly. The British residents of Tokio were cheered wherever they appeared.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 12.—Admiral Starydoff has left for the Far East to take command of the Russian fleet there. All unattached naval officers in St. Petersburg and Kronstadt have been ordered to go east promptly without making farewell calls.

Students in uniform and bareheaded paraded in front of the Kazan cathedral and went to the winter palace. They were followed by several thousands of persons singing the national anthem.

There is a general movement among the public to raise money for the purpose of increasing the navy. The Red Cross society sent the steamship Mongolia loaded with hospital stores to the Far East on Sunday.

An official telegram from Viceroy Alexieff describes the damage done to the Russian warships during the bombardment by the Japanese fleet at Port Arthur. It says:

"The Czarevitch and Pallada were brought into the harbor Tuesday. The Retvizan is making temporary repairs to a hole. Repairs to the battleships are so complicated that it is difficult to say when the ships will be ready. The Pallada and Novik will be docked in turn and I expect them to be ready in a fortnight. All the other vessels injured in the fight are now repairing and coaling in the harbor. I expect them to be ready in three days.

Wounded Officers Recovering.

"The wounded officers, Lieutenant Colonel Zaiontchkovsky of the artillery corps and Lieutenant Petrof, are doing well. Four of the wounded have died. A majority of the injured belonged to the cruiser Pallada and their injuries are due to gases from the explosion of a melinite torpedo. A careful search by cruisers and torpedo boats day and night has not revealed the presence of the enemy."

It is officially announced that no news has been received here of the fight at Chemulpo, the landing of Japanese or the blowing up of a bridge on the Manchurian railroad.

Orders have been issued for the formation of a third Siberian army corps and a trans-Baikal division of Cossacks. These will be incorporated in the Manchurian army.

Japanese Landing Frustrated.

Chefoo, China, Feb. 12.—It is reported that the Japanese attempted a landing near Bedzevo, 80 miles north of Port Arthur, but were repulsed with heavy loss. They again tried to effect a landing at Talienwan under shelter of the fleet, but owing to the strong fort firing were unable to succeed. The Japanese then drew off, their losses being slight.

London, Feb. 12.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of Reuters cables that the naval headquarter's staff there announces that in the fight at Port Arthur six Japanese ships were slightly damaged and 50 Japanese were killed and 150 wounded.

ST. LOUIS GETS LOAN.

House Agrees to Amendment of Urgent Deficiency Measure.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The house by a vote of 172 to 103 concurred in the senate amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill authorizing a loan of $4,600,000 to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, after amending it with respect to the manner in which the money shall be paid. The proposition was strongly opposed in the debate which covered portions of three days. There were arrayed against it some of the house leaders. Among those who voiced their opposition to it were Messrs. Payne (N. Y.), Grosvenor (O.) and Dalzell (Pa.). Mr. Hemenway (Ind.), chairman of the appropriations committee, closed the debate with a strong appeal in favor of the loan. There was no party alignment on the measure, its supporters being composed of Republicans and Democrats alike.

The house also concurred in the senate amendment to the urgent deficiency bill authorizing tests of coal and lignites at the St. Louis fair and non-concurred in all the other amendments proposed by the senate. A number of bills were passed, among them measures ratifying agreements with Indians in Minnesota and Montana.

The senate will vote on the Panama canal treaty between Feb. 15 and 23. An agreement has been reached to take action on Monday next to decide upon a time for voting on the treaty and it was determined that such date should be on or before Feb. 23.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.

Employe of Diamond Match Company Said to Have Stolen $12,000.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—A special to the Record-Herald from Akron, O., says: Frank S. Newton, for over 20 years an employe of the Diamond Match company, has been arrested charged with the embezzlement of between $12,000 and $15,000.

Newton, it is charged, sold goods to a Cleveland merchant, collecting for them and opening an account in the company's books, which he kept straight by applying moneys paid by other customers. The irregularities extend over six years. Newton says that he spent the money in sumptuous living. He was sent to jail in default of $5,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

New Haven, Feb. 12.—Prof. Woolsey of the Yale law school, an authority on international law, has given it as his opinion that in breaking off diplomatic relations the Japanese government gave a perfectly fair warning to Russia that war was at hand.

"A declaration of war nowadays is unnecessary," said Prof. Woolsey. "War dates from the first moment of conflict, so far as the belligerents are concerned. There was nothing treacherous or improper in the Japanese torpedo attack upon the Russian ships at Port Arthur."

Miss Ida Parish was probably fatally hurt, as she was badly burned and received internal injuries by jumping from a window. The explosion of a gasoline stove in Miss Averill's room started the fire.

HAKODATE SHELLED

Russians Retaliate by Bombarding One of Japan's Principal Seaports.

MORE FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR

Japanese Torpedo Boats Sneak in Along Cliffs in Darkness and Sink Russian Ships When They Retreat Toward the Harbor Entrance.

London, Feb. 12.—The Tien Tsin correspondent of the Standard cables that five Russian cruisers from Vladivostock bombarded Hakodate, Japan, on Tuesday.

In a dispatch from Shanghai dated Feb. 12, 2 a. m., a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "The bombardment of Port Arthur continues. Three Russian cruisers have been sunk. The Russian bank building has been destroyed."

In a dispatch from Nagasaki, dated Feb. 10, a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: There has been a renewed attack on Port Arthur. The Japanese captured seven Russian ships and chased others.

There have been disturbances at Port Arthur in which a number of Japanese civilians were killed or imprisoned.

A Chinese mob has destroyed the telegraph line around New Chwang.

A special dispatch from Tien Tsin confirms the report that the Manchurian railroad has been blocked by the blowing up of a bridge on the line and that 30 Russians were killed in the explosion.

It is reported, the dispatch adds, that the Russian steamers, Nonni and Mukden, belonging to the Chinese Eastern Railway company, have been captured by the Japanese.

Russian Officers at a Circus.

Statements of all kinds concerning the Port Arthur fight are published here this morning. According to the Chefoo correspondent of the Daily Mail the lack of preparation on the part of the Russians at Port Arthur was due to the fact that all the naval and military officers were attending a circus performance at Port Arthur which did not terminate until early Tuesday morning.

According to the correspondent of the Paris edition of the New York Herald at Chefoo, the Japanese torpedo boats succeeded in entering the outer harbor by a ruse; they used the Russian flash light signals. This correspondent adds that three Japanese torpedo boats were sunk with great loss of life.

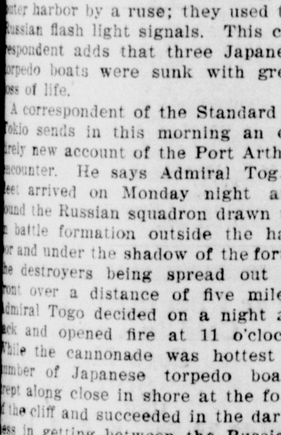
A correspondent of the Standard at Tokio sends in this morning an entirely new account of the Port Arthur encounter. He says Admiral Togo's fleet arrived on Monday night and found the Russian squadron drawn up in battle formation outside the harbor and under the shadow of the forts, the destroyers being spread out in front over a distance of five miles. Admiral Togo decided on a night attack and opened fire at 11 o'clock. While the cannonade was hottest a number of Japanese torpedo boats crept along close in shore at the foot of the cliff and succeeded in the darkness in getting between the Russian ships and the land. Here they lay unnoticed until the Russians began to give way before the Japanese fire and thought to re-enter the harbor. The Japanese torpedo boats then opened fire at comparatively close range and sank two battleships and one cruiser close to the entrance of the harbor.

A RAVING MANIAC

Nervousness the Cause of Insanity—Blood Wine Scores a Triumph.

It is hard to realize that a dangerous, raving maniac becomes so from such a simple start as an ordinary nervous disease, but such is nearly invariably the case. First sleeplessness, then the loss of nerve force, then brain disease—insanity.

Here is a remarkable cure of a case of nervous prostration—a disease just on the verge of actual insanity.



Mr. J. H. Waddy of Nashville, Tenn., says: "My nervous system was completely worked down, and I suffered from nervous prostration for a year, during which time I was under the treatment of three different physicians and I used several kinds of medicines without results. I then took 'Blood Wine,' and consider it a wonderful medicine. In fact, I cannot praise it highly enough for the great benefit derived from four bottles. I am now a well man once more."

LINCOLN'S STRANGE COURTSHIPS

By JONATHAN JOYCE

[Copyright, 1904, by Arthur J. Palmer.]

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was, above all things, human. With all his greatness, he was a man of like passions with ourselves, and in nothing was this humanizing touch of nature better shown than in his loves.

Aside from the boy and girl romances of his school days, Lincoln's diffidence had kept him from much association with the opposite sex, and it was not until he had reached the full stature of manhood that he was strongly drawn toward any woman not of his own family. Then he met Anne Rutledge. She was a beautiful girl, of Kentucky birth, with auburn hair, blue eyes, a fair complexion and of slight physique. Her father was one of the founders of New Salem, Ill., and was the proprietor of the village tavern when Lincoln went to that place in 1833. Lincoln boarded at the tavern. Miss Rutledge, who was then about seventeen, was betrothed to a young man from the east, John McNeil, who had become one of New Salem's leading citizens.

Her lover, having accumulated what was then a fortune, determined to pay a visit to his old home in New York state, and before going away pledged Anne to await his return, at the same time making the singular revelation that his name was not McNeil, but McNamar. When he reached New York he wrote to her that his old father's declining health would require his presence with him for some time. Then he wrote of his father's death. Other letters followed, but they grew fewer and less affectionate and finally ceased.

In the meantime Lincoln had come to love Anne as he never loved another woman, and as her attachment to McNamar weakened through his continued absence and silence Lincoln's suit progressed. In time she was induced to promise that she would marry Lincoln if McNamar should formally release her. She wrote to McNamar, but her letter was never answered, and at last she accepted Lincoln unconditionally. But the strain to which she had been subjected had been too great for her to bear, and she gave way under it. She was seized with brain fever and sank day by day until all hope was abandoned. During the last days of her illness her doctors forbade her receiving any visitors, but she asked for Lincoln so continuously that a few days before her death he was admitted to her bedside.

When Lincoln heard that Anne was dead he roamed the woods in woeful abstraction, almost madness. His condition became so serious that he was sent to the home of Bowlin Green, who lived in a secluded spot in the hills some distance from the village, where he was won back to something like his normal self. But the wound he had received in the death of Miss Rutledge seems never to have healed.

Long afterward, in speaking of her resting place, he said to a friend, "My heart lies buried there," and he told fellow members of the Illinois legislature that he dared not carry a pocket-knife lest he be tempted to take his life.

In time another Kentucky girl, Mary Owens, came into Lincoln's life. She differed from Miss Rutledge in that she had been highly educated and had been reared in wealth. Her social position seems to have been the rock on which Lincoln's second love was wrecked. She had met Lincoln when visiting her brother-in-law, Bennett Able, in New Salem, before Miss Rutledge died. She came again to New Salem about a year after Lincoln's great loss, when he was peculiarly susceptible to feminine sympathy. Their intimacy ripened until it culminated in an offer of marriage. Miss Owens declined his proposal with all kindness. Lincoln renewed his offer later, but it was again refused.

The year 1840 found Mr. Lincoln in his thirty-second year and still unmarried. "I have come to the conclusion," he said in a letter to a friend shortly before this time, "never again to think of marrying." But meanwhile he had seen more of the world. The state capital had been removed to Springfield, and Lincoln soon observed the power of social and family connections. Though still poor and lacking the graces and ease of bearing obtained through mingling in polite society, he had risen to a high place in the law and in politics and numbered among his friends many men of wealth and consequence.

Mary Todd, like Lincoln's two earlier sweethearts, a Kentuckian, went to Springfield in 1839 to live with her sister, Mrs. Ninian W. Edwards. She was of a rich family and one in whose veins coursed the bluest blood of the south. She was then in her twenty-first year, of strong, passionate nature, and had left her home in Kentucky because "she could not live under the same roof with a stepmother." She was of average height, rather compactly built, with well rounded face, rich dark brown hair and bluish gray eyes. In her bearing she was proud, but handsome and vivacious. She was exceptionally well educated and a brilliant conversationalist.

Lincoln was led through the influence of Joshua Speed, a firm friend of the Edwardses, to call on Miss Todd, and he was from the first her captive. The contrast in their characters made Lincoln's courtship of Miss Todd a strange one. "I have often happened in the room where they were sitting," relates Mrs. Edwards, "and Mary was leading the conversation. Mr. Lincoln scarcely said a word. He gazed upon her as if irresistibly drawn toward her by some superior and unseen power." Mrs. Edwards believed that while Lincoln was deeply attached to Mary they could not always be congenial and advised against the marriage.

Mrs. Edwards' advice fell on stony ground. The courtship ran on to the point of an engagement, when a new and disturbing element loomed in the path. This was no other than the dashing and handsome Stephen A. Douglas, Lincoln's rival now in love as in after years he became his rival in public life.

Douglas was vastly more attractive to women than Lincoln, and it is not to be marveled at that he should supplant Lincoln in the affections of the proud and aristocratic Miss Todd. There were those who thought Miss Todd's encouragement of Douglas an artifice to spur Lincoln on to manifest his love with greater fervor, but a lady relative of Mrs. Lincoln, who lived with her after her marriage, is authority for the statement that Mary loved Douglas and but for her promise to Lincoln would have married him.

Douglas was unremitting in his attentions to Miss Todd and seemed to go out of his way to annoy Lincoln with his rivalry. Finally the unfortunate position she was compelled to occupy between the two young men resulted in making Miss Todd ill. Her brother-in law and physician, William Wallace, to whom she had confided the real cause of her sickness, went to Douglas and asked him to end his pursuit. This Douglas did with great reluctance.

If Miss Todd intended by a flirtation with Douglas to test Lincoln's devotion she committed a great mistake. Lincoln began to feel the sting. One evening he called on Joshua Speed, to whom he was indebted for his introduction to Miss Todd, and showed him a letter addressed to Mary telling her that he had deliberated on the matter of their engagement and that he did not feel that he now loved her enough to marry her. He asked Speed to deliver this letter. Speed refused and advised Lincoln to go to Mary in person and settle the subject once for all. Speed waited until nearly midnight for Lincoln to come back. When he came and Speed asked him if he had followed his instructions he said: "Yes, and when I told Mary I did not love her she burst into tears and wrung her hands as if in agony, talking incoherently. I found the tears coursing down my own cheeks. I took her in my arms and kissed her."

Convinced that Miss Todd considered the engagement ratified instead of broken, as Lincoln at first intended, he continued his visits, and things went on smoothly as before. Douglas had dropped out of the race, and everything pointed to an early marriage.

The time fixed for the wedding was the first day of January, 1841. Careful preparations for the occasion were made in the Edwards mansion. The house was decorated, the supper prepared and the guests invited. The latter assembled on the evening set. Miss Todd, in bridal array, sat in an adjoining room. Nothing was lacking but the groom. He had been unaccountably delayed. An hour passed, and the bride as well as the guests grew restless. Another hour passed. Messengers were sent out through the town, and, each returning unaccompanied, it became evident that Mr. Lincoln's absence was premeditated. The party broke up, and Miss Todd retired to her own room. Toward daybreak, after persistent search, Lincoln was found. Restless, gloomy, desperate, he seemed an object of pity. His friends, fearing a tragic termination of the strange episode, watched him closely. Every instrument which could be used for suicide was kept from him. Mrs. Edwards and Miss Todd did not hesitate to regard him as insane.

After two or three weeks of brooding in seclusion Lincoln was persuaded to accompany Speed to his home in Kentucky. The change of environment drove away the cloud which had settled on Lincoln's mind, and he returned to Springfield nearly cured. He resumed his practice of the law and let the memory of his engagement to Miss Todd trouble him no more. Their ways had diverged. But through Mrs. Simeon Francis, a friend of Miss Todd, they were brought together again. After a brief second courtship Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd were married on Nov. 4, 1842, at the home of Mr. Edwards. Herndon asserts his belief that Lincoln married Miss Todd merely to save his honor. He came to his wedding, says Herndon, "pale and trembling, as a lamb to the slaughter." When Lincoln was dressing in the home of his friend, Mr. Butler, preparing to meet his bride, Butler's little son asked him where he was going. "To hell, I suppose," was Lincoln's answer.

THE BIRTHNIGHT OF LINCOLN

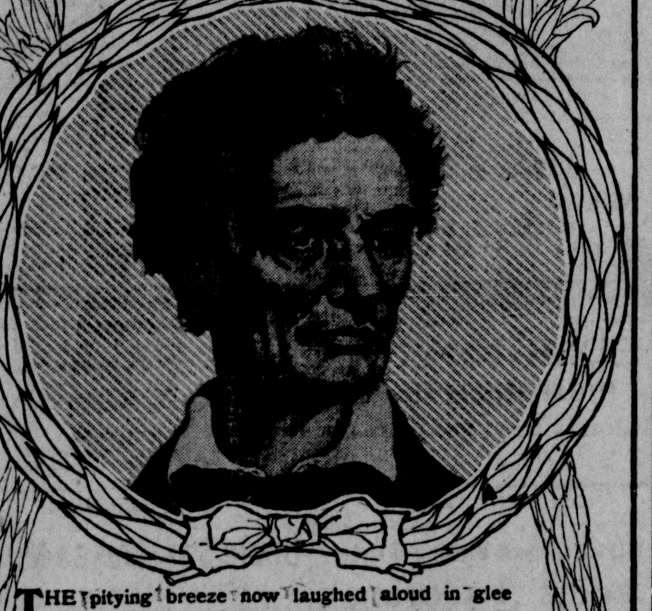
BY WALTON WILLIAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY C. N. LURZ.

OUT of Kentucky night came there a breeze
Fraught with the pine-land odors, and with news
Such as might rock the thrones beyond the seas,
Could monarch-ridden lands its text peruse.

THE laden breeze did beckon in the morn
The Spirits of the Right by men unseen,
And whispered as it sped, "A babe is born
Whose glory it will be to crown a queen."

THE souls of Freedom and of Honor bright
And Justice fair did shudder thus to hear.
What could they gain for the good cause of Right
While scepters flourished o'er a world of fear?

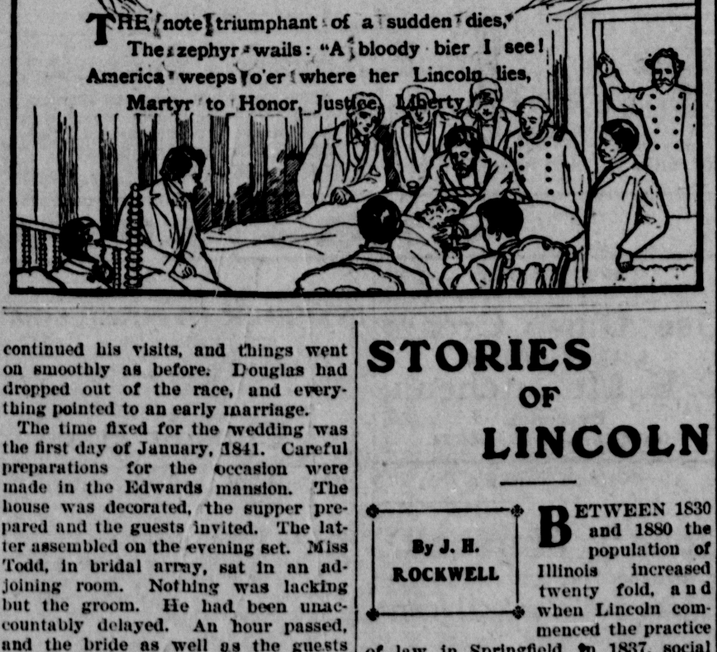


THE pitying breeze now laughed aloud in glee
And spoke: "The queen this newborn babe will crown,
Shall be America, entirely free,
Land of full justice and of bright renown!

CONFIRMING and enlarging the decrees
By which a narrow freedom was installed,
He shall make grander than the dynasties
A people's rule, and save a world inthralled!

FOR thrones must fall when all the nations see
The glory of his doubly-rescued land;
And toil must triumph to its fair degree
When regal bay'nets back not greed's command!"

THE note triumphant of a sudden dies,
The zephyr wails: "A bloody bier I see!
America weeps o'er where her Lincoln lies,
Martyr to Honor, Justice, Liberty!"



STORIES OF LINCOLN

By J. H. ROCKWELL

BETWEEN 1830 and 1880 the population of Illinois increased twenty fold, and when Lincoln commenced the practice of law in Springfield, in 1837, social conditions were extremely simple, and so were the courts and the administration of justice.

Books were both expensive and few in number and public libraries a thing almost unknown. But the people loved justice, upheld the law and followed the courts and were not slow in finding their favorites among the advocates.

The lawsuits of those days were exceedingly crude—the principles of natural justice being mainly relied upon to dispose of them at the bar and on the bench without resort to technical learning. But despite this fact there were many highly educated and powerful men at the Illinois bar even in those early days, and it was by constant contact and conflict with these that Lincoln acquired professional strength and skill.

In those early days in the west every lawyer, especially every court lawyer, was necessarily a politician, constantly engaged in the public discussion of many questions evolved from the rapid development of town, county, state and federal affairs. Then and there in this regard public discussion supplied the place which the press has since monopolized, and the public speaker who by clearness, force, earnestness and wit could make himself felt on the questions of the day, would soon come to the front. In the absence of popular entertainments, which are now so common, the people then found their chief amusement in frequenting the courts and political assemblies. In either place he who impressed, entertained and amused them most was the hero of the hour. They did not discriminate very carefully between the eloquence of the forum and the eloquence of the hustings. Human nature ruled both alike, and the man who was the most effective speaker in a political harangue was often retained in a lawsuit as the most likely one to win in a cause before a jury.

There is little doubt that in this way many retainers came to Lincoln. Fees—money in any form—had no charm for him. In his eager pursuit of fame he could not afford to make money. He was ambitious to distinguish himself in some great service to mankind, and this ambition for fame and real public service left in his nature no room for avarice.

However much he earned, he seems to have ended every year no richer than when he began it, and yet as time passed fees came to him liberally. One of $5,000 is recorded, a very large fee at that time in any part of the country. As already suggested, the legal profession always has been and is now the main avenue to public life, and his training and experience in the courts had very much to do with the development of those forces of character which he so successfully displayed in later years on a broader field.

His ready wit and infinite good nature were elements of strength to him, especially after his entrance into politics, and even his personal appearance, which was always attractive, won him the favor and confidence of the masses. He was not a good looking man in the ordinary sense of the term, and yet there were times when, moved by great impulses, his face would light up and become almost handsome. As an illustration of this the following incident is given, which I think is new, and certainly bears every evidence of genuineness:

In 1858, during the senatorial campaign in Illinois, when Lincoln was canvassing the western part of the state, he made a speech at Rushville, in Schuyler county, which was reported by a young lady who wrote occasionally for the local paper, the Schuyler Citizen. As an introduction to her report of the speech, which appeared in the next number of that journal, she said:

"So many people had told me that Mr. Lincoln was a miracle of homeliness I expected to see the ugliest man in Illinois. Instead of that I saw a man whose face lit up in a most extraordinary way when he talked, and I don't care what anybody else's opinion is, I want to say that I consider Mr. Lincoln one of the handsomest men I ever saw."

A copy of the paper, with this paragraph carefully marked, was sent to Mr. Lincoln. He took it at once to his wife. "Mary," he said, "I have always thought until now that you were the only woman on earth who considered me a handsome man, and I have not been absolutely certain about that, but it seems there is one other."

"THERE IS ONE OTHER."

By G. L. LANGDON

LINCOLN'S numerous deeds of kindness to all sorts of people often proved embarrassing to officials who were held responsible for a businesslike and vigorous administration of military affairs.

On one occasion at least Lincoln's good nature was balked by the grim secretary of war, Mr. Stanton. The president favored a certain man's application to serve the army as chaplain and sent the applicant to the war department with the usual indorsement on the paper:

Dear Stanton—Appoint this man chaplain. A. LINCOLN.

The man soon reappeared at the White House with the following indorsement under Lincoln's:

Dear Mr. Lincoln—He is not a preacher. E. M. STANTON.

Some time afterward the man appeared again at the war department with this indorsement written under Stanton's:

He is now. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton promptly returned it with the indorsement:

There is no vacancy. E. M. STANTON.

This called forth another executive indorsement, saying:

Appoint him chaplain at large. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton wrote underneath:

There is no warrant of law for that. E. M. STANTON.

Out of patience at last, the president wrote:

Appoint him anyhow. A. LINCOLN.

Equally out of patience, the secretary wrote underneath the laconic dictum:

I will not. E. M. STANTON.

LINCOLN'S ODD PERSONALITY

[Copyright, 1904, by Hamilton Musk.]

THE unique personality of Abraham Lincoln was in no way more marked than in his physical appearance. His height was six feet four inches. His figure was gaunt and slightly bent. He was swarthy as an Indian, with wiry, jet black hair not easily amenable to the comb. His face was grotesquely rough and square, "lantern jawed," he called himself. During the latter part of his life he wore a rough, black beard "to hide his homely features," he said. His hands and feet were very large. He wore a No. 11 boot on his left foot and a No. 11½ on his right.

Lincoln's clothes were always loose fitting and usually in need of pressing.

THE STALWART LINCOLN.

His trousers were always too short. His cloak, for which he often substituted a shawl, was short and voluminous. He carried a faded green umbrella with "A. Lincoln" in white cotton letters sewed to the outside. His eyes were bright, keen and of luminous gray in color, and his eyebrows were black. His voice was a musical tenor of rich timbre. When he was a lawyer in Illinois he wore a brown, faded felt hat, with the nap rubbed off.

On his first visit to Boston, in 1848, Lincoln excited the derision of the effete east. He is described as wearing an ill fitting, badly worn suit of bombazine, without vest or cravat, and a twenty-five cent straw hat, in the sweatband of which he carried his memoranda and correspondence. From Boston he went to Dedham to speak at the convention held to nominate Horace Mann for congress. He was greeted coldly by an audience which but half filled the hall and which saw in him a man morose and apparently stupid. But when Mr. Lincoln rose to speak, his head almost touching the ceiling, all was changed. He was no longer indifferent, but started off with fine effect. "Pretty soon," says George Monroe of Boston, who was one of the reception committee, "Lincoln turned up the sleeves of his bombazine sack coat, then he turned up the cuffs of his shirt and by and by loosened his necktie and wound up by taking it off altogether, the enthusiasm of his listeners rising steadily as the transformation progressed."

Lincoln's high silk hat, which he assumed with his increasing honors, was a treasure to the cartoonists of the day. It was a very tall "stovepipe," with a brim like a sombrero. The hat which he wore toward the end of his life is preserved in the Oldroyd museum in Washington. It is a good 7¼ in size. A legend credits this hat with having saved the president's life. It is said that he was riding alone near the capitol when a concealed assassin fired at him. Misjudging the size of the famous hat, the assailant shot too high, the bullet going through the tile about an inch below the top and just missing the hair of the president, who was later to be the victim of John Wilkes Booth's pistol.

LINCOLN'S STRANGE COURTSHIPS

By JONATHAN JOYCE

[Copyright, 1904, by Arthur J. Palmer.]

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was, above all things, human. With all his greatness, he was a man of like passions with ourselves, and in nothing was this humanizing touch of nature better shown than in his loves.

Aside from the boy and girl romances of his school days, Lincoln's diffidence had kept him from much association with the opposite sex, and it was not until he had reached the full stature of manhood that he was strongly drawn toward any woman not of his own family. Then he met Anne Rutledge. She was a beautiful girl, of Kentucky birth, with auburn hair, blue eyes, a fair complexion and of slight physique. Her father was one of the founders of New Salem, Ill., and was the proprietor of the village tavern when Lincoln went to that place in 1833. Lincoln boarded at the tavern. Miss Rutledge, who was then about seventeen, was betrothed to a young man from the east, John McNeil, who had become one of New Salem's leading citizens.

Her lover, having accumulated what was then a fortune, determined to pay a visit to his old home in New York state, and before going away pledged Anne to await his return, at the same time making the singular revelation that his name was not McNeil, but McNamar. When he reached New York he wrote to her that his old father's declining health would require his presence with him for some time. Then he wrote of his father's death. Other letters followed, but they grew fewer and less affectionate and finally ceased.

In the meantime Lincoln had come to love Anne as he never loved another woman, and as her attachment to McNamar weakened through his continued absence and silence Lincoln's suit progressed. In time she was induced to promise that she would marry Lincoln if McNamar should formally release her. She wrote to McNamar, but her letter was never answered, and at last she accepted Lincoln unconditionally. But the strain to which she had been subjected had been too great for her to bear, and she gave way under it. She was seized with brain fever and sank day by day until all hope was abandoned. During the last days of her illness her doctors forbade her receiving any visitors, but she asked for Lincoln so continuously that a few days before her death he was admitted to her bedside.

When Lincoln heard that Anne was dead he roamed the woods in woeful abstraction, almost madness. His condition became so serious that he was sent to the home of Bowlin Green, who lived in a secluded spot in the hills some distance from the village, where he was won back to something like his normal self. But the wound he had received in the death of Miss Rutledge seems never to have healed.

Long afterward, in speaking of her resting place, he said to a friend, "My heart lies buried there," and he told fellow members of the Illinois legislature that he dared not carry a pocketknife lest he be tempted to take his life.

In time another Kentucky girl, Mary Owens, came into Lincoln's life. She differed from Miss Rutledge in that she had been highly educated and had been reared in wealth. Her social position seems to have been the rock on which Lincoln's second love was wrecked. She had met Lincoln when visiting her brother-in-law, Bennett Able, in New Salem, before Miss Rutledge died. She came again to New Salem about a year after Lincoln's great loss, when he was peculiarly susceptible to feminine sympathy. Their intimacy ripened until it culminated in an offer of marriage. Miss Owens declined his proposal with all kindness. Lincoln renewed his offer later, but it was again refused.

The year 1840 found Mr. Lincoln in his thirty-second year and still unmarried. "I have come to the conclusion," he said in a letter to a friend shortly before this time, "never again to think of marrying." But meanwhile he had seen more of the world. The state capital had been removed to Springfield, and Lincoln soon observed the power of social and family connections. Though still poor and lacking the graces and ease of bearing obtained through mingling in polite society, he had risen to a high place in the law and in politics and numbered among his friends many men of wealth and consequence.

Mary Todd, like Lincoln's two earlier sweethearts, a Kentuckian, went to Springfield in 1839 to live with her sister, Mrs. Ninian W. Edwards. She was of a rich family and one in whose veins coursed the bluest blood of the south. She was then in her twenty-first year, of strong, passionate nature, and had left her home in Kentucky because "she could not live under the same roof with a stepmother." She was of average height, rather compactly built, with well rounded face, rich dark brown hair and bluish gray eyes. In her bearing she was proud, but handsome and vivacious. She was exceptionally well educated and a brilliant conversationalist.

Lincoln was led through the influence of Joshua Speed, a firm friend of the Edwardses, to call on Miss Todd, and he was from the first her captive. The contrast in their characters made Lincoln's courtship of Miss Todd a strange one. "I have often happened in the room where they were sitting," relates Mrs. Edwards, "and Mary was leading the conversation. Mr. Lincoln scarcely said a word. He gazed upon her as if irresistibly drawn toward her by some superior and unseen power." Mrs. Edwards believed that while Lincoln was deeply attached to Mary they could not always be congenial and advised against the marriage.

Mrs. Edwards' advice fell on stony ground. The courtship ran on to the point of an engagement, when a new and disturbing element loomed in the path. This was no other than the dashing and handsome Stephen A. Douglas, Lincoln's rival now in love as in after years he became his rival in public life.

Douglas was vastly more attractive to women than Lincoln, and it is not to be marveled at that he should supplant Lincoln in the affections of the proud and aristocratic Miss Todd. There were those who thought Miss Todd's encouragement of Douglas an artifice to spur Lincoln on to manifest his love with greater fervor, but a lady relative of Mrs. Lincoln, who lived with her after her marriage, is authority for the statement that Mary loved Douglas and but for her promise to Lincoln would have married him.

Douglas was unremitting in his attentions to Miss Todd and seemed to go out of his way to annoy Lincoln with his rivalry. Finally the unfortunate position she was compelled to occupy between the two young men resulted in making Miss Todd ill. Her brother-in-law and physician, William Wallace, to whom she had confided the real cause of her sickness, went to Douglas and asked him to end his pursuit. This Douglas did with great reluctance.

If Miss Todd intended by a flirtation with Douglas to test Lincoln's devotion she committed a great mistake. Lincoln began to feel the sting. One evening he called on Joshua Speed, to whom he was indebted for his introduction to Miss Todd, and showed him a letter addressed to Mary telling her that he had deliberated on the matter of their engagement and that he did not feel that he now loved her enough to marry her. He asked Speed to deliver this letter. Speed refused and advised Lincoln to go to Mary in person and settle the subject once for all. Speed waited until nearly midnight for Lincoln to come back. When he came and Speed asked him if he had followed his instructions he said: "Yes, and when I told Mary I did not love her she burst into tears and wrung her hands as if in agony, talking incoherently. I found the tears coursing down my own cheeks. I took her in my arms and kissed her."

Convinced that Miss Todd considered the engagement ratified instead of broken, as Lincoln at first intended, he continued his visits, and things went on smoothly as before. Douglas had dropped out of the race, and everything pointed to an early marriage.

The time fixed for the wedding was the first day of January, 1841. Careful preparations for the occasion were made in the Edwards mansion. The house was decorated, the supper prepared and the guests invited. The latter assembled on the evening set. Miss Todd, in bridal array, sat in an adjoining room. Nothing was lacking but the groom. He had been unaccountably delayed. An hour passed, and the bride as well as the guests grew restless. Another hour passed. Messengers were sent out through the town, and, each returning unaccompanied, it became evident that Mr. Lincoln's absence was premeditated. The party broke up, and Miss Todd retired to her own room. Toward daybreak, after persistent search, Lincoln was found. Restless, gloomy, desperate, he seemed an object of pity. His friends, fearing a tragic termination of the strange episode, watched him closely. Every instrument which could be used for suicide was kept from him. Mrs. Edwards and Miss Todd did not hesitate to regard him as insane.

After two or three weeks of brooding in seclusion Lincoln was persuaded to accompany Speed to his home in Kentucky. The change of environment drove away the cloud which had settled on Lincoln's mind, and he returned to Springfield nearly cured. He resumed his practice of the law and let the memory of his engagement to Miss Todd trouble him no more. Their ways had diverged. But through Mrs. Simeon Francis, a friend of Miss Todd, they were brought together again. After a brief second courtship Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd were married on Nov. 4, 1842, at the home of Mr. Edwards. Herndon asserts his belief that Lincoln married Miss Todd merely to save his honor. He came to his wedding, says Herndon, "pale and trembling, as a lamb to the slaughter." When Lincoln was dressing in the home of his friend, Mr. Butler, preparing to meet his bride, Butler's little son asked him where he was going. "To hell, I suppose," was Lincoln's answer.

THE BIRTHNIGHT OF LINCOLN

BY WALTON WILLIAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY C. N. LURIE.

OUT of Kentucky night came there a breeze
Fraught with the pine-land odors, and with news
Such as might rock the thrones beyond the seas,
Could monarch-ridden lands its text peruse.

THE laden breeze did beckon in the morn
The Spirits of the Right by men unseen,
And whispered as it sped, "A babe is born
Whose glory it will be to crown a queen."

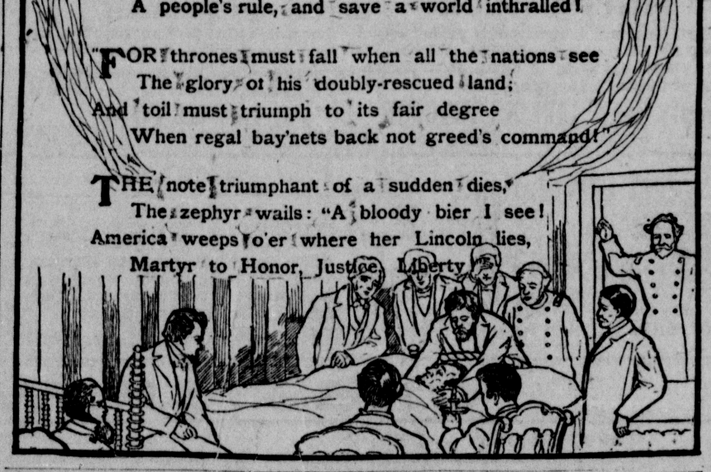
THE souls of Freedom and of Honor bright
And Justice fair did shudder this to hear.
What could they gain for the good cause of Right
While scepters flourished o'er a world of fear?

THE pitying breeze now laughed aloud in glee
And spoke: "The queen this newborn babe will crown,
Shall be America, entirely free,
Land of full justice and of bright renown!

CONFIRMING and enlarging the decrees
By which a narrow freedom was installed,
He shall make grander than the dynasties
A people's rule, and save a world inthralled!

FOR thrones must fall when all the nations see
The glory of his doubly-rescued land;
And toil must triumph to its fair degree
When regal bay'nets back not greed's command!

THE note triumphant of a sudden dies,
The zephyr wails: "A bloody bier I see!
America weeps o'er where her Lincoln lies,
Martyr to Honor, Justice, Liberty!



STORIES OF LINCOLN

By J. H. ROCKWELL

BETWEEN 1830 and 1880 the population of Illinois increased twenty fold, and when Lincoln commenced the practice of law in Springfield, in 1837, social conditions were extremely simple, and so were the courts and the administration of justice.

Books were both expensive and few in number and public libraries a thing almost unknown. But the people loved justice, upheld the law and followed the courts and were not slow in finding their favorites among the advocates.

The lawsuits of those days were exceedingly crude—the principles of natural justice being mainly relied upon to dispose of them at the bar and on the bench without resort to technical learning. But despite this fact there were many highly educated and powerful men at the Illinois bar even in those early days, and it was by constant contact and conflict with these that Lincoln acquired professional strength and skill.

In those early days in the west every lawyer, especially every court lawyer, was necessarily a politician, constantly engaged in the public discussion of many questions evolved from the rapid development of town, county, state and federal affairs. Then and there in this regard public discussion supplied the place which the press has since monopolized, and the public speaker who by clearness, force, earnestness and wit could make himself felt on the questions of the day, would soon come to the front. In the absence of popular entertainments, which are now so common, the people then found their chief amusement in frequenting the courts and political assemblies. In either place he who impressed, entertained and amused them most was the hero of the hour. They did not discriminate very carefully between the eloquence of the forum and the eloquence of the hustings. Human nature ruled both alike, and the man who was the most effective speaker in a political harangue was often retained in a lawsuit as the most likely one to win in a cause before a jury.

There is little doubt that in this way many retainers came to Lincoln. Fees—money in any form—had no charm for him. In his eager pursuit of fame he could not afford to make money. He was ambitious to distinguish himself in some great service to mankind, and this ambition for fame and real public service left in his nature no room for avarice.

However much he earned, he seems to have ended every year no richer than when he began it, and yet as time passed fees came to him liberally. One of $5,000 is recorded, a very large fee at that time in any part of the country. As already suggested, the legal profession always has been and is now the main avenue to public life, and his training and experience in the courts had very much to do with the development of those forces of character which he so successfully displayed in later years on a broader field.

His ready wit and infinite good nature were elements of strength to him, especially after his entrance into politics, and even his personal appearance, which was always attractive, won him the favor and confidence of the masses. He was not a good looking man in the ordinary sense of the term, and yet there were times when, moved by great impulses, his face would light up and become almost handsome. As an illustration of this the following incident is given, which I think is new, and certainly bears every evidence of genuineness:

In 1858, during the senatorial campaign in Illinois, when Lincoln was canvassing the western part of the state, he made a speech at Rushville, in Schuyler county, which was reported by a young lady who wrote occasionally for the local paper, the Schuyler Citizen. As an introduction to her report of the speech, which appeared in the next number of that journal, she said:

"So many people had told me that Mr. Lincoln was a miracle of homeliness I expected to see the ugliest man in Illinois. Instead of that I saw a man whose face lit up in a most extraordinary way when he talked, and I don't care what anybody else's opinion is, I want to say that I consider Mr. Lincoln one of the handsomest men I ever saw."

A copy of the paper, with this paragraph carefully marked, was sent to Mr. Lincoln. He took it at once to his wife. "Mary," he said, "I have always thought until now that you were the only woman on earth who considered me a handsome man, and I have not been absolutely certain about that, but it seems there is one other."

"THERE IS ONE OTHER."

By G. L. LANGDON

LINCOLN'S numerous deeds of kindness to all sorts of people often proved embarrassing to officials who were held responsible for a businesslike and vigorous administration of military affairs.

On one occasion at least Lincoln's good nature was balked by the grim secretary of war, Mr. Stanton. The president favored a certain man's application to serve the army as chaplain and sent the applicant to the war department with the usual indorsement on the paper:

Dear Stanton—Appoint this man chaplain. A. LINCOLN.

The man soon reappeared at the White House with the following indorsement under Lincoln's:

Dear Mr. Lincoln—He is not a preacher. E. M. STANTON.

Some time afterward the man appeared again at the war department with this indorsement written under Stanton's:

He is now. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton promptly returned it with the indorsement:

There is no vacancy. E. M. STANTON.

This called forth another executive indorsement, saying:

Appoint him chaplain at large. A. LINCOLN.

Stanton wrote underneath:

There is no warrant of law for that. E. M. STANTON.

Out of patience at last, the president wrote:

Appoint him anyhow. A. LINCOLN.

Equally out of patience, the secretary wrote underneath the laconic dictum:

I will not. E. M. STANTON.

LINCOLN'S ODD PERSONALITY

[Copyright, 1904, by Hamilton Musk.]

THE unique personality of Abraham Lincoln was in no way more marked than in his physical appearance. His height was six feet four inches. His figure was gaunt and slightly bent. He was swarthy as an Indian, with wiry, jet black hair not easily amenable to the comb. His face was grotesquely rough and square, "lantern jawed," he called himself. During the latter part of his life he wore a rough, black beard "to hide his homely features," he said. His hands and feet were very large. He wore a No. 11 boot on his left foot and a No. 11½ on his right.

Lincoln's clothes were always loose fitting and usually in need of pressing.

THE STALWART LINCOLN.

His trousers were always too short. His cloak, for which he often substituted a shawl, was short and voluminous. He carried a faded green umbrella with "A. Lincoln" in white cotton letters sewed to the outside. His eyes were bright, keen and of luminous gray in color, and his eyebrows were black. His voice was a musical tenor of rich timbre. When he was a lawyer in Illinois he wore a brown, faded felt hat, with the nap rubbed off.

On his first visit to Boston, in 1848, Lincoln excited the derision of the effete east. He is described as wearing an ill fitting, badly worn suit of bombazine, without vest or cravat, and a twenty-five cent straw hat, in the sweatband of which he carried his memoranda and correspondence. From Boston he went to Dedham to speak at the convention held to nominate Horace Mann for congress. He was greeted coldly by an audience which but half filled the hall and which saw in him a man morose and apparently stupid. But when Mr. Lincoln rose to speak, his head almost touching the ceiling, all was changed. He was no longer indifferent, but started off with fine effect. "Pretty soon," says George Monroe of Boston, who was one of the reception committee, "Lincoln turned up the sleeves of his bombazine sack coat, then he turned up the cuffs of his shirt and by and by loosened his necktie and wound up by taking it off altogether, the enthusiasm of his listeners rising steadily as the transformation progressed."

Lincoln's high silk hat, which he assumed with his increasing honors, was a treasure to the cartoonists of the day. It was a very tall "stovepipe," with a brim like a sombrero. The hat which he wore toward the end of his life is preserved in the Oldroyd museum in Washington. It is a good 7¼ in size. A legend credits this hat with having saved the president's life. It is said that he was riding alone near the capitol when a concealed assassin fired at him. Misjudging the size of the famous hat, the bullet going through the tile about an inch below the top and just missing the hair of the president, who was later to be the victim of John Wilkes Booth's pistol.
